Quantitative limits	Yes.	ADs may provide up to B$15,000 or its equivalent a person a trip for tourism and other personal travel. The limit on travel for education is B$15,000 a person a trip. For business or professional travel, the limit is B$15,000 a trip. The allowance for tourism travel excludes the cost of fares and travel services, which is generally paid in Bahamian dollars to a travel agent in The Bahamas. Foreign exchange obtained for travel and any unused balance must be surrendered within one week of issue or, if the traveler is still abroad, within one week of returning to The Bahamas.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Approval is based on a bona fide test.
Personal payments	Yes.	There is no limit for medical expenses.
Prior approval	Yes.	Except for the medical expenses, CBB approval is required for amounts exceeding this established limit.
Quantitative limits	Yes.	ADs may provide up to B$25,000 a transaction or its equivalent for payments to educational institutions (B$2,500 a transaction if paid to the student), family maintenance, and alimony payments. CBB approval is required for amounts exceeding this limit. Limits are applied per transaction. An AD can facilitate payments to educational institution based on the full amount noted on the bill, as well as payments due under a court order for the total amount.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Approval is based on a bona fide test, including supporting evidence.
Foreign workers' wages	Yes.
Prior approval	No.	Prior approval is not required.
Quantitative limits	Yes.	The limit is 100% of wages and salaries.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	If commitments outside The Bahamas are more than 100% of wages and salaries, additional amounts may be remitted. Temporary residents may also repatriate all their accumulated savings resulting from their employment in The Bahamas.
Credit card use abroad	Yes.
Prior approval	Yes.	Approval is required for residents to hold an international credit card. Cards may not be used to pay for life insurance premiums and capital items.

Proceeds from Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Residents must collect all proceeds without delay, that is, it should not be delayed to an extent which is unreasonable having regard for ordinary course of trade. Without permission by the controller to retain the foreign currency, the proceeds must be repatriated at the earliest opportunity.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	No.
Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	All foreign currency proceeds must be offered for sale to an AD on receipt. Foreign exchange obtained for travel and any unused balance must be surrendered within one week of issue or, if the traveler is still abroad, within one week of returning to The Bahamas.
Restrictions on use of funds	No.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions	Yes.	The premium on approved purchases of securities and foreign real estate is 5%, while the premium on rates for investment currency sales by residents is 2.5%. However, certain categories of securities may be negotiated in the official market, with no premium. Cross-listing of Bahamian and foreign companies on CARICOM exchanges is allowed, and limited foreign investment by the National Insurance Board (the public pension fund) is authorized.
Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Repatriation must occur at the time of liquidation of foreign assets.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	In the event of liquidation of the investment of funds that were initially purchased through the Investment Currency Market (ICM), the proceeds may be sold to the ICM and an element of the premium recovered, on the original capital invested, in line with the offer rate prevailing at the time of liquidation. The current premium on rate for sales is 2.5%.
Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	Earnings on securities and money market instruments purchased abroad by residents must be surrendered to ADs, unless exemption is granted by the CBB. Foreign exchange loans by nonresidents to residents must be converted by an AD to Bahamian dollars, unless exemption is granted by the CBB.
Controls on capital and money market instruments	Yes.	All outward capital transfers require Exchange Control approval, and outflows of resident-owned capital are restricted. Inward transfers by nonresidents, which are encouraged, must be processed through the Exchange Control approval procedure, and the subsequent use of the funds in The Bahamas may also require authorization. Nonresidents may invest in obligations of companies listed on the Bahamas International Securities Exchange up to an aggregate of 10% of the respective issue or offering. They may also invest in public sector securities for which the CBB acts as registrar, subject to an overall limit of B$0.1 million a person or entity. Operational guidelines apply to the issuance of non-sponsored Bahamian depository receipts. Proposed product offerings must be established under the supervision of the Securities Commission (SC) before the CBB is approached for foreign exchange to fund external portfolios. Additional rules are as follows: (1) Mutual funds may retain foreign currency cash in their portfolios up to the maximum percentage of overall assets, as specified or disclosed in the investment policy statements or strategies of the funds. (2) Purchases and sales of foreign exchange against Bahamian dollar facilities must be executed through the CBB. (3) Individual brokers or dealers may pool the foreign exchange allotted to them each quarter, but the resources may not be traded in any commercial sense, because this would be seen as constituting a parallel market in foreign exchange. (4) The CBB prohibits the accumulation of unused quarterly allocations of brokers or dealers.

On capital market securities	Yes.	The Mutual Funds Act and a regulation that provides for licensing of mutual fund administrators and the registration of mutual funds are enforced. The Securities Industry Act authorizes the SC to regulate the stock exchange and its operations.
Shares or other securities of a participating nature	Yes.	Resident companies may invest in equities of Bahamas International Securities Exchange-listed companies, up to 10% of the issue or offering for each investing entity. Resident companies may invest in other private and public sector securities, without limit.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	In principle, inward investment by nonresidents is unrestricted. However, CBB approval is required for the issue or transfer of shares in a Bahamian company to a nonresident and for the transfer of control of a Bahamian company to a nonresident. The extent of such approvals generally reflects the government's economic and investment policy guidelines.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	CBB approval is required for the issue and transfer of shares in a Bahamian entity to a nonresident. The extent of such activity is often a function of government economic and investment policy on nonresident ownership in sectors of the economy.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	Residents employed by offshore and foreign-based institutions in The Bahamas may invest in employee stock options or share purchase plans through the official exchange market up to the equivalent of B$10,000 a person a year, on a noncumulative basis for contributory plans. Otherwise, residents may not purchase foreign currency securities with official exchange, export proceeds, or other current earnings; payment must be made with investment currency. All purchases, sales, and swaps of foreign currency securities by residents require CBB permission and are normally effected through authorized agents, who are free to act on behalf of nonresidents in relation to such transactions without additional approval from the CBB at a 5% premium. Certificates relating to ownership of all foreign securities purchased by residents must be held by, or to the order of, an AD. Investment by pension funds of Bahamian dollar assets in securities issued by nonresidents or in an investment portfolio held abroad must receive CBB approval, and approved transactions must be conducted through the ICM. Limits are imposed by the CBB, in concert with primary regulators (for example, the SC), with respect to portfolios held abroad by investment firms and collective investment funds.

Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	Sale proceeds from resident-held foreign currency securities that were registered at the CBB before December 31, 1972, or that were acquired through the ICM are eligible for sale in the ICM. Unregistered securities may be offered for sale at the official rate of exchange.
Bonds or other debt securities	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Nonresident buyers of Bahamian-dollar-denominated securities must fund the acquisition of such securities from foreign currency sources. Interest, dividends, and capital payments on these securities may not be remitted outside The Bahamas, unless the holdings have been properly acquired by nonresidents. There is no minimum holding period for such bonds.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	CBB approval is required and is based on government economic and investment policy on nonresident ownership in sectors of the economy.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	All purchases, sales, and swaps of foreign currency securities by residents require permission from the CBB and are generally effected through authorized agents, who are free to act on behalf of nonresidents in relation to such transactions without any additional approval from the CBB at a 5% premium. All foreign securities purchased by residents of The Bahamas must be held by, or drawn to the order of, an AD. Investment by pension funds of Bahamian dollar assets in securities issued by nonresidents or in an investment portfolio held abroad must receive CBB approval, and approved transactions must be conducted through the ICM. Limits are imposed by the CBB, in concert with primary regulators (for example, the SC), with respect to portfolios held abroad by investment firms and collective investment funds.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	Proceeds from the sale of residents' foreign securities initially approved by the CBB and acquired via the ICM are eligible for sale in the market. Investors may recover a portion of the original premium paid equivalent to the premium offer rate prevailing at the time of the sale. Investment proceeds that are not premium worthy are recovered at the official market rate through commercial banks.
On money market instruments	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Nonresident buyers of Bahamian-dollar-denominated securities must fund the acquisition of such securities from foreign currency sources. Interest, dividends, and capital payments on these securities may not be remitted outside The Bahamas unless the holdings have been properly acquired by nonresidents.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Prior approval of the CBB is required, but generally restricted.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes. Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	CBB approval is required and is granted based on merit. Generally, funding should be raised through the domestic money and capital market.
On collective investment securities	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Nonresident buyers of Bahamian-dollar-denominated securities must fund the acquisition of such securities from foreign currency sources. Interest, dividends, and capital payments on these securities may not be remitted outside The Bahamas, unless the holdings were properly acquired by nonresidents.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	CBB approval is required. Sometimes, shares of foreign-owned companies that operate in The Bahamas may be sold to residents, typically within the framework of government economic and investment policy for the sector.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	All purchases, sales, and swaps of foreign currency securities by residents require permission from the CBB and are generally effected through authorized agents, who are free to act on behalf of nonresidents in relation to such transactions without any additional approval from the CBB at a 5% premium. All foreign securities purchased by residents of The Bahamas must be held by, or drawn to the order of, an AD. 		raise fixed capital in Bahamian dollars, although approval may be granted to obtain working capital in local currency. If the company is partly owned by residents, the amount of local currency borrowing for fixed capital purposes is determined in relation to residents' interest in the equity of the company. However, companies set up by nonresidents primarily to import and distribute products manufactured outside The Bahamas are not allowed to borrow Bahamian dollars from residents for either fixed or working capital; instead, they must provide all their financing in foreign currency. Banks and other lenders resident in The Bahamas must have permission to extend loans in domestic currency to any corporate body (other than a bank) that is resident in The Bahamas but is controlled directly or indirectly by nonresidents. Foreign currency loans are generally permitted on application. Exchange Control approval is required if local real estate is offered as collateral.
To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	Residents other than authorized banks must obtain permission to borrow foreign currency from nonresidents. Residents must also obtain permission to pay interest on, and to repay the principal of, foreign currency loans by conversion of Bahamian dollars. When permission is granted for residents to accept foreign currency loans, it is conditional on the currency being offered for sale without delay to an AD, unless the funds are required to meet specifically authorized payments to nonresidents.
Financial credits	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	A resident company wholly owned by nonresidents is not allowed to raise fixed capital in Bahamian dollars, although approval may be granted to obtain working capital in local currency. If the company is partly owned by residents, the amount of local currency borrowing for fixed capital purposes is determined in relation to residents' interest in the equity of the company. However, companies set up by nonresidents primarily to import and distribute products manufactured outside The Bahamas are not allowed to borrow Bahamian dollars from residents for either fixed or working capital; instead, they must provide all their financing in foreign currency. 		ADs), with the prior approval of CBB, subject to an overall limit of $10 million an investor group, a transaction. This facility may be accessed once every three years. These limits apply to investments from which the additional benefits that are expected to accrue to the balance of payments from export receipts, profits, or other earnings within 18 months of the investment will be at least equal to the total amount of the investment and will continue thereafter. Investments abroad that do not meet the above criteria may be financed by foreign currency borrowed on suitable terms, subject to individual approval from the CBB; by foreign currency purchased in the ICM; or by the retained profits of foreign subsidiary companies. Permission is not given for investments that are likely to have adverse effects on the balance of payments.
Inward direct investment	Yes.	CBB approval is required.
Controls on liquidation of direct investment	No.	In the event of a sale or liquidation, nonresident investors may repatriate the proceeds, including any capital appreciation, through the official foreign exchange market.
Controls on real estate transactions	Yes.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	Residents require the specific approval of the CBB to buy property outside The Bahamas; such purchases, if for personal use, may be made only with investment currency, and approval is limited to one property a family. Incidental expenses connected with the purchase of property for personal use may generally be met with investment currency. Expenditures necessary for the maintenance of the property or arising directly from its ownership may, with permission, be met with foreign currency bought at the current market rate in the official foreign exchange market. The premium on approved purchases of foreign real estate through ICM is 5%. The ICM property premium excludes the purchase of time share units abroad, which may be funded at the official rate up to B$25,000 a family unit, once every 10 years. On CBB approval, residential or time share purchases may be made at the official rate, up to a limit of $0.5 million. Payments in excess of this amount will require use of the ICM.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Foreigners intending to purchase land for commercial purposes or property larger than two acres in size must obtain a permit from the Investments Board. If such an application is approved, payment for the purchase may be made either in Bahamian dollars from an external source or in foreign currency. Nonresidents wishing to purchase property for residential purposes may do so without prior approval but are required to obtain a certificate of registration from the Investments Board on completion of the transaction.
Sale locally by nonresidents	Yes.	CBB approval is required.
Controls on personal capital transactions	Yes.
Loans	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	CBB approval is required.
To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	CBB approval is required.
Gifts, endowments, inheritances, and legacies	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Authorized banks may approve foreign exchange transactions for cash gift payments up to B$15,000 a transaction. Larger amounts require CBB approval. Endowments, inheritance, and legacies require CBB approval.

To residents from nonresidents	No.
Settlement of debts abroad by immigrants	Yes.	Immigrants (that is, work visa and contract workers) are permitted to remit up to half of their wages and salaries annually for the length of their contract. They may also with CBB approval transfer accumulated savings abroad, if needed to meet commitments abroad. Immigrants are permitted to remit up to 100% of wages and salaries annually for the length of contract.
Transfer of assets	Yes.
Transfer abroad by emigrants	Yes.	An emigrant may transfer abroad a maximum of the equivalent of B $250,000 a family unit a year. Excess amounts may be approved by the CBB on an individual basis.
Transfer into the country by immigrants	No.
Transfer of gambling and prize earnings	Yes.	Residents are not allowed to remit funds earned from gambling.

		such financial institutions by non-Bahraini citizens.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The CBB Law regulates the sale and issuance of securities by residents and nonresidents. These sales (transactions) are subject to the CBB approval under Article 81 of the CBB Law and the CBB Rulebook, in particular the Offering of Securities (OFS) Module in Volume 6 thereof.
Purchase abroad by residents	No.	There are no restrictions on these transactions, provided the regulations of the foreign jurisdiction concerned are satisfied.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	The CBB may object to the issuance of securities. As per the CBB Rulebook requirement, in particular, the OFS Module in Volume 6, sale or issue abroad by residents must be subject to the CBB approval, provided the foreign regulator in respective jurisdiction has approved the sale of issue.
Bonds or other debt securities	Yes.	The issuance of bonds and other debt securities is subject to the CBB Law and regulations, the CBB Rulebook, and the Commercial Companies Law. Sales of listed bonds and other debt securities are subject to the CBB Rulebook and the CBB Resolution No. 17 of 2012 in respect of Listing and Trading of Financial Instruments on the Bahrain Bourse and Bahrain Bourse's rules.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	In line with the CBB Directive (Ref. EDBO/44/2011) issued to all retail banks within Bahrain on August 10, 2011, the participation of retail customers/investors in government securities' issuance, in specific, was discussed. The Directive was issued with the objective of promoting greater participation of individuals in the issuance of governmental securities (which must mean treasury bills, government development bonds, and Islamic securities issued by the CBB on behalf of the Government of Bahrain). The Directive is general for all retail banks' customers; therefore, nonresidents are eligible to participate only if they have an account with a retail bank. In summary, it requires any retail bank which is approached by a customer who wishes to acquire government securities to assist that customer by purchasing for him or her on a fiduciary basis and hold such government securities for him or her.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	No.	The CBB Law and the OFS Module in Volume 6 of the CBB Rulebook apply.
Purchase abroad by residents	No.	There are no restrictions on these transactions, provided the regulations of the foreign jurisdiction concerned are satisfied.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	No restriction applies, provided there is no objection by the CBB. As per the CBB Rulebook requirement, in particular, the OFS Module in Volume 6, sale or issue abroad by residents must be subject to the CBB approval, provided the foreign regulator in respective jurisdiction has approved the sale of issue.
On money market instruments	No.	There are no restrictions on these transactions; however, they are regulated to prevent money laundering.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	Yes.	The IMF staff report for the 2021 Article IV Consultation with Bangladesh states that, as of February 15, 2022, Bangladesh maintained one restriction subject to IMF approval under Article VIII, Section 2(a) on the convertibility and transferability of proceeds of current international transactions in nonresident taka accounts (NRTAs). (Country Report No. 22/71)
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	No.
Other security restrictions	Yes.	Banks and other financial institutions have been instructed to block all capital transfers and to freeze financial assets of individuals, groups, and organizations associated with terrorism, pursuant to the relevant UNSC resolutions. Banks have been instructed to follow the following provisions in case of international fund transfers: No account may be opened or operated for a listed individual or entity suspected to be involved in terrorism and terrorism financing activities within the purview of different Resolutions of the UNSC. “Person or entities listed under various resolutions of the UNSC” refers to the listed persons or entities under the resolutions defined under Article 2(g) of Anti-Terrorism Rules, 2013. If any account or transaction of any individual/entity directly or indirectly under their control/association is identified, banks must stop the transaction in that account or stop that transaction and inform the Bangladesh FIU (BFIU) with detailed information within the next working day. As soon as any news on the Financing of Terrorism and Financing of Proliferation of Weapons of Mass Destruction is published in the media and if any account of any person or entity related to that activity is maintained with the bank, detailed information must be reported to the BFIU without any delay. No correspondent banking relationship may be established or maintained with any Shell Bank. Conduct and review transaction, when necessary, to identify if there is any account or any other relationship, under Resolution No. 1373 (2001) of UNSC, on request of foreign government or foreign FIU or any listed or proscribed individual or entity as per the list sent from the BFIU or as per the listed or proscribed individual/entity by the Bangladesh Government. As soon as any account is identified of any listed or proscribed individual or entity, the bank must stop the transaction in that account and inform the BFIU with detailed information within the next working day. As of February 2016, financial institutions and other reporting agencies identified under

Other managed arrangement	Yes.	The de jure exchange rate arrangement is floating since May 31, 2003. The Bangladesh Bank (BB) intervenes in the foreign exchange (FE) market to contain undue volatility in the exchange rate. ADs in the FE market are supposed to set their own exchange rates for their customer and inter-bank transactions. Bangladesh Foreign Exchange Dealers' Association (BAFEDA) has issued a notification for ADs (AD banks) regarding policy for exchange rates in FE dealings – for settling import bills and other outward remittances, banks will charge maximum Tk. 1.00 over the weighted average buying rate of export proceeds and inward remittances from September 11, 2022. The BB publishes information on its intervention on monthly (Major Economic Indicators), quarterly (Bangladesh Bank Quarterly (BBQ)), and annually (Monetary Policy Statement (MPS) and Annual Report). Publications lags are: 1 month for Major Economic Indicators, 2–3 months for BBQ, 3–4 weeks for MPS, and 5–7 months for Annual Report. Because of higher deficit in Balance of Payments, BDT faced an intense depreciation pressure against USD during the second half of FY22. On this backdrop, BB's intervention in 2022 through net sale of USD 12.94 billion helped ensure exchange rate stability. Since May 2022, the exchange rate increased its flexibility while still being managed. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified to other managed from crawl-like, effective May 17, 2022.

Official exchange rate	Yes.	The BB, on the basis of the exchange rate prevailing in the interbank market, calculates the exchange rate of the US$/BDT against major foreign currencies (FCs) for the purpose of valuation adjustment of FE reserves, for carrying out transactions related to government's external loans, grants, and aids (receipt/service) in terms of local currency and for market intervention (sale/purchase, when required). To determine the exchange rate of Bangladeshi taka (BDT) for a particular date, the latest New York closing exchange rate of major currencies against the US dollar and the US$/BDT exchange rate of the preceding day, which prevailed in the local interbank FE market, are taken into account. The cross-rate is calculated using the US $/BDT exchange rate (low as bid and high as ask) of the local interbank FE market.

Monetary aggregate target	Yes.	Effective July 1, 2023, the monetary policy framework of Bangladesh has shifted to an interest rate targeting framework from a monetary targeting framework. Instead of monetary aggregate targeting, Bangladesh Bank has formulated a monetary policy framework based on interest rate targeting where a 'policy interest corridor' has been introduced. Unlike a rigid monetary targeting approach focusing solely on controlling monetary aggregates, interest rate targeting allows policymakers to adjust interest rates in response to evolving economic circumstances. In the new monetary policy framework, the policy interest rate has been introduced as repo rate ±200 basis points symmetric corridor consisting of a standing lending facility (SLF) and a standing deposit facility (SDF), a market-based interest rate has been set as a benchmark for all types of bank advances (SMART-Six-month moving average rate of Treasury bill), adoption of single and market-based exchange rates is announced. Under this new framework, the interbank call money rate is closely aligned with the policy rate, ensuring stability. In this monetary policy, reserve money projection is considered as indicative target instead of operational target. Currently, BB publishes its Monetary Policy Statement on half yearly basis, though monetary policy stance is being reviewed by the Monetary Policy Committee (MPC) on quarterly basis. If any policy changes are prescribed by the MPC during the review process, BB publishes those changes accordingly through circulars and press releases.

		settling import bills and other outward remittances, banks may charge a maximum of Tk. 1 over the weighted average buying rate of export proceeds and inwards remittances. Banks also set the exchange rate in the interbank market emerging from this policy. The BB grants licenses to deal in FE. As of June 30, 2023, there are 1,053 branches of commercial banks (known as AD banks) licensed to deal in FE with bank and nonbank customers. There are 234 money changers (MCs) and 114 limited MCs granted with licenses to buy FC from tourists and to sell up to US$1,000 a person as a travel allowance to Bangladesh nationals. MCs are not allowed to make FE transactions directly with the CB and are not allowed to maintain account abroad. MCs' operation is limited to the purchase and sale of banknotes; they cannot make FC payments and transfers on behalf of their clients. However, MCs can maintain FC account with ADs in Bangladesh.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility	No.	Currently, there is no FE standing facility for commercial banks. To ensure smooth functioning of the interbank market, the BB occasionally buys and sells FE from/to commercial banks considering the exchange position of the banks concerned, underlying transactions, market demand, and liquidity of the overall market.
Allocation	Yes.	The tenure of the Financial Sector Support Project (FSSP) was from July 1, 2015, to March 31, 2021. The BB provides a FC support to exporters to bolster exports through Export Development Fund (EDF). The current limit of the EDF is US$7 billion and outstanding amount is approximately US$3.6 billion as of September 30, 2023. The Green Transformation Fund (GTF) established by the BB is a revolving fund of US$200 million and EUR200 million to accelerate sustainable growth in export-oriented textile and leather sectors conducive to transformation of green economy in the country. The fund allows AD banks to lend to their customers for importing capital machineries and accessories in FE and BB refinances the fund to the AD banks.
Auction	No.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	There is an effective interbank FE market where all 61 commercial banks participate to buy or sell FE on spot, swap, and forward basis.
Over the counter	Yes.	These deals are made on a bilateral basis, and there is no broker or other market-making arrangement.
Brokerage	No.	There is no broker arrangement.
Market making	No.	There is no other market-making arrangement.
Forward exchange market	Yes.
Official cover of forward operations	No.	There is no official cover of forward operations.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.	Settlements generally take place in convertible currencies and, in some cases, through NRTAs. The board of directors of the ACU allows the use of euros in addition to US dollars for the settlement of transactions among ACU member countries. Settlements with ACU member countries must be effected through the ACU and in units denominated in AMUs. (ACU dollars and ACU euros are equivalent in value to US$1 and €1, respectively.) The minimum threshold amount for transactions through ACU member CBs under ACU arrangement was set at 500 ACU dollars or ACU euros. As the payment channel for processing "ACU Euro" transactions had been suspended by some correspondents, ADs were advised to suspend operations in "ACU Euro" temporarily. Accordingly, all eligible current account transactions in "ACU Euro" were permitted to be settled outside the ACU mechanism until further notice. To facilitate transactions under ACU mechanism, along with "ACU Dollar," ADs are advised to resume transactions in "ACU Euro" to settle current account transactions among ACU member countries. In addition, Japanese yen is also a settlement currency in the ACU mechanism.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

Controls on the use of domestic currency	Yes.	Domestic currency held in the NRTAs of overseas bank branches and correspondents against inward remittance in convertible currencies may be used to settle eligible international transactions.
For current transactions and payments	Yes.	Payments for imports may be made to any country (with the exception of countries from which imports are prohibited). They may be made in (1) taka for credit in Bangladesh to a nonresident bank account of the country concerned, (2) the currency of the country concerned, or (3) any freely convertible currency. Export proceeds must be received in freely convertible FE or in taka from an NRTA.
For capital transactions	Yes.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	Yes.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	Yes.	ADs may hedge the price risk of commodities (traded on exchanges or over the counter) of their customers through standard exchange-traded futures and options and OTC commodity derivatives, subject to the BB approval. The use of commodity derivatives is permitted when customers have genuine underlying commodity-price risk exposure. Speculation through the use of commodity derivative instruments is not permitted by the BB.
Credit operations	Yes.
Use of foreign exchange among residents	Yes.	The use of FE among residents is generally not allowed.
Payments arrangements	Yes.
Bilateral payments arrangements	Yes.
Operative	Yes.	There is a bilateral payments arrangement with Myanmar. Under a MoU signed between Bangladesh and India, there are zones (markets) for border trade between the two countries. Both countries' exchange regulations are suspended in these zones for trading of goods up to the equivalent of US$100 a day an individual.
Inoperative	No.
Regional arrangements	Yes.	The ACU was established at the initiative of the UN Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific (ESCAP). The Draft Agreement establishing the ACU was finalized in December 1974 after five CBs (India, Iran, Nepal, Pakistan, and Sri Lanka) signed the Agreement. In subsequent years, Bangladesh and Myanmar were the sixth and seventh signatories. Bhutan and Maldives signed the Agreement in 1999 and 2009, respectively, leading to a total of nine members in the ACU.
Clearing agreements	Yes.	The ACU (Bangladesh, Bhutan, India, Iran, Maldives, Myanmar, Nepal, Pakistan, and Sri Lanka) is a payment arrangement whereby the participants settle payments for intra-regional transactions among the participating CBs on a net multilateral basis. The main objectives of the clearing union are to facilitate payments among member countries for eligible transactions, thereby economizing on the use of FE reserves and transfer costs, as well as promoting trade and banking relations among the participating countries.

Barter agreements and open accounts	No.
Administration of control	Yes.	FE policy is administered by the BB in accordance with the FERA (1947). Banks may deal in FE. The chief controller of imports and exports of the Ministry of Commerce is responsible for registering exporters and importers and for issuing import policy orders (IPOs). Registered importers may operate according to the terms of an IPO. LC authorization forms (LCAFs) are issued by ADs and do not require separate import licenses.
Payments arrears	No.
Official	No.
Private	No.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	Yes.	There are no restrictions on the internal sale, purchase, or possession of gold or silver ornaments (including coins) and jewelry.
On external trade	Yes.	The importation and exportation of gold and silver require special permission under the FERA, 1947, which was later amended September 9, 2015. However, women may bring in or take out any amount of personal jewelry they are wearing or carrying in their personal luggage, without approval. Exports of gold jewelry and imports of gold and silver for exports of jewelry manufacture are allowed under the Jewelry Export Scheme. Incoming passengers irrespective of their resident status may bring into Bangladesh gold or silver in bullion/ingot up to the prescribed limit in terms of relevant baggage rules in force issued under the Customs Act, 1969. The BB issues authorized gold dealer licenses for importation of gold bar and jewelry to AD banks and interested organizations.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.
On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Residents and nonresidents may take out up to Tk 10,000 in domestic currency.
Foreign currency	Yes.	The amount that may be brought in without declaration when returning from a visit abroad is US$10,000 or equivalent in other FCs (in cash, bank draft, etc.). Resident Bangladeshi nationals may retain FC up to US$10,000 or equivalent brought in by them from abroad or may deposit it in Resident Foreign Currency Deposit Account (RFCDA) with AD banks and may take it out at the time of subsequent travel abroad. However, selling to AD/MC or depositing in RFCDA of FE in excess of US$10,000 or equivalent brought in with declaration in FMJ form, within 30 days of arrival is mandatory for resident Bangladeshi nationals. FCs brought in (and declared in FMJ (Foreign Exchange Declaration Form) form with customs authorities for amount exceeding US$10,000 or equivalent) by the nonresidents/foreigners may be encashed with AD bank/MC, retained, or deposited into FC accounts with AD banks. The unused portion of the FCs may be taken back at the time of departure from Bangladesh. However, a copy of the declaration form of FC in FMJ must be retained.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

		FC account holders may withdraw their balances and take it out up to US$5,000 in notes/coins and for amounts above that the remaining is withdrawn in another currency. Foreign tourists may reconvert the unspent taka to FC from the same AD from which the FC was encashed earlier on presentation of the encashment certificate and take out at the time of departure from Bangladesh. Likewise, they may reconvert the unspent taka to FC from any licensed MC by submitting the encashment certificate. However, in case of MC, the amount of reconversion may not exceed US$500 or equivalent. Bank booths situated in departure lounges of international airports in Bangladesh may provide reconversion facility up to US$100 or equivalent on presentation of encashment certificate.
On imports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Residents and nonresidents may bring in up to Tk 10,000 in domestic currency.
Foreign currency	No.	The amount that may be brought in without declaration when returning from a visit abroad is US$10,000 or equivalent other FCs (in cash, bank draft etc.). Amounts in excess of $10,000 must be declared to the customs authorities in form FMJ.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Held domestically	Yes.	Residents may open and maintain RFCDAs with FE brought in at the time of their return from travel abroad. However, proceeds of export of goods or services from Bangladesh or commission arising from business deals in Bangladesh may not be credited to such accounts. Balances in such accounts are repatriable abroad through banking channel and may also be used for travel. This account may be opened in US Dollars, Euros, Pound Sterling or Japanese yen. Interest in FE is payable on balances in such accounts. FC accounts may be opened in the names of (1) the Diplomatic Bonded Warehouse (duty free shops) licensed by the Custom Authorities; (2) local and joint venture contracting firms employed to execute projects by foreign/ international agencies; (3) resident Bangladesh nationals working with foreign/international bodies operating in Bangladesh provided their salary is paid in FC; (4) foreign nationals residing in Bangladesh for six months or more; (5) foreign nationals temporarily residing in Bangladesh holding a residential or working visa valid for not less than six months; (6) branch offices/liaison offices of foreign companies operating under approval from Bangladesh Investment Development Authority (BIDA) or other competent authority. Exporters of goods and services may deposit a certain percentage of the repatriated export proceeds in Exporters' Retention Quota (ERQ) accounts with the concerned ADs in USD, Pound Sterling, Euro or Japanese Yen. Balances in these accounts may be used by the exporters for bona fide business purposes without prior approval of BB. FE from the ERQ account cannot be used for investment abroad by the exporter. Transfer of unencumbered FC between the ERQ accounts of same exporter maintained out of export receipts with different ADs is permissible for bona fide transactions, settlement of import liability and repayment of authorized foreign loan of their subsidiaries/sister concerns. ERQ account may be kept as interest bearing renewable term deposits with the concerned ADs. ADs may effect advance payment not exceeding US$25,000 or its equivalent from the ERQ account against bona fide business purposes following certain terms and conditions.

Export-oriented shipbuilders in Bangladesh are allowed to open and maintain FC accounts in ADs for retaining advance remittances from abroad against ship exports. Balances of these accounts may be used for payment of input procurements. Separate FC accounts may be opened for each ship for receiving and payment on per ship basis. Such account must be closed within one month of delivery of the ship to the foreign buyer by transferring the balance of the account in usual retention quota account or by converting the balance into Taka.

To facilitate the payments in FC for handling of free-on-board (FOB) imports from their receipts in FC against handling of FOB exports, shipping companies, airlines and multimodal transport operators licensed as freight forwarders by Customs Authorities can open and maintain accounts in USD or other freely convertible currencies with ADs in Bangladesh.

Pursuant to Paragraph 30, Chapter 13 and Paragraph 4, Chapter 20 of the Guidelines for Foreign Exchange Transactions-2018 (GFET), Volume-1, ADs are allowed to credit foreign equity, authorized foreign loan and export proceeds in FC accounts of enterprises (Type A, B, and C) operating in specialized economic zones like EPZs, Economic Zones (EZs), and Hi-Tech Parks (HTPs). Eligible enterprises may also receive inward remittances, legitimate receipts against short weight claim, quality claim, freight charge of sample, insurance claims, reimbursement of expenses for samples from buyers or parents, etc. Prior permission of the BB is not required for issue of shares in favor of nonresidents against foreign investment in Bangladesh.

Permissible income earned by expatriates and dividend payable to foreign shareholders may be credited to their FC accounts maintained in Bangladesh. Crediting these accounts is treated as outward remittance, while encashment of balances is treated as inward remittance. Purchase of shares with funds held in FC accounts is treated as foreign investment. Declared dividend may be used with treatment as inward remittances for reinvestment in Bangladesh through purchase of shares in existing companies and/or other companies.

Pursuant to the Banking Regulation and Policy Department (BRPD) Circular Letter No 16, of March 11, 2021, certain banks are allowed to open accounts through online application received via website/web portal/app of banks or Government service providing entities like BIDA, Bangladesh Economic Zones Authority, Bangladesh Export Processing Zones Authority, Bangladesh Hi-Tech Park Authority, etc. under their one-stop service facilities.

Temporary NRTAs and temporary FC accounts may be opened in the name of proposed companies of foreign investors contemplating to invest in Bangladesh. Designated banks must observe Simplified Due Diligence in opening these temporary accounts and the regular Customer Due Diligence (CDD) procedures before transferring balances held in these temporary accounts to the regular accounts immediately after incorporation of the companies along with other relevant instructions.
In terms of Section 18(2) of the FERA, 1947 (amended), BB has accorded general authorization to banks/nonbank financial institutions (NBFIs), including resident individuals and institutions, for extending Taka loans to foreign owned/controlled companies. Effective June 21, 2023, ADs may retain FC sent by foreign investors to invest in Bangladesh. In this context, ADs may open temporary FC accounts in the names of the proposed companies of foreign investors for funds remitted from abroad on account of equity and regular FC accounts in the names of local companies which will issue shares in compliance with regulatory instructions on completion of the registration/commencement of the business, new FC accounts in the names of the companies may be opened by transferring the fund held in temporary FC account. The tenure of FC accounts is one year from the date of opening of such accounts, subject to closure immediately at the end of the prescribed time after encashment of the fund, if any, held in the accounts. Effective January 1, 2022, the COVID-19-related measure where banks/nonbank financial institutions were allowed to extend admissible Taka finance against overseas guarantees (preferable bank guarantee/standby LCs) to resident companies irrespective of ownership/controlling status subject to adherence to all applicable credit norms and prudential parameters is no longer in place.

Approval required	No.
Held abroad	Yes.	Resident contracting firms to implement projects awarded by project implementing agencies abroad may open bank accounts in the respective countries jointly with nonresident co-partners to credit payments received against the works and short-term loans proceeds from external sources. Balances held in these accounts may be used for settlement of project-related bona fide payments abroad. FE held by Bangladesh nationals in accounts abroad which were opened and credited while the account holders were working abroad as resident outside Bangladesh are also allowed.
Approval required	No.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	No.
Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	ADs may open convertible taka accounts in the names of foreign organizations or nationals (that is, diplomatic missions, UN organizations, nonprofit international organizations, foreign contractors, consultants) engaged in projects of the government or semi-government agencies and their expatriate personnel who are resident in Bangladesh. These accounts may be credited with FC brought in or remitted from abroad or transferred from a FC account or another convertible taka account and may be debited for payments in FC abroad, for local expenses, for transfers to FC accounts or other convertible Taka accounts or for credits to a non-convertible Taka account. Pursuant to Paragraph 30, Chapter 13 and Paragraph 4, Chapter20 of the GFET-2018, Volume-1, ADs are allowed to credit inward remittance and encashment of funds from FC accounts, receipt from taka sales of factory refuses and unusable portion of raw materials in taka accounts on behalf of enterprises (Type A, B, and C) operating in specialized economic zones EPZs, EZs and HTPs. Eligible enterprises receive inward remittances, legitimate receipts against short weight claim, quality claim, freight charge of sample, insurance claims, reimbursement of expenses for samples from buyers or parents etc. received in FC or local currency accounts of the enterprises.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	ADs are permitted to open FC accounts in the names of (1) Bangladesh nationals residing abroad; (2) foreign nationals residing abroad or in Bangladesh and also foreign firms registered abroad and operating in Bangladesh or abroad; and (3) foreign missions and their expatriate employees. Permissible income earned by expatriates and dividend payable to foreign shareholders may be credited to their FC accounts maintained in Bangladesh. Crediting these accounts is treated as outward remittance, while encashment of balances is treated as inward remittance. Purchase of shares with funds held in FC accounts is treated as foreign investment. Declared dividends may be used with treatment as inward remittances for reinvestment in Bangladesh through purchase of shares in existing companies and/or other companies. Bangladesh nationals working and earning abroad including self-employed Bangladeshi migrants proceeding abroad on employment may open FC accounts in Pound Sterling, US Dollar, Euro, or Japanese Yen even without initial deposits. They may operate the accounts themselves or nominate other persons in Bangladesh and maintain them as long as the account holder desires. These accounts may be credited with remittances sent by accountholders but funds sent by other wage earners may also be credited. ADs may also credits proceeds of convertible FE (currency notes, travelers' checks, drafts, etc.) brought into Bangladesh by the account-holders while on temporary visit to Bangladesh. Payments may be made freely abroad for import of goods and commodities and local disbursements may also be made freely in Taka. Nonresident Bangladeshi (NRBs) maintain FC accounts and NRTAs in Bangladesh. They are also allowed to make direct and portfolio investment in Bangladesh, including investment in saving instruments of Government in the form of time deposits. ADs offer deposit products in taka in the form of savings for a period of one year and above for NRBs to encourage NRBs to save in Bangladesh. Taka loans to such deposit product holders for meeting personal requirements in Bangladesh may be granted keeping the deposit accounts as lien. In case of NRBs residing in Bangladesh permanently after their return, the proceeds may be made available to them either in one time settlement or pension type monthly/quarterly settlement. All nonresident Bangladesh nationals and persons of Bangladesh origin including those having dual nationality and ordinarily residing abroad may maintain interest bearing time deposit accounts named “Nonresident Foreign Currency Deposit (NFCD) Account” with the ADs. Bangladesh nationals serving with Embassies/High Commissions of Bangladesh in foreign countries and also the officers/staff of the government/semi-government departments/nationalized banks and employees of body corporate posted abroad or deputed with international and regional agencies, such as IMF, World Bank, IDB, ADB, etc. shore staff of the Bangladeshi shipping companies, during their assignments abroad may open such accounts denominated in US Dollar, Pound Sterling, Euro, or Japanese Yen; initially with a minimum amount of US$1,000 or Pound Sterling 500 or equivalent.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

NRBs may, after their return to Bangladesh, open NFCD accounts with ADs to credit their retirement benefits, periodical pensions, superannuation benefits, etc. per employment agreement with employers while on service abroad and the balances may be used for settlement of legitimate payments abroad.

Effective August 1, 2022, the interest rate is fixed for new deposits under NFCD accounts: Benchmark reference rate +2.25% is fixed for deposits of 1 year and up to 3 years and Benchmark reference rate + 3.25% is fixed for deposits above 3 years and up to 5 years.

Bank booths operating in airports under license with limited scope from BB may take deposits from NRBs in FC brought in by them for crediting their FC accounts or NRTAs (by converting FC at prevailing exchange rate) maintained with concerned AD bank branches. In case the FC brought in by NRBs differs from account type (that is, USD A/C, GBP A/C, etc.) of the account holders, bank booths convert the currency into relevant FC at the appropriate cross currency exchange rate to effect the deposits.

Foreign nationals and companies registered and/or incorporated abroad, banks, other financial institutions including institutional investors and 100% foreign owned (A-Type) industrial units in the EPZs/EZs in Bangladesh, are also allowed to open and maintain NFCD accounts with ADs with a minimum amount of time deposits of US$25,000 or its equivalent.

All foreign payment obligations by industrial enterprises operating in EZs are met with balances held in their FC accounts. Industrial enterprises operating in Domestic Processing Areas (DPAs) of EZs do not have sources of income in FC. To facilitate transactions for meeting foreign payment obligations, ADs may, on behalf of industrial enterprises in DPAs of EZs, effect outward remittance on account of royalty, technical know-how, and technical assistance fees from taka account.

ADs may open temporary NRTAs in the name of the proposed company/enterprise of foreign investors contemplating to invest in Bangladesh without prior approval of BB. Temporary FC accounts may also be opened by ADs and Offshore Banking Units (OBUs) (in case of Type A enterprises), for funds remitted from abroad as equity by foreign investors. The regulations to open temporary NRTAs and Temporary FC Accounts are equally applicable for proposed companies to be established in EPZs and EZs, subject to observance of the same instructions.

Industrial enterprises producing for the local markets and service sector industries are allowed to remit through their nominated ADs up to 1% of annual sales. This facility applies equally to industrial enterprises operating in domestic processing areas of EZs having sales in Taka. However, in case of the availability of FE in the respective FC accounts, from legitimate sources, of concerned customers, ADs must first use such balances before utilization of their own sources by conversion of Taka funds.

To improve the ease of doing business and reduce the cost of compliance, ADs are no longer required to submit returns/statements in hardcopy to BB. However, ADs must continue reporting the same information in relevant online portals/modules of BB.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

Approval required	No.
Domestic currency accounts	Yes.	For portfolio investment in Bangladeshi shares/securities listed on stock exchanges, the nonresident investor (nonresident person/institutions including nonresident Bangladesh nationals) may open a nonresident investor's taka account (NITA) with any AD in Bangladesh, with freely convertible FC remitted from abroad through normal banking channel or by transfer of funds from the nonresident investor's FC account, if any, in Bangladesh. These balances are also freely transferable to the FC Account (opened as per instructions at Chapter 13, Paragraphs 1 and 2) of the same person with the respective AD as well as remittable abroad in equivalent FE. The NITA may be operated by the account-holder or by a nominee, including the AD. Purchase and sale of shares/securities listed on a stock exchange in Bangladesh is made only through a member/registered broker of the exchange. Purchase of new public issues not yet listed on a stock exchange may, however, be made directly from the company issuing the stock/security. Dividends/interest earnings and sale proceeds on the shares/securities bought through the NITA, after payment of taxes may be credited to NITA and remitted abroad. No loan facilities are allowed by the ADs in the Nonresident Investor's Taka Accounts. The balances held in NITAs of nonresidents may be used to purchase units of open end mutual funds as OTC products; subject to compliance with the instructions. The accounts of individuals, firms, and companies resident outside Bangladesh are designated as nonresident accounts and are treated as accounts of countries of permanent residence of the account holders (GFET-2018, Chapter-14, Section-II).
Convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	Funds from NITAs and convertible taka accounts may be converted freely.
Approval required	No.
Blocked accounts	Yes.	Funds in NRTAs from unapproved payments may be blocked by the BB.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget	No.
Financing requirements for imports	Yes.	For private sector imports on usance terms, the interest rate may be LIBOR plus a markup, according to prevailing market conditions and subject to an overall interest maximum of 6% a year. Importers may also obtain buyer credit for import payments from abroad through ADs for a period not exceeding one year; the overall interest cost may not exceed 6% a year. To facilitate short-term import finance, ADs, on behalf of industrial importers, may issue repayment bank guarantees without the BB approval favoring International Islamic Trade Finance Corporation extending short-term buyer's credit up to 180 days for import of industrial raw materials for own use by importers, on sight basis. Effective January 1, 2022, until June 30, 2022, the usance period for imports of industrial raw materials including back-to-back imports, and imports of agricultural implements and chemical fertilizers under supplier/buyer credit may be extended up to 270 days. (Previously, valid until December 31, 2021, for facilitation of trade transactions in the context of COVID-19, the usance period of back-to-back LCs opened under supplier/buyer credit could be extended on banker–customer relationship within the admissible rate of interest up to 180 days, as additional time from the permissible period of 180 days, for bona fide grounds required to settle the payments. With a view to facilitating export trade during COVID-19 without requiring permission of BB, input procurements under back-to-back LCs/usance LCs could be issued with realization clause on behalf of exporters operating outside specialized zones provided: (1) ADs verified the execution of the export orders; (2) there was a transparent arrangement under which suppliers were in agreement to accept the relevant LCs with realization clause; and (3) LC liabilities would not be settled under "net-off" arrangement with export proceeds. Effective July 1, 2022, the usance period imports of industrial materials, agricultural implements, and chemical fertilizers under supplier/buyer credit was set to 180 days. Effective January 1, 2023, it was increased to 360 days for 6 months. Effective July 1, 2023, the 360-day policy was extended for 6 months. ADs may open LCs on behalf of industrial units to import necessary spare parts of capital machineries for own industrial use up to 360 days usance basis. For such deferred payment imports, the prices must be internationally competitive and all in cost including usance interest must not exceed 6% a year. The all-in-cost ceiling per year for usance period against imports under supplier/buyer credit was set at 6-month LIBOR plus 3.5% spread (maximum). Alternative reference/benchmark rate in the currency of financing, declared by competent bodies, may be applied with prescribed markup of 3.5% a year for permissible usance import under supplier/buyer credit. Where forward-looking reference/benchmark rate with tenure-link is absent, the relative rate applied as reference/benchmark rate for import finance may be compounded in arrears to calculate effective interest for the tenure of credit. In case of risk-free reference/benchmark rate to be applied for financing, adjustment for risk premium not exceeding 2.5% a year on markup of 3.5% may be added with reference/benchmark rate compounded in advance or in arrear as necessary, for the relative tenure. Exporters are allowed to use the unencumbered balances held in the single pool within 30 days to meet the import payments of exporters' subsidiaries/sister concerns.

Minimum financing requirements	Yes.	Generally, banks are allowed to decide on the cash margin of LCs for imports on the basis of banker–customer relationship. In light of the COVID-19 recovery and the Russia–Ukraine conflict, effective April 11, 2022, banks must ensure a minimum of 25% cash margin on imports except for certain essential products. Effective May 10, 2022, the margin for opening import LCs was increased to a minimum of 75% for luxury products and 50% for other products except for certain essential products. Effective July 4, 2022, these requirements were increased to 100% and 75%, respectively.
Advance payment requirements	Yes.	Advance payments up to the equivalent of US$10,000 for imports of any permissible items do not require a repayment guarantee. The limit of advance payment from ERQ accounts is US$25,000 or its equivalent. To facilitate urgent medical imports required for containment of COVID-19, ADs could effect, without repayment guarantee, advance payment up to US$500,000 or equivalent other FC for import of coronavirus related life-saving drugs, medical kits/equipment and other essential medical items. This facility was valid until December 31, 2021, and is no longer in force effective January 1, 2022.

Advance import deposits	Yes.	Generally, banks are allowed to decide on the requirements for advance import deposits on the basis of banker–customer relationship. In light of the COVID-19 recovery and the Russia–Ukraine conflict, effective April 11, 2022, banks must ensure a minimum of 25% cash margin on imports except for certain essential products. Effective May 10, 2022, the margin for opening import LCs was increased to a minimum of 75% for luxury products and 50% for other products except for certain essential products. Effective July 4, 2022, these requirements were increased to 100% and 75%, respectively. Banks are allowed to set margin requirements for LCs based on banker–customer relationship for the following products/sector: (1) effective December 14, 2022, import of rice, wheat, etc.; (2) effective December 22, 2022, import of goods related to production of engine oil/lubricants; (3) effective June 20, 2023, import of Cottage, Micro, Small and Medium Enterprises (CMSME) and several items of commercial importers such as (a) spare parts of industrial machinery; (b) textile raw materials, chemicals and ancillary products; (c) plastics and packaging items and their raw materials; (d) medical equipment, accessories and reagents; (e) of UPS/IPS parts and accessories; (f) security related products; (g) hardware products complementary to locally manufactured products related to construction, steel sheet, H-beam etc.; (h) computers /laptops and their accessories; (i) Information-Communication Technology (ICT), Internet, cybersecurity-related hardware products; and (j) vehicle spare parts, tires, tubes and other related products.
Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports	Yes.	ADs must observe the following procedures during importation through land ports: (1) Only one port of entry (land port) may be named in the LC. (2) A copy of the LC and subsequent amendments, if any, including other relevant information, must be sent to the land port authority. (3) Sample signatures of the officials working at the import-export desks of the ADs concerned, along with their contact phone and fax numbers, must be supplied to all land ports. (4) ADs' agents or representatives must obtain directly from the land port involved a list of goods entering Bangladesh, a certified invoice, and a bill of entry showing entry of the goods for inclusion in a database accessible to all ADs. (5) LCs must not contain any reimbursement or debit authority; rather, they must stipulate the following payment terms: "on receipt of documents complying with credit terms, we must effect payment as per instructions of the negotiating bank or collecting bank." (6) LCs covering more than US$5,000 or its equivalent must be sent through the SWIFT system to the advising bank. Pursuant to Order No. 288/2017/Customs/529 of December 21, 2017, transactions between enterprises operating in DPA of EZs and in Tariff Area of Bangladesh may be settled in taka without observance of regulatory procedures such as EXP Form for export and IMP Form for import. To support the transactions by EZ enterprises, irrespective of their ownership status, their liabilities for imports and other permissible expenses may be settled out of the fund held in their taka accounts.
Domiciliation requirements	No.
Preshipment inspection	No.	Preshipment inspection, except for those products prescribed in IPO, 2021–2024, is not mandatory.
Letters of credit	Yes.	Payment against imports is generally permissible only under irrevocable LCs. However, consignment of quickly perishable food goods worth US$50,000 via Teknaf Customs Station, essential food goods and raw materials used in industry worth US$10,000, and capital machinery irrespective of price limit via other custom land stations may be imported against contract without LC as instructed in

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

		IPO, 2021–2024, Chapter 2, Paragraph 8 (2). Capital machinery and industrial raw materials may also be imported without LCs and without limit on value. Recognized export-oriented units operating under the bonded warehouse system may import up to, effective May 1, 2022, six months' (previously four months') supply of their raw and packing materials by establishing import LCs without reference to an export LC. They may also effect such imports by opening back-to-back LCs (either on a sight basis under the EDF or for up to 180 days on a usage basis) against export LCs received by them. ADs may establish LCs on a c.f.r., c.p.t., or f.o.b. basis without the BB approval. Imports may also be on a delivered at terminal (d.a.t.) or delivered at place (d.a.p.) basis. Importation on a c.i.f. or c.i.p. basis requires the permission of the Ministry of Commerce. FE for authorized imports is provided automatically by ADs when payments are due. The maximum import value (through an LC or contract) for a mandatory credit report of foreign suppliers by ADs is US$10,000 if a pro forma invoice is issued directly by the foreign supplier and US$20,000 if orders are issued by the foreign supplier local agent. Effective January 1, 2022, until June 30, 2022, the usance period for imports of industrial raw materials including back-to-back imports, and imports of agricultural implements and chemical fertilizers under supplier/buyer credit may be extended up to 270 days. (Previously, valid until December 31, 2021, for facilitation of trade transactions in the context of COVID-19, the usance period of back-to-back LCs opened under supplier/buyer credit could be extended on banker–customer relationship within the admissible rate of interest up to 180 days, as additional time from the permissible period of 180 days, for bona fide grounds required to settle the payments. With a view to facilitating export trade during COVID-19 without requiring permission of BB, input procurements under back-to-back LCs/usance LCs could be issued with realization clause on behalf of exporters operating outside specialized zones provided: (1) ADs verified the execution of the export orders; (2) there was a transparent arrangement under which suppliers were in agreement to accept the relevant LCs with realization clause; (3) LC liabilities would not be settled under "net-off" arrangement with export proceeds. Effective July 1, 2022, the usance period imports of industrial materials, agricultural implements, and chemical fertilizers under supplier/buyer credit was set to 180 days. Effective January 1, 2023, it was increased to 360 days for 6 months. Effective July 1, 2023, the 360-day policy was extended for 6 months. To facilitate the remittances for import payment against expired LCAF which are restricted without obtaining its revalidation, ADs may effect remittances within 30 months of LCAF issuance against import of capital machinery without obtaining its revalidation. Revalidation of LCAF will not be required for remittances against import out of fund held in FC accounts of importers maintained under general or special authorization from the BB. LCAFs issued for the import of hot-rolled coil, scrap, pig iron, and sponge iron for manufacturing of flat and long steel for use in own factories of steel industries on a 360-day deferred payment basis are valid for remittances for 18 months following the month of issuance. LCAFs may also be signed by lawful representative(s) of the importer.
Import licenses used as exchange licenses	No.	LCAFs are issued by ADs and do not require a separate import license.
Other	Yes.	ADs are not permitted to open new LCs for importers who have failed to submit the bills of entry of imports or customs-certified invoices as evidence of actual importation of such goods within the stipulated time period.

Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.	Effective April 20, 2022, to simplify import transactions, the requirement of LCAF is phased out through IPO 2021-2024. Incoming passengers irrespective of their resident status may bring into Bangladesh gold or silver in bullion/ingot up to the prescribed limit in terms of relevant baggage rules in force issued under the Customs Act, 1969.
Positive list	No.	All the items are importable freely pursuant to the provisions of the IPO 2021–2024 (replacing IPO 2018–2021), except the banned items therein the footnote of the prohibited lists and the list of controlled items subject to fulfillment of certain conditions specified attached concerned page of the IPO 2021–2024 (Annexure-1).
Negative list	Yes.	The goods are not importable if they are specified in the footnotes of the prohibited lists (Annexure-1).
Open general licenses	No.	Unless otherwise specified, no import license is required for imports. Importers with a valid Import Registration Certificate (IRC) may import any kind of goods against the ceiling value, except the goods specified in the prohibited lists.
Licenses with quotas	Yes.	Unless otherwise specified in the IPO 2021–2024, industrial units approved on a regular basis are allowed to import up to 300% of their regular import entitlement of items whose import is banned for commercial purpose and that are importable by industrial consumers only. Industrial units approved on an ad hoc basis are allowed to import up to the maximum value limit, not exceeding 100% of their half-yearly import entitlement.
Other nontariff measures	No.	As a member of the WTO and regional trade organizations, Bangladesh is liberalizing its trade policies gradually and is maintaining non-discriminating measures. The country is also not applying nontariff measures to restrict imports and exports, except the prohibited and restricted items of goods therein the Annexure-1 in line with the WTO Agreements.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	The tariff bands are 0%, 1%, 5%, 10%, 15%, and 25%. A number of goods are subject to supplementary duties.
Taxes collected through the exchange system	No.
State import monopoly	No.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Proceeds from exports must be repatriated within four months of shipment, unless otherwise permitted by BB. On March 19, 2020, because of COVID-19, it was allowed to extend the tenure of realization of export proceeds up to 60 days, as additional time from the specified period of 4 months from the date of shipment, for bona fide grounds. On July 23, 2020, the facility to extend the tenure of realization was increased to 90 days until March 31, 2021. As of April 1, 2021, the facility was extended until June 30, 2021. As of July 1, 2021, the facility was extended until December 31, 2021. Effective March 6, 2023, in case of realization of export proceeds beyond four months, exporters must receive export proceed against the export at the exchange rate of the date within which the export proceeds should have been realized.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	No.
Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	Exporters are required to repatriate export proceeds within the statutory period and to sell the proceeds to ADs exceeding the eligible portion retainable in FE in single pool and ERQ. Industrial units located at specialized EZs may also retain their export proceeds in FC accounts up to the eligible portion. ERQ: Merchandise exporters may retain 60% of repatriated FOB value of their exports in FE in ERQ accounts. For exports of goods having high import content (low domestic value-added), the retention quota is 15% of the repatriated FOB value. Exporters of ICT-related services may retain 70% of net export earnings in ERQ accounts, and service exporters other than ICT-related services may maintain 60% of their export receipts in ERQ. Balances in these accounts may be used by the exporters for bona fide business purposes. Effective July 14, 2022, the retention limits were decreased from 15%, 60%, and 70% to 7.5%, 30%, and 35%, respectively, until December 31, 2022. Effective January 1, 2023, the 15%, 60%, and 70% limits apply. The decreased ERQ limits were reinstated effective September 24, 2023. Single Pool: Export proceeds may be retained in a single pool after encashment of value for settlement of back-to-back LCs. For import payments other than back-to-back LCs, proceeds may be retained in single pool up to 30 days. FC accounts for industrial units in zone areas: Type A industries operating in EPZs may retain 100% of their export earnings in FC accounts. Up to 80% of the repatriated export proceeds of Type B and Type C units other than those in the garments sector may be retained in FC Accounts; for a Type B or Type C unit in the garments sector, up to 75% of the repatriated export proceeds may be credited to FC accounts. The facilities are equally applicable for industries located at EZs and HTPs.

Financing requirements	Yes.	Alternative reference/benchmark rate in the relevant currency of financing, besides LIBOR, may be applied to set the interest rate. The following apply to preshipment financing in FE: (1) Back-to-back LCs: To procure input requirements for execution of export orders, exporters are allowed to open back-to-back import LCs/inland back-to-back LCs in FE against export LCs received by them. Settlement of back-to-back LCs must be made with export proceeds. (2) Supplier/buyer credit: Exporters may obtain supplier/buyer credit from abroad at all-in-cost ceiling of, effective August 16, 2022, the applicable benchmark rate in the relevant currency of financing plus mark-up of 3% a year (previously, 6-month LIBOR plus 3.5% a year). The following apply to post-shipment financing in FE: (1) Bill discounting: To obtain immediate financing, beneficiaries of usance export bills are permitted to avail of bill discounting facilities at overall cost not exceeding, effective August 16, 2022, the benchmark rate applicable to the relevant currency of financing plus mark-up of 3% a year (previously, 6-month LIBOR plus 3.5% a year). (2) Early payment against sales under open account: Export on sales contracts under open account credit terms is allowed against payment enterprise/payment risk coverage by designated institutions abroad with option for early payment arrangement on non-recourse basis. Expenses to exporters for guarantee commission against payment enterprise/payment risk coverage, and interest with relevant charges for early payment against export bills/receivables may not exceed, effective August 16, 2022, the benchmark rate applicable to the relevant currency of financing plus mark-up of 3% a year (previously, 6-month LIBOR plus 3.5% a year). For short-term trade finance, exporters may avail credit at all-in-cost ceiling per annum at the secured overnight financing rate (SOFR) + 3.5% effective September 28, 2022.

Documentation requirements	Yes.	Declaration of exports: Declaration on EXP Form must be submitted by exporters to the Customs Authority or another relevant authority, such as BB, which specifies that FE representing full export value of the goods has been or will be disposed of in a manner and within a period specified by the BB. BB introduced an electronic option to submit EXP Form, with flexibility for amendments by exporters through BB online reporting portal for export of goods prior to customs formalities. Drawing/Endorsement of shipping documents: Transport documents such as bills of lading and any other documents of title to cargo must be drawn only to the order of an AD designated by the respective exporter; airway bills and any other documents of title to cargo must be drawn to the order of a bank in the country of import nominated by the AD designated by the respective exporters for export of goods by land route or by sea or by air, with exception for exports from Type A industrial units located in the EPZs/EZs. Transport documents may be issued to the order of importer or other designated parties against full export proceeds received in advance through normal banking channels. Such issuance is also permitted for export under open account credit terms against payment enterprise/payment risk coverage by designated institutions abroad. The ADs to whose order the relative transport documents are drawn must endorse the same to the order of their correspondents abroad. However, documents may be endorsed to importer or other designated parties before sending documents for collection provided export proceeds in full are received through banking channels. Submission of export documents: Exporters must submit a full set of export documents within 14 days of shipment to ADs.
Letters of credit	Yes.	In addition to LCs, exports under contract are allowed.
Guarantees	No.
Domiciliation	No.
Preshipment inspection	No.
Other	Yes.	Exporters are allowed to export on ex-works (EXW); free carrier (FCA); FOB; free alongside ship (FAS); cost and freight (CFR), cost, insurance and freight (CIF); carriage paid to (CPT); and carriage and insurance paid to (CIP) basis provided the terms are stipulated in the relevant LCs or sales contracts.
Export licenses	Yes.	According to the Export Policy 2021–2024, effective March 23, 2022, exports of 15 (previously 16) products are prohibited. Exports of 17 (previously 15) products are allowed under certain conditions. Some of these items are restricted for ensuring adequate supply in the domestic market.
Without quotas	Yes.
With quotas	No.
Export taxes	Yes.
Collected through the exchange system	No.

Other export taxes	Yes.	Exports of rice bran, unmanufactured tobacco; tobacco refuse, cigars, cheroots, cigarillos, and cigarettes of tobacco or of tobacco substitutes, other manufactured tobacco, and manufactured tobacco substitutes; homogenized or reconstituted tobacco extracts and essences, cotton waste, and building bricks are taxed.

Payments for Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Controls on these transfers	Yes.	Payments for invisible transactions related to authorized trade transactions are generally not restricted.
Trade-related payments	Yes.	ADs may pay freight charges to foreign shipowners for ships chartered by importers in Bangladesh without the BB approval. Importers may make payments of freight charges for f.o.b. imports as declared in an LCAF to the shipping lines/airlines/licensed freight forwarders in FC. Shipping lines/airlines may also accept payment in FC from freight forwarders for handling of f.o.b. exports. FC deposited in FC accounts of shipping lines/airlines against freight charges on f.o.b. exports from licensed freight forwarders may be used for outward remittances on account of surplus earnings. Balances in FC accounts must first be used for outward remittances before use of local currency funds. AD banks must ensure the encashment of adequate FC by the shipping lines/airlines to meet local expenses in case of shortfall in local currency funds. In view of wider scope of fund sources in Bangladesh, the legitimate charges (charges of demurrage, detention, handling, or equivalent charges) in addition to freight charges are also allowed to be considered for calculation of remittable surplus of foreign shipping lines/their agents working in Bangladesh subject to deduction of taxes and commission. The list of permissible debits from NRTAs includes, subject to approval or reporting requirements, outward remittances in FC for the purposes of permissible procurement of goods and services from abroad for institutional account holders. To facilitate smooth operations of branches of foreign banking companies in Bangladesh, ADs are allowed to remit head office expenses without prior approval from the BB subject to observance of some instructions which is allocated by the head office to their branches in accordance with standard practices. Funds from Personal FC accounts may be used for payment of admissible imports in terms of the IPO in force. Effective January 1, 2022, until June 30, 2022, the usance period for imports of industrial raw materials including back-to-back imports, and imports of agricultural implements and chemical fertilizers under supplier/buyer credit may be extended up to 270 days. (Previously, valid until December 31, 2021, for facilitation of trade transactions in the context of COVID-19, the usance period of back-to-back LCs opened under supplier/buyer credit could be extended on banker–customer relationship within the admissible rate of interest up to 180 days, as additional time from the permissible period of 180 days, for bona fide grounds required to settle the payments. With a view to facilitating export trade during COVID-19 without requiring permission of BB, input procurements under back-to-back LCs/usance LCs could be issued with realization clause on behalf of exporters operating outside specialized zones provided: (1) ADs verified the execution of the export orders; (2) there was a transparent arrangement under which suppliers were in agreement to accept the relevant LCs with realization clause; and (3) LC liabilities would not be settled under “net-off” arrangement with export proceeds. Effective July 1, 2022, the usance period imports of industrial materials, agricultural implements, and chemical fertilizers under supplier/buyer credit was set to 180 days. Effective January 1, 2023, it was increased to 360 days for 6 months. Effective July 1, 2023, the 360-day policy was extended for 6 months. Effective January 6, 2022, the EDF limit for individual member mills of Bangladesh Textile Mills Association (BTMA) and Bangladesh Garment Manufacturers and Exporter Association (BGMEA) is US$30 million (previously US$25 million). Extension of EDF loans for a period of 90 days up to 270 days pursuant to Paragraph 3 of FE Circular No. 45 of December 31, 2017, still applies.

Prior approval	Yes.	Up to 5% of export receipts (up to 33.3% in the case of books) may be remitted abroad for commissions without the BB approval.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Payment abroad of commissions or discounts and remittances for operating expenses is subject to indicative limits and verification. Purchases by individuals in border markets, from the respective local currency, are limited to the equivalent of US$100. Besides the ERQ, the remittable amount for information technology (IT) and/or software firms is US$30,000. Within this limit, the amount that can be made through international cards (ICs) is US$6,000. To facilitate export trade in meeting urgent needs, ADs are allowed to provide remittance facilities to the exporters for bona fide service payments to beneficiary's bank account abroad up to US$5,000 or equivalent.
Investment-related payments	Yes.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	Yes.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	ADs may remit dividends to nonresident shareholders without the BB approval on receipt of an application from the company concerned. Applications must be supported by an audited balance sheet; a profit and loss statement; and a board resolution declaring to the head office dividends from profits earned from foreign firms, banks, insurance companies, and other financial institutions operating in Bangladesh. No approval is required for remittances on loans if a loan agreement has been cleared by the BIDA. Local stock brokerage firms acting in Bangladesh on behalf of foreign stock brokerage firms may repatriate, without the BB approval, a share of commission earnings to the respective foreign firms against services rendered to foreign portfolio investors for investment in Bangladesh. Private sector industrial enterprises approved by BIDA may release FE on account of royalty, fees for technical knowledge or technical assistance, and franchise fees to foreign persons or institutes through AD banks in accordance with the prescribed manner as defined by BIDA (BIDA guidelines of March 20, 2021, further circulated through FE Circular Letter No. 7 of April 11, 2021). Submission of documents against dividends payable to foreign shareholders on behalf of enterprises operating in EZs/HTPs/EPZs (specialized zones) was waived pursuant to Paragraph 9, Chapter 20 of GFET.
Payments for travel	Yes.

		equivalent an adult passenger a calendar year from US$5,000 and US$7,000 for travel to South Asian Association for Regional Cooperation (SAARC) member countries (Afghanistan, Bangladesh, Bhutan, India, Maldives, Nepal, Pakistan, and Sri Lanka) and Myanmar, and for travel to other countries, respectively. For minors (below 12 years of age), the applicable quota, as before, is half the amount for adults. The entire unused balance may be released to individuals traveling abroad with a one-way ticket, if it is for valid job or migration purposes. ADs may release FE without visa to the resident Bangladesh nationals proceeding to the countries/zones with provision of visa on port of entry/arrival basis up to the unused annual travel quota entitlement applicable for the country concerned subject to complying with other relevant instructions. The facility will also be applicable for official visits abroad by the officials of government/semi-government and autonomous bodies. ADs and licensed MCs may release FE on account of overseas allowances of the cockpit and cabin crews of Biman Bangladesh Airlines Ltd. Releasable FC in cash US dollar notes for outgoing Bangladeshi residents is US$5,000 a person a trip from their annual entitlement applicable for personal travel quota/business travel quota/treatment abroad/immigration/higher education or other specially or generally approved purposes. The remainder or full amount of quota may be released in other freely convertible FCs in cash or in ICs. The business travel quota entitlement was revised in 2014. New exporters, importers, and producers for the local market are entitled to FE for travel abroad of US$400 a day, subject to a limit of US$4,000 a trip and US$10,000 a calendar year. Established exporters may also use balances in their ERQ (15% of exports of goods with high import content, such as ready-made garments (RMG), and 60% of repatriated export proceeds of merchandise and services) for business travel abroad. Senior-level (top two tiers) expatriates in Bangladesh under valid visas and work permits are entitled to the same business travel allowance as Bangladesh nationals, which may be used through international credit/debit cards. Higher amounts require documentation. FE quota for business travel abroad is also applicable for local agents operating in Bangladesh on behalf of foreign principals. ADs may release FE in favor of private sector participants for attending seminar, conference, workshops, training, etc., abroad up to US$400 per diem irrespective of the countries of destination.
Personal payments	Yes.
Prior approval	Yes.	Foreigners retiring from Bangladesh do not need approval to transfer genuine savings from salaries/benefits, retirement benefits such as provident funds and pensions, and gratuities due under an employment contract approved by the BIDA. Permissible debits from NRTAs include, subject to approval or reporting requirements, outward remittances in FC for subsistence expenses for individual account holders and their family members in their country of residence.
Quantitative limits	Yes.	Up to US$10,000 or its equivalent may be obtained for medical expenses without approval. Larger amounts require the BB approval, subject to submission of supporting documents. ADs may remit the registration fee to the bank accounts of the beneficiaries for medical checkup of migrant workers, the fee in case of invoices specifying details of the checkup and deduction of applicable taxes.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	FE for education is available up to the cost of tuition and living expenses, as estimated by the educational institution concerned. Students are allowed to have travel entitlement (entire unused travel quota) against a one-way ticket when proceeding abroad for study.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

		Permission is not required for the remittance of fees for approved undergraduate, postgraduate, diploma, and professional courses. ADs may release FE for study of Bangladeshi students in permissible courses abroad in favor of the designated intermediary payment processing entity. Because of the concern that students intending to study abroad are in some cases required to pay a Health Insurance fee as a prerequisite for Visa/Admission, ADs are allowed to release FE on account of Health Coverage/Health Insurance/Medical Insurance fee, provided such fees are mandatory for Visa/Admission in permissible courses supported by documentary evidence from the concerned educational institution. FE is available for the support of dependents abroad, on presentation of a certificate from the Bangladesh Embassy in the country concerned, up to a reasonable level, which is based on prevailing prices. Applications for FE for studies abroad and for family maintenance are approved on verification of their validity. FE may be remitted for right of landing/permanent residence fees required by foreign immigration authorities for Bangladesh nationals permanently emigrating abroad. ADs may release FE toward remittance of publication-related fees for publication of articles in reputed international journals written by resident Bangladesh nationals. While effecting remittance, ADs verify the genuineness of the invoices from the publishing companies/publishers abroad and the deduction of applicable taxes.
Foreign workers' wages	Yes.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	Yes.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	ADs are allowed to remit up to 80% of earned net income after tax at any time during the year subject to availability of funds in the bank accounts of foreign nationals working in Bangladesh pursuant to "Form of Application for Private Remittance by Foreign National to Countries Abroad" prescribed in Appendix 5/81 of GFET (Annexure-I) as amended. The remaining 20% of foreign nationals' net income is remittable at the end of the financial year on completion of income tax assessment, supported by certificate issued by the tax authority. ADs are also allowed to remit foreign nationals' net income from the employers' FC Account opened and maintained for this purpose abroad where the family members of the foreign employees reside.
Credit card use abroad	Yes.	Payment in FE may be made through an IC (debit/credit/pre-paid) of an internationally recognized issuing company against different entitlements or different account balances. For bona fide business purposes, ADs are allowed to issue international credit card up to 3 top level executives of an exporting firm/organization against their ERQ account and 3 top level executives of an enterprise in EPZs and EZs from one card issuing bank only. ADs may issue international debit cards in favor of eligible persons against their annual travel entitlements subject to observance of several instructions. ADs may endorse and set travel entitlements on relevant passports to concerned Bangladeshi nationals in ICs for multiple years up to their validity subject to compliance with relevant instructions. ADs may allow their cardholder customers to use ICs for online payment not exceeding US$ 300 or its equivalent for a single transaction against purchase of goods and services (such as downloadable application software, e-books, etc.), magazine/newspaper subscription fees and other legitimate goods and services (except prohibited ones) from reputed and reliable sources abroad.

Online payment from Bangladesh may be executed for actual payment against the following transactions, subject to admissible annual entitlements or balances of FC accounts linked to the concerned cards: (a1 Bona fide payments by BASIS member IT/software firms (cf. Paragraph 11, Chapter 19 of GFET) (2) Membership fees, etc. (cf. Paragraph 12, Chapter 19 of GFET) (3) IT expenses (cf. Paragraph 13, Chapter 19 of GFET and FE Circular No. 33 of September 09, 2019) (4) Visa processing fees (cf. Paragraph 14, Chapter 19 of GFET) (5) Hotel booking (cf. Paragraph 16, Chapter 19 of GFET) (6) Mobile phone roaming bills (cf. Paragraph 18, Chapter 19 of GFET).

For online purchase of air tickets by travelers before proceeding abroad for subsequent air travels between destinations outside Bangladesh, ICs may be used. Bangladeshi travel operators may also provide such ticketing services to travelers for movements between destinations outside Bangladesh against payments by ICs. ADs must, under merchant agreements, provide acquiring services to travel operators in Bangladesh for capturing online payments settled through ICs against sales of air tickets for such travels. Acquiring services by ADs may also be applicable for capturing payments against such sales to foreign nationals/nonresidents residing abroad or in Bangladesh. The payments must be retained in margin accounts of travel operators.

ADs may allow annual remittance facilities of US$ 10,000 or its equivalent to a member firm of e-Commerce Association of Bangladesh (e-CAB) for meeting bona fide current expenses abroad through traditional banking channel or a card. In this case, ADs may issue refillable international credit/pre-paid card with US$ 2,000 to the nominated official of the remitter within the limit. Aggregate refills in cards and remittances by banking channel may not exceed a total limit of US$ 10,000 in a calendar year.

Outward remittances on account of royalty, technical knowledge/technical know-how fee, technical assistance fee and franchise fee must follow the guidelines in FE Circular Letter No. 07 of April 11, 2021.

ADs may use IC as alternative to traditional banking channel to effect outward remittances on behalf of customers for permissible payments in accordance with GFET and its subsequent circulars as follows: (1) Remittance for IT expenses as per Paragraph 40, Chapter 10 of GFET for non-cardholder individuals; (2) Membership fees, fees for application, registration, admission, examination, etc. as per Paragraph 9, Chapter 11 of GFET for non-cardholder individuals; (3) Release of FE for study abroad as per Paragraph 10, Chapter 11 of GFET; (4) Remittance of visa fees abroad as per Paragraph 11(B), Chapter 11 of GFET for non-cardholder individuals; (5) Remittance of immigration visa processing fees, evaluation fees, right of landing fees as per Paragraph 12, Chapter 11 of GFET for non-cardholder individuals; (6) Registration/participation fee for attending training, seminar, workshop abroad as per Paragraph 14, Chapter 11 of GFET; (7) Remittance for academic/research journal subscription as per Paragraph 15, Chapter 11 of GFET; (8) Remittance towards publication related fees of articles in international journals as per Paragraph 16, Chapter 11 of GFET;

(9) Release of FE for travel on health ground as per Paragraph 2, chapter 12 of GFET, provided total release through cash and ICs does not exceed the permissible limit; (10) Remittance on account of tour operators out of balances held in FC accounts as per Paragraph 22(f), Chapter 12 of GFET; (11) Periodical remittances to counterparts abroad by travel operators as per Paragraph 2(a), FE Circular No. 40 of September 24, 2020. Effective October 10, 2022, ADs may remit on account of actual payments against relevant invoices of webinar solution services, subject to payment of applicable taxes/levies. The authorization applies for payments against own use by ADs. In case of requirement for online payments against the such services, ADs may issue virtual card or one-time card in the name of the nominated official of the applicant entities. Alternatively, for settlement of such payments, ADs may use International Remittance cards (IRC) issued under FE Circular No. 18 of May 31, 2021.

Prior approval	No.	General approval has been given for the issuance of international credit, debit, and prepaid cards for use abroad by resident Bangladesh nationals issued against (1) balances in ERQs; (2) individual annual personal travel quota entitlements; (3) balances in RFCDAs; (4) FE entitlements (established by the government for each person intending to perform Hajj) of approved private Hajj agencies for food and lodging expenses of pilgrims in Saudi Arabia; (5) FE entitlements established by the MOF or an appropriate authority for official or semiofficial visits abroad by government officials, autonomous and semiautonomous institutions, and so forth; (6) per diem FE entitlements for private sector participants attending seminars, conferences, and workshops abroad arranged by recognized international organizations; (7) personal entitlements established yearly by the government for pilgrims intending to perform Hajj; (8) against balance in private FC accounts; (9) against annual entitlement for IT/software firms; (10) against membership fees, examination fees, etc.; (11) against business travel quota entitlement; (12) against IT expenses; and (13) against visa-processing fees. ADs may issue debit cards to NRBs and foreign nationals against the balances held in FE accounts opened and maintained with them. ADs may issue international debit cards in favor of eligible persons against their annual travel entitlements subject to observance of several instructions.
Quantitative limits	Yes.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Transfers may be made up to the amount of the balance in respective FE accounts and respective entitlements.
Other payments	Yes.	Banks may remit registration fees for attendance at training, seminars, and workshops abroad by officials of government, autonomous/semiautonomous entities, and banks and banking training institutions. Banks may also remit registration fees for officials of the private corporate sector and nongovernmental organizations (NGOs) who attend training, seminars, and workshops abroad without the BB permission. ADs no longer need to seek a first-time approval from BB to effect remittances on account of maintenance/support fees of proprietary/specialized software subject to observance of prescribed instructions. Permissible debits from NRTAs include, subject to approval and reporting requirements, outward remittances in FC for permissible procurement of goods and services from abroad for institutional account holders. ADs may remit funds for membership/affiliation fees of local business/professional entities to professional/scientific institutions abroad. AD banks may effect remittance toward the cost of advertisement of Bangladeshi products in foreign electronic and online media in dynamic, image, video, interactive, and/or other formats, after verifying the genuineness and bona fide of the requests through agreement and invoices and after deducting all applicable taxes.

Prior approval	Yes.
Quantitative limits	Yes.	ADs may effect remittances on account of royalties, technical knowledge/technical know-how, technical assistance fee(s) by firms registered with the BIDA subject to the BIDA guidelines of March 20, 2021, further circulated through FE Circular Letter No. 7 of April 11, 2021. Permission of BB is not required for these transactions.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Industrial enterprises producing for local markets and service sector industries are allowed to remit through their nominated ADs up to 1% of annual sales as declared in their previous year's income tax or US$100,000, whichever is higher, for paying legitimate current account payments, such as audit fee, certification fee, commissioning fee, testing fee, and valuation fee.

Proceeds from Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Proceeds of service exports are freely repatriable subject to declaration on Form C. Exporters may also submit Form-C through electronically. However, traditional declaration on EXP Form is not required for export undertaken in non-physical form. Furthermore, declaration on Form C is not required for inward remittance up to US$10,000. Repatriation requirement against export of physical goods is equally applicable for exports of services as defined at Section 2(bbb) of the FERA, 1947. Income against small-value service exports in non-physical form up to US$10,000 a transaction may be repatriated through international marketplaces/platforms or eligible foreign payment operators, for example, Online Payment Gateway Service Providers, payment service aggregators, payment facilitators, and digital wallets. In this regard, service exporters may maintain notional/merchant accounts with international marketplaces/platforms or eligible foreign payment operators to repatriate their income through ADs in Bangladesh.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	No.
Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	Service exporters are required to repatriate service income within statutory period and to sell the proceeds to ADs exceeding the eligible portion retainable in FE in ERQ. Exporters of ICT-related services may retain 70% of net export earnings in FE in ERQ accounts, and service exporters other than ICT-related services may retain 60% of their export receipts in ERQ. Accordingly, on receipt of inward remittances, ERQ account of the exporters may be credited up to the permissible limit at their options and the remainder (or up to full, at exporter's option) must mandatorily be credited in local currency accounts after conversion. Effective July 14, 2022, the retention limit was reduced by half to 35% (for exporters of ICT-related services) and 30% (for other service exporters), respectively, until December 31, 2022. To facilitate small-value IT-Enabled Services exports, Mobile Financial Service Providers (MFSPs) licensed by BB may repatriate export proceeds in association with internationally recognized Online Payment Gateway Service Providers/digital wallets and/or aggregators having operation in multiple countries. To facilitate e-commerce trade in the country, ADs may allow annual remittance facilities of US$10,000 or its equivalent to a member firm of e-Commerce Association of Bangladesh for meeting bona fide current expenses abroad through traditional banking channels or a card. ADs may issue refillable international credit/pre-paid card with US$2,000 to the nominated official of the remitter within the limit. Aggregate refills in cards and remittances by banking channels may not exceed US$10,000 a calendar year. Bangladeshis working abroad may retain their earnings in FE accounts or in NFCD accounts. Unless they have an exemption from the BB, resident Bangladeshis must sell to an AD any FE they receive, whether held in Bangladesh or abroad, within one month of receipt. However, returning residents may keep, in FE accounts in their names, FE they brought in, provided it does not represent proceeds from exports from Bangladesh or commissions earned from business activities in Bangladesh. Residents must declare inward remittances from abroad, except remittances by Bangladeshis working abroad, using Form C for amounts exceeding US$10,000 or its equivalent. Foreigners residing in Bangladesh for more than six consecutive months must sell within one month of the date of receipt FE earned from business conducted in Bangladesh or services rendered while in Bangladesh. ADs are advised to inform individual beneficiaries regarding their option for retention in FC before encashment of inward remittances. Without their consent, ADs should not outrightly encash inward remittances for credit in Taka accounts. ADs should also guide their customers on facilities of outward remittances out of retention amount for bona fide current account transactions pursuant to Paragraph 23(b)(3)(b), Chapter 8 and Paragraph 28(A), Chapter 13 of GFET, and subsequent circulars.

Restrictions on use of funds	Yes.	Balances held in ERQ accounts from proceeds against service exports may be used by exporters for bona fide business needs abroad.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions	Yes.
Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Residents must repatriate and sell to ADs the FE proceeds from all approved capital transactions abroad within one month.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	No.
Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	Residents must repatriate and sell to ADs the FE proceeds from all approved capital transactions abroad within one month.
Controls on capital and money market instruments	Yes.	Pursuant to FERA 1947, no person may, except with the general or special permission of the BB, take or send any security or transfer any security or create or transfer any interest to any place outside Bangladesh. Pursuant to Securities and Exchange Ordinance 1969, no issuer or company incorporated in Bangladesh may, except with the consent of the Commission, make an issue of capital outside Bangladesh.
On capital market securities	Yes.
Shares or other securities of a participating nature	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Nonresidents may purchase shares locally without restriction or approval. Nonresidents may buy Bangladesh securities through stock exchanges against payment in freely convertible currency remitted from abroad through banking channels. Purchase of new public issues not yet listed in a stock exchange may be made directly from the company issuing the stock/security. ADs maintain NRTAs in the names of their overseas branches and correspondents against inward remittance in convertible FCs are allowed to issue shares in favor of the nonresidents by debiting the NRTAs. For the purpose of repatriation of sale proceeds of nonresident equity investment in public limited companies not listed with the stock exchanges and private limited companies, BB accepts the fair value of the shares determined on the date of MoU for share sale–purchase agreement between the buyer and seller based on the latest audited financial statements of the target company. The fair value of the shares must be determined by weighted average calculation of all the 3 valuation approaches (that is, NAV approach, market value approach, and discounted cash flow approach) or on any of the suitable approaches depending on the nature of the company. However, ADs may effect remittances on account of sales proceeds of shares regardless of the amount, the fair value of which is determined by the management of the target companies through NAV approach based on latest audited financial statements submitted together with tax returns, and ADs are allowed to remit sale proceeds without BB approval up to Tk. 100 million or equivalent in FC based on fair value determined by weighted average calculation of three valuation approaches or any of the suitable approaches depending on the nature of the company prescribed in Foreign Exchange Investment Department (FEID) Circular No. 1 of June 5, 2018, whereas for repatriation of sale proceeds below Tk.10 million or equivalent in FC, neither BB approval nor valuation report from independent valuer is required. However, ADs must report the share transactions to the FEID, BB, Head Office, Dhaka, within 14 days of transfer of shares pursuant to Paragraph 2(B), Chapter 9 of GFET. There are no approval requirement or quantitative limitations in force. ADs may effect remittances on account of sales proceeds of shares of nonresidents in private/public limited companies not listed with stock exchanges based on the NAV approach, regardless of the amount. Further, BB's permission is not required to repatriate sales proceeds of shares up to Tk 10 million or equivalent in FC without a valuation report from independent valuers, or to repatriate between Tk 10 million and Tk 100 million or equivalent in FC on account of sales proceeds based on fair value determined using the valuation methods prescribed in FEID Circular No. 1 of May 6, 2018. This applies only to the sale of shares by nonresidents to residents. Post tax dividends and capital gains from sale proceeds of listed shares are credited to NITA and balance lying in NITA are freely remittable abroad. Since inception, nonresident investors purchase shares through NITA under Foreign Exchange Guideline as of May 31, 2009, through the Securities Custodians registered with Bangladesh Securities and Exchange Commission (BSEC) under the Securities and Exchange Commission (Security Custodial Service) Rules, 2003.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Issuance locally by nonresidents is not allowed pursuant to the FERA, 1947. No issuer or company, whether incorporated in Bangladesh or not, may, except with the consent of the Securities and Exchange Commission, (1) make an issue of capital in Bangladesh; (2) make in Bangladesh any public offer of securities for sale; and (3) renew or postpone the date of maturity or repayment of any security maturing for payment in Bangladesh. The Securities and Exchange Commission grants exemption to all issuers or companies except the issuers of listed equity securities, from the provision of Section 2(A)(a) of the Ordinance in respect of raising capital through the issuance of equity security by Notification No. BSEC/CMRRCD/2009-193/223/Admin/94 of June 20, 2019.

Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	These transactions are not allowed.
Controls on credit operations	Yes.
Commercial credits	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Export payments deferred for more than 120 days require the BB authorization.
To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	Effective January 1, 2022, until June 30, 2022, the usance period for imports of industrial raw materials including back-to-back imports, and imports of agricultural implements and chemical fertilizers under supplier/buyer credit may be extended up to 270 days. (Previously, valid until December 31, 2021, for facilitation of trade transactions in the context of COVID-19, the usance period of back-to-back LCs opened under supplier/buyer credit could be extended on banker–customer relationship within the admissible rate of interest up to 180 days, as additional time from the permissible period of 180 days, for bona fide grounds required to settle the payments. With a view to facilitating export trade during COVID-19 without requiring permission of BB, input procurements under back-to-back LCs/usance LCs could be issued with realization clause on behalf of exporters operating outside specialized zones provided: (1) ADs verified the execution of the export orders; (2) there was a transparent arrangement under which suppliers were in agreement to accept the relevant LCs with realization clause; and (3) LC liabilities would not be settled under "net-off" arrangement with export proceeds. Effective July 1, 2022, the usance period imports of industrial materials, agricultural implements, and chemical fertilizers under supplier/buyer credit was set to 180 days. Effective January 1, 2023, it was increased to 360 days for 6 months. Effective July 1, 2023, the 360-day policy was extended for 6 months. ADs may open LCs on behalf of industrial units to import necessary spare parts of capital machineries for own industrial use up to 360 days usance basis. For such deferred payment imports, the prices must be internationally competitive and all in cost including usance interest must not exceed 6% a year. The all-in-cost ceiling per year for usance period against imports under supplier/buyer credit was set at 6-month LIBOR plus 3.5% spread (maximum). Alternative reference/benchmark rate in the currency of financing, declared by competent bodies, may be applied with prescribed markup of 3.5% a year for permissible usance import under supplier/buyer credit. Where forward-looking reference/benchmark rate with tenure-link is absent, the relative rate applied as reference/benchmark rate for import finance may be compounded in arrears to calculate effective interest for the tenure of credit. In case of risk-free reference/benchmark rate to be applied for financing, adjustment for risk premium not exceeding 2.5% a year on markup of 3.5% may be added with reference/benchmark rate compounded in advance or in arrear as necessary, for the relative tenure.
Financial credits	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Except in certain cases, credits are subject to the BB approval.
To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	ADs may obtain short-term and overdraft loans from overseas branches and correspondents for a period not exceeding seven days at a time. Industrial enterprises may borrow funds or make deferred payments for imports for a period beyond 360 days, with BIDA approval. Type A industries in EPZs/EZs may access short-term FC loans from parent companies/shareholders abroad and other Type A subsidiaries/associates operating in EPZs/EZs.

Guarantees, sureties, and financial backup facilities	Yes.	ADs no longer need the BB approval to issue guarantees in FC up to SRIs 200,000 (SRIs, Saudi Arabian riyals) to official pilgrimage (Umrah) service providers in Saudi Arabia. ADs no longer need the BB approval to hold collateral on behalf of foreign bank branches or correspondents with respect to external borrowing by industrial enterprises approved by the BIDA. ADs may on behalf of residents issue bid bonds/performance bonds/guarantees in FC in favor of local project authorities against goods/services procurement tenders financed by the government, subject to regulations. Approval from the BB is also not required for issuing guarantees by the borrowers such as corporate guarantee, personal guarantee, and third-party guarantee, as per loan agreement, favoring foreign lenders in case of external borrowing approved by the BIDA. ADs may issue guarantee in taka or equivalent convertible FC on behalf of foreign-owned/foreign-controlled companies operating in Bangladesh, favoring concerned authorities in Bangladesh against foreign back-to-back guarantee acceptable to them subject to observance of some instructions.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	On behalf of residents, banks may issue guarantees or sureties in favor of nonresidents for permissible current transactions.
To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	Receipt of guarantees or sureties by residents from abroad requires full disclosure of the underlying transaction. ADs may issue guarantee, bid bond, or performance bond in local currency against taka equivalent on behalf of a nonresident firm/company favoring residents in Bangladesh, provided there is a back-to-back FC guarantee with suitable coverage for exchange rate fluctuation from counter guarantee issuing banks abroad.
Controls on direct investment	Yes.
Outward direct investment	Yes.	All outward transfers of capital require approval. For resident-owned capital, approval is granted only in exceptional cases.
Inward direct investment	Yes.	Investment, except in the industrial sector, requires approval. The Foreign Private Investment (Promotion and Protection) Act of 1980 provides for the protection and equitable treatment of foreign private investment, indemnification, protection against expropriation and nationalization, and guaranteed repatriation of investments. There is no ceiling on private investment. Tax exemptions are granted for periods of up to nine years, depending on location.
Controls on liquidation of direct investment	Yes.	For the purpose of repatriation of sale proceeds of nonresident equity investment in public limited companies not listed with the stock exchanges and private limited companies, BB accepts the fair value of the shares determined on the date of MoU for share sale–purchase agreement between the buyer and seller based on the latest audited financial statements of the target company. The fair value of the shares must be determined by weighted average calculation of all the 3 valuation approaches (that is, NAV approach, market value approach, and discounted cash flow approach) or on any of the suitable approaches depending on the nature of the company. However, ADs may effect remittances on account of sales proceeds of shares regardless of the amount, the fair value of which is determined by the management of the target companies through NAV approach based on latest audited financial statements submitted together with tax returns, and ADs are allowed to remit sale proceeds without BB approval up to Tk. 100 million or equivalent in FC based on fair value determined by weighted average calculation of three valuation approaches or any of the suitable approaches depending on the nature of the company prescribed in FEID Circular No. 1 of June

		5, 2018, whereas for repatriation of sale proceeds below Tk.10 million or equivalent in FC, neither BB approval nor valuation report from independent valuer is required. However, ADs must report the share transactions to the FEID, BB, Head Office, Dhaka, within 14 days of transfer of shares pursuant to Paragraph 2(B), Chapter 9 of GFET. ADs may effect remittances on account of sales proceeds of shares of nonresidents in private/public limited companies not listed with stock exchanges based on the NAV approach, regardless of the amount. Further, BB's permission is not required to repatriate sales proceeds of shares up to Tk 10 million or equivalent in FC without a valuation report from independent valuers, or to repatriate between Tk 10 million and Tk 100 million or equivalent in FC on account of sales proceeds based on fair value determined using the valuation methods prescribed in FEID Circular No. 1 of May 6, 2018. This applies only to the sale of shares by nonresidents to residents. Post tax dividends and capital gains from sale proceeds of listed shares are credited to NITA and balance lying in NITA are freely remittable abroad. From February 5, 2020, for liquidation or disinvestment of equity from companies listed on the stock exchange following rules apply: (1) in case of winding up of a company by the Court or subject to supervision of the Court, for remittance of money payable to foreign shareholders, ADs must submit application to FEID of BB, along with an order of the honorable Court evidencing endorsement of the amount determined to be distributed to the shareholders after paying all the liabilities and payments as per law and a certificate confirming that all liabilities in Bangladesh including tax claims and other statutory payment obligations have been fully paid and (2) in case of voluntary winding up of a company, for remittance of money payable to foreign shareholders, ADs must apply to FEID, along with all relevant documents.
Controls on real estate transactions	Yes.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	Remittance of funds for these purchases is not permitted.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	Purchases of real estate by a nonresident with funds from abroad are allowed. ADs were allowed to extend mortgage loans in taka to NRBs working abroad for the purpose of housing in Bangladesh, subject to observance of the existing guidelines of Prudential Regulations for Consumer Financing. The housing finance facility provided to NRBs may not exceed the debt-equity ratio of 75:25.
Sale locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Repatriation of sales proceeds is subject to the BB approval, which is not typically granted.
Controls on personal capital transactions	Yes.
Loans	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	These transactions are not allowed.
To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	These transactions are not allowed.
Gifts, endowments, inheritances, and legacies	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Title transfers to nonresidents by way of inheritance are not restricted, but income and sales proceeds from such assets are transferable abroad with the BB authorization.
To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	Resident Bangladesh nationals must obtain government approval to receive gifts or endowments from a foreign donor. Inheritances must be reported to the BB. Net current income from estates inherited abroad must be repatriated.

Transfer of assets	Yes.	These transactions are not allowed, except for movable personal assets.
Transfer abroad by emigrants	Yes.	These transactions are not allowed, except for standard travel allowances for residents.
Transfer into the country by immigrants	Yes.	These transactions are permitted; transfers exceeding US$5,000 or its equivalent must be declared. They must also comply with customs regulations (for duties) and Ministry of Commerce regulations (for eligibility of entry into Bangladesh).
Transfer of gambling and prize earnings	Yes.	Gambling is prohibited in Bangladesh.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	The BB approval is not required for taka advances through the purchase of checks from foreign embassies, international organizations, or foreign nationals employed by them and drawn on their accounts abroad. Foreign-owned/foreign-controlled companies in Bangladesh that engaged in manufacturing or services output activities for three years or longer in Bangladesh may access taka term loans from the domestic market regardless of the local content in their equity, subject to applicable credit norms and prudential parameters, including the single borrower exposure limit, and debt-equity ratio. Foreign-owned/foreign-controlled industrial enterprises in Bangladesh may access interest-free loans for working capital other than input procurement from parent companies/shareholders abroad for up to one year without prior approval. These loans are available to companies that have not yet obtained working capital financing from the local market. ADs were allowed to extend mortgage loans in taka to NRBs working abroad for the purpose of housing in Bangladesh, subject to observance of the existing guidelines of Prudential Regulations for Consumer Financing. The housing finance facility provided to NRBs may not exceed the debt-equity ratio of 75:25. ADs may extend working capital facilities to Type B (joint-venture) units of EPZs for the procurement of components needed for up to four months' worth of production on the basis of the bank–customer relationship and the customer's ability to repay from export proceeds.
Borrowing abroad	Yes.	ADs may obtain short-term and overdraft loans from overseas branches and correspondents for a period not exceeding seven days at a time.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	No.	The maintenance of these accounts is subject to notification to the BB.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	Yes.	Lending to nonresidents is not allowed, except with the BB approval and in specific cases. Foreign-owned/foreign-controlled companies in Bangladesh that engaged in manufacturing or services output activities for three years or longer in Bangladesh may access taka term loans from the domestic market regardless of the local content in their equity, subject to applicable credit norms and prudential parameters, including the single borrower exposure limit, and debt-equity ratio. Foreign-owned/foreign-controlled industrial enterprises in Bangladesh may access interest-free loans for working capital other than input procurement from parent companies/shareholders abroad for up to one year without prior approval. These loans are available to companies that have not yet obtained working capital financing from the local market. 		operating in Bangladesh, resident persons/companies may purchase commercial papers issued by such companies. ADs were allowed to extend mortgage loans in taka to NRBs working abroad for the purpose of housing in Bangladesh subject to observance of the existing guidelines of Prudential Regulations for Consumer Financing. The housing finance facility provided to NRBs may not exceed the debt-equity ratio of 75:25.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	Lending is subject to the BB approval. ADs may use up to 50% of NFCD balances (1) for loans to exporters for settlement of back-to-back sight LCs for imports of inputs and (2) to discount usage bills of wholly foreign-owned (Type A) and joint-venture (Type B) EPZ units against inputs to exporters. Industrial enterprises may borrow funds or make deferred payments for imports for a period beyond 360 days, with Board of Investment Bangladesh approval. Usance export bills related to direct and deemed exportation of Bangladesh products may be discounted in FE by an exporter's AD with funds received from foreign banking units and correspondent banks and financial institutions and from international financial organizations: the overall cost may not exceed 6% a year.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	Yes.	Purchases are subject to the BB approval.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.
Reserve requirements	No.	Banks have to maintain two mandatory liquid asset ratios: Cash Reserve Ratio (CRR) and Statutory Liquidity Ratio (SLR). The requirements are determined against the average total demand and time liabilities held by the Domestic Banking Operation of a bank. The daily minimum CRR is 3.5% and the biweekly average is 4%. The SLR is maintained with the easily convertible assets (cash, gold, unencumbered approved securities, etc.). The daily minimum SLR for conventional banks is 13% (including the excess amount of CRR) and for Islamic Shari'ah-based banks is 5.50%. Offshore Banking Operation have to maintain CRR and SLR in addition to stated reserve of Domestic Banking Operation. The requirements are determined against average total demand and time liabilities held by banks. The daily minimum CRR and biweekly average CRR requirement for Offshore Banking Operation are 1.5% and 2%, respectively. Although this is a reserve requirement, the ratios are calibrated by BB as macroprudential tool in addition to using it as a monetary policy tool. The existing CRR and SLR are not differentiated by currency.
Liquid asset requirements	No.	The LCR is calculated as High-Quality Liquid assets (HQLA) against the total net cash outflow over the next 30 calendar days. The LCR ratio must not be less than 100%. The Net Stable Funding Ratio (NSFR), in line with Basel III framework, is defined as the Available Amount of Stable funding against the Required amount of Stable funding. The ratio must be greater than 100% on a quarterly basis. The existing LCR and NSFR are not differentiated by currency, and the FC liabilities are included in the calculation of LCR and NSFR.
Interest rate controls	Yes.	Banks must maintain interest rates on FC deposits in line with international market rates, while they may freely determine at what interest rate they offer on local currency deposits with no restrictions or requirements.
Credit controls	No.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts held by nonresidents	No.

Changes during 2022 and 2023

Exchange Arrangement

Classification
Other managed arrangement	05/17/2022	Since May 2022, the exchange rate increased its flexibility while still being managed. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified to other managed from crawl-like.
Monetary policy framework
Monetary aggregate target	07/01/2023	The monetary policy framework of Bangladesh has shifted to an interest rate targeting framework from a monetary targeting framework. Instead of monetary aggregate targeting, Bangladesh bank introduced a policy interest corridor which allows policymakers to adjust interest rates from previously focusing solely on controlling monetary aggregates.
Exchange subsidy	01/01/2022	The incentive against workers' remittances was increased to 2.5% from 2%.
Foreign exchange market
Spot exchange market	09/11/2022	Bangladesh Foreign Exchange Dealers' Association issued a notification for AD banks regarding policy for exchange rates in foreign exchange dealings: from this day, for settling import bills and other outward remittances, banks may charge a maximum of Tk. 1 over the weighted average buying rate of export proceeds and inward remittances. Banks also set the exchange rate in the interbank market emerging from this policy.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted
Held domestically	01/01/2022	The COVID-19-related measure where banks/nonbank financial institutions were allowed to extend admissible Taka finance against overseas guarantees (preferable bank guarantee/standby LCs) to resident companies irrespective of ownership/controlling status subject to adherence to all applicable credit norms and prudential parameters is no longer in place.
	06/21/2023	ADs may retain foreign currency (FC) sent by foreign investors to invest in Bangladesh. In this context, ADs may open temporary FC accounts in the names of the proposed companies of foreign investors for funds remitted from abroad on account of equity and regular FC accounts in the names of local companies which will issue shares in compliance with regulatory instructions on completion of the registration/commencement of the business, new FC accounts in the names of the companies may be opened by transferring the fund held in temporary FC account. The tenure of FC accounts is one year from the date of opening of such accounts, subject to closure immediately at the end of the prescribed time after encashment of the fund, if any, held in the accounts.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	08/01/2022	The interest rate is fixed for new deposits under nonresident foreign

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	No.	No restrictions as reported in the latest IMF staff report as of December 31, 2022.
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	No.
Other security restrictions	Yes.	Pursuant to Law of the Republic of Belarus No. 165-Z, of June 30, 2014, on Measures to Prevent Money Laundering, the Financing of Terrorism and Proliferation of Weapons of Mass Destruction (with amendments of May 13, 2020, November 20, 2020, and as of January 6, 2021, and July 17, 2023), parties engaged in financial transactions must freeze and block funds and block financial transactions if a party to a transaction or a beneficiary thereof is an organization or an individual, including a sole proprietor, who are on the list of persons involved in terrorist activities. Banks may deny a client's request to perform a financial transaction (with the exception of receipt of funds) if the financial transaction meets the attributes of suspicious financial transactions that may constitute grounds for declining to perform it per the bank's internal control rules; suspend the financial transaction (except for receipt of funds), for no more than two business days, including the day when the client's order to carry it out must be executed, to authorize the financial transaction or reject it in accordance with the second paragraph hereof; unilaterally decline to execute an agreement to perform financial transactions in writing, if 2 or more decisions have been taken within a span of 6 months to decline the client's financial transactions, giving mandatory written notice to the latter as provided in the banking law; decline to connect the client to the remote banking services system, unilaterally terminate or suspend provision of services through such a system, if the financial transactions in question meet the criteria for rejecting (terminating, suspending) the connection which may constitute grounds for such actions according to the bank's internal control rules; decline to perform a financial transaction if there is evidence that the bank, including the nonresident bank where the beneficiary has an open account, or the beneficiary of the funds is involved in unlawful financial transactions or is subject to sanctions.

Floating	Yes.	The de jure and de facto exchange rate arrangements are classified as floating. The National Bank carries out a flexible exchange rate policy that allows for the use of currency interventions to reduce the daily volatility of the exchange rate, and not for regulating its level. In accordance with the Republic of Belarus Monetary Policy Guidelines for 2023, with a sustained excess supply of foreign currency in the domestic exchange market, the National Bank purchases foreign currency to replenish international reserves. The National Bank does not publish data on its interventions. In early 2022, the Belarusian economy faced strong external shocks amidst growing sanctions and rising geopolitical tensions. In February through March, given elevated demand for foreign currency, the National Bank carried out limited foreign exchange interventions to stabilize the domestic foreign exchange market and ease exchange rate volatility. Subsequently, as the situation stabilized, the National Bank was making foreign currency purchases, with the formation of a net supply of foreign currency. This was facilitated by favorable trends in foreign trade: there was a foreign trade surplus in goods and services in the amount of US$4.3 billion (in 2021 this figure was US$4 billion). Based on the results for 2022, the Belarusian rubel weakened against the Russian ruble by 10.2% and against the US dollar by 7.4%. In January–August 2023, in connection with a resumption of commercial activity, the rate of growth in imports of goods and services outpaced growth in exports, which resulted in a worsening of the balance of goods and services compared to the same period in 2022. At the same time, foreign trade remained balanced on the whole, which contributed to the stable functioning of the domestic foreign exchange market. Overall, between January and September 2023, the Belarusian rubel appreciated against the Russian ruble by 10.5% and it fell by 20.1% against the US dollar.

Official exchange rate	Yes.	The National Bank of the Republic of Belarus (NBRB) sets official exchange rates daily against, effective August 1, 2022, 31 currencies with the addition of the Brazilian real (BRL), UAE dirham (AED), dong (VND), and Indian rupee (INR) to the list. The official exchange rates on a given date correspond to the rates of the Belarusian Currency and Stock Exchange (BCSE) observed on the preceding business day. Official exchange rates of the US dollar, Russian ruble, and Chinese yuan are set on the basis of BCSE trading sessions. Official exchange rates with the other currencies are based on US dollar cross-rates against these currencies. The official exchange rate is used to determine the rubel value of assets and liabilities denominated in foreign exchange. The official exchange rates of additional 47 currencies are set monthly. These rates are calculated on the basis of the US dollar–rubel exchange rate at the close of the most recent BCSE foreign exchange trading session, and their cross-rates against the US dollar in international foreign exchange markets on the last business day of the month. The official rates are valid until the new rates are published for the following month. The official rate is used for transactions with the official sector (customs charges and duties, other foreign-exchange-linked payments payable in local currency) and transactions in which sellers do not specify an alternative exchange rate. The NBRB added, effective July 15, 2022, the Chinese yuan to the list of currencies in the foreign currency basket and assigned the following currency weights when calculating the value of the basket: 50% for the Russian ruble, 30% for the US dollar, 10% for the euro, and 10% for the Chinese yuan. Effective December 12, 2022, the NBRB removed the euro from the list of currencies in the foreign currency basket and assigned the following currency weights when calculating the value of the basket: 60% for the Russian ruble, 30% for the US dollar, and 10% for the Chinese yuan.

Monetary aggregate target	Yes.	The NBRB has a monetary policy targeting framework that sets growth in average broad money as an intermediate target. The rubel base money is the operational monetary policy target. In accordance with the Monetary Policy Guidelines of the Republic of Belarus for 2023, approved by a decree of the President of the Republic of Belarus, the inflation target measured by the CPI is set at 7%8% (December 2023 to December 2022), and average broad money is forecast to grow by 12%–16% (December 2023 to December 2022).

Foreign exchange market	Yes.	The foreign exchange market consists of: (1) the BCSE; (2) the interbank foreign exchange market; and (3) operations involving the purchase and sale of foreign currency between bank/nonbank lending and financial institutions and their customers, including cash foreign exchange operations. Purchases and sales of foreign currency for rubels and conversion of foreign currency take place in the foreign exchange market through banks and nonbank lending and financial institutions licensed by the NBRB. In addition, bank clients are allowed to purchase and sell foreign currency for Belarusian rubels through BCSE without the bank's involvement. The NBRB does not impose limits on exchange rates. No commission is charged for the purchase and sale of foreign exchange in the OTC market. A bank may charge a commission only for the purchase and sale of currency in the BCSE, and the amount is based on the rates set by banks.

Spot exchange market	Yes.	As of June 30, 2023, there were 21 banks and the Republic of Belarus Development Bank Open Joint-Stock Company (OJSC), and 1 bank was in the process of liquidation. Most transactions in the foreign exchange market are spot transactions. Purchases and sales of cash foreign currency for rubels and conversion of foreign currency take place only through banks and nonbank lending and financial institutions licensed by the NBRB for foreign exchange operations with individuals. Individuals are free to buy and sell foreign currency. Purchases and sales of foreign currency between Belarusian banks, between a Belarusian bank and a nonresident bank, and between banks and their corporate clients are performed in the OTC exchange market without restriction. Businesses have the right to perform the purchase/sale of foreign currency in the OTC exchange market, and also through banks in BCSE, including continuous two-way auctions. There are no restrictions on the amounts for the foreign exchange purchase and sale transactions by business entities. No restrictions have been established on the purchase and sale of foreign currency in the currency exchange (BCSE). Resident legal entities and individual entrepreneurs may buy foreign exchange for any current or capital transaction based on a request (or a payment order for transfer with purchase, if appropriate) submitted to any local bank. No supporting documentation (such as contracts and approvals by the NBRB) is required for the purchase of foreign exchange. The purchased foreign exchange is credited to the resident's foreign exchange current account with the local bank and may be kept there for an unlimited period of time until the foreign exchange is used. A request for the purchase of foreign currency does not specify the purpose for which the purchased foreign currency is to be used.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.	The BCSE organizes a trading session through which the NBRB may intervene as necessary.
Foreign exchange standing facility	No.
Allocation	No.
Auction	Yes.	An electronic trading system operates in the BCSE based on the continuous two-way auction principle and negotiated deals. Trading on the BCSE is performed each business day. A two-way auction takes place for four currencies (US dollar, euro, Russian ruble, and, effective July 15, 2022, Chinese yuan), while negotiated deals are used for transactions in other currencies. In a continuous two-way auction system, potential buyers submit their bids for the purchase of foreign exchange, and potential sellers simultaneously submit their offers for the sale of foreign exchange to the system. Trades are performed on a real-time basis when the parameters of a buyer's bid satisfy the parameters of a seller's offer. Under continuous two-way auction exchange trading, the purchase and sale of foreign exchange can be performed by the National Bank, the Republic of Belarus Development Bank OJSC, banks, and nonbank lending and financial institutions, as well as by business entities. There are no limits on the bid-ask spreads or commissions of market participants. Nor are there restrictions on the amount of applications. A participant pays a fine to the BCSE for failure to fulfill or improper fulfillment of net obligations equal to a percentage of the unfulfilled net obligations as specified in an agreement with the BCSE for each day of delay. Information about the results of foreign currency trading is published on the BCSE website and is also disseminated by the BCSE on the basis of agreements on information services concluded with legal entities and individuals.

Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	As of June 30, 2023, there were 21 banks, and 1 bank was in the process of liquidation. Banks licensed by the NBRB and the Republic of Belarus Development Bank OJSC may trade foreign exchange among themselves within the open foreign exchange position limit set by the NBRB. There are no limits on the bid-ask spreads or commissions of market participants. The NBRB does not intervene in the interbank market. The mentioned financial institutions may perform foreign exchange transactions both on the BCSE and in the OTC market.
Over the counter	Yes.	The interbank market operates over the counter.
Brokerage	No.	There is no brokerage system.
Market making	No.	There is no market-making agreement.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	The forward exchange market is regulated by the same provisions as the spot market. The NBRB does not participate in the forward exchange instruments market.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.	Foreign currency transactions between a resident legal entity and a nonresident legal entity are carried out in non-cash form without restrictions. Bilateral payments arrangements	Yes.
Operative	Yes.	In accordance with interstate agreements between the NBRB and the CBs of other countries, including most countries in the CIS, settlements take place in the currencies of the parties involved and in freely convertible currencies. Some agreements also allow settlements in currencies of other CIS countries.
Inoperative	No.
Regional arrangements	Yes.	Belarus has agreements with the Russian Federation and it also participates in the Agreement on the Establishment of a Payment Union of CIS Member Countries. Belarus is a signatory to the Treaty on the Eurasian Economic Union (EAEU Treaty). The specific considerations, grounds, and procedure for the application of a particular nontariff regulatory measure within the EAEU are established under the Protocol on Nontariff Regulatory Measures with respect to Third Countries (Annex 7 to the EAEU Treaty).
Clearing agreements	No.
Barter agreements and open accounts	No.
Administration of control	Yes.	The exchange regulation authorities are the Council of Ministers and the NBRB. The exchange control authorities are the Council of

Licenses with quotas	Yes.	In accordance with Section 2.27 of the Uniform List of Goods for which Nontariff Regulatory Measures are Applied in Trade with Third Countries as specified in Clause 4 of the Protocol on Nontariff Regulatory Measures with respect to Third Countries (Annex 7 to the EAEU Treaty), the following products are subject to import tariff quotas: fresh, chilled, or frozen pork; pork trimmings; frozen boneless chicken meat; and frozen boneless turkey meat. Licenses for imports of pork and poultry within the limits of the tariff quotas are issued by the Republic of Belarus Ministry of Antimonopoly Regulation and Trade. Under the May 29, 2015, FTA between the EAEU and its member states, on the one hand, and Republic of Vietnam, on the other hand, tariff quotas are set for certain types of long-grain rice that originates in Vietnam and is imported into the territories of the member states of the EAEU. Licenses for importing certain types of rice are issued by the Republic of Belarus Ministry of Antimonopoly Regulation and Trade. The FTA between the EAEU and its member states, on the one hand, and the Republic of Serbia, on the other hand, of October 25, 2019, as of July 10, 2021. In accordance with Annex 2 to the Agreement, tariff quotas are set for certain types of goods imported from the Republic of Serbia into the customs territory of the Union in the following amounts: 400 metric tons a year for certain types of cheeses (codes 0406 90 690 0, 0406 90 740 0, 0406 90 860 0, 0406 90 890 0, 0406 90 920 0, 0406 90 930 0, 0406 90 990 1, and 0406 90 990 9 of the EAEU Foreign Economic Activity Commodity Nomenclature); 35,000 liters of pure alcohol (100%) a year for liquors obtained as a result of the distillation of grape wine and grape extracts (codes 2208 20 290 0, 2208 20 890 0 of the EAEU Foreign Economic Activity Commodity Nomenclature); and 2,000,000,000 units a year for cigarettes containing tobacco (codes 2402 20 100 0, 2402 20 900 0 of the EAEU Foreign Economic Activity Commodity Nomenclature).
Other nontariff measures	Yes.	In accordance with Republic of Belarus Law No. 429-Z of August 27, 2008, the government has the exclusive right to import certain types of alcoholic beverages. Implementation has been awarded to legal entities that won government-organized tenders. In accordance with Order No. 4 of the President of the Republic of Belarus of October 18, 2007, and Decree No. 152 of the President of the Republic of Belarus of April 22, 2022, “On Imports of Raw Tobacco and Tobacco Products,” the government has the exclusive right to import raw tobacco and tobacco products. Exercise of this right has been granted to Grodno Tobacco Factory Neman and Tabak-Invest, and for tobacco products to Belarustorg and Energo-Oil. Decree No. 45 of the President of the Republic of Belarus of February 16, 2021, on Imports of Smoke-Free Tobacco Products granted to the state the exclusive right to import smoke-free tobacco products (HEETS-heated tobacco), classified under code 2403 in the Common Foreign Economic Activity Commodity Nomenclature of the EAEU, used in tobacco consumption systems (IQOS). The ability to exercise this right has been granted to Inter Tobacco LLC.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	EAEU is subject to common customs regulation in accordance with the provisions of the EAEU Treaty, the Customs Code of the EAEU, international agreements governing legal relations in the customs sphere, and acts constituting the law of the EAEU. The Common Customs Tariff of the Eurasian Economic Union (EAEU CCT) is a set of import customs duties for goods imported into the common customs territory of the Union from third countries, classified under the common nomenclature for foreign economic activities of the Union (EAEU TNVED). The EAEU CCT applies the following types of duties: ad valorem, calculated as a percentage of the customs value of taxable goods; specific, calculated per unit of taxable goods; and combined, mixing both these types. With a view to improving regulation of imports into the common customs territory of the EAEU, seasonal customs duties may apply in lieu of regular import customs duties, for a period of up to six months a year. EAEU CCT import duty rates apply depending on the country of origin of imported goods and the terms and conditions of imports, in accordance with the laws of members of the EAEU, unless otherwise indicated in the EAEU Treaty. Goods originating in and imported from CIS countries that have an ST-1 certificate are exempt from import customs duties.

With the aim of promoting the economic development of developing and least developed countries, in accordance with the EAEU Treaty, the Union may grant tariff preferences for goods from developing and/or least developed economies using the Union's common system of tariff preferences.

For preferential goods imported into the Union's customs territory from developing economies using the Union's common system of tariff preferences, the import customs duty rates are equal to 75% of the rates under the Union's CCT. For preferential goods imported into the Union's customs territory from least developed economies using the Union's common system of tariff preferences, the import customs duty rates are equal to 0% of the rates provided for under the Union's CCT.

Decision No. 130 of the Customs Union Commission of November 27, 2009, on the CCT Regulation of the EAEU provides for a number of tariff concessions with respect to imported goods, as well as exemptions from import customs duties with respect to technological equipment and spare parts for such equipment; raw materials and supplies imported as part of an investment project in a priority area of activity; equipment, including machinery, mechanisms, and materials that are part of the standard items provided with said equipment; and components (with the exception of those subject to excise taxes) imported at the expense of credits provided by foreign states and international financial institutions in accordance with international agreements by member states; and a number of other concessions.

The collection of indirect taxes and the mechanism for monitoring their payment when goods are imported in mutual trade between member countries of the Union are carried out in accordance with the procedure defined in the Protocol on the Procedure for the Collection of Indirect Taxes and the Mechanism for Monitoring their Payment in the Export and Import of Goods, the Performance of Work, and the Provision of Services (Annex 18 to the EAEU Treaty). In trade relations with all countries, Belarus collects indirect taxes on a country-of-destination basis at the rate established by law.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions	Yes.	In accordance with Law No. 226-Z "On Foreign Exchange Regulation and Foreign Exchange Control" of July 22, 2003, resident legal entities and individuals are not required to seek permission from the NBRB to conduct foreign exchange operations. The law requires that residents (individuals and legal entities) register foreign currency contracts and submit documents and other information on fulfillment of obligations under registered foreign currency contracts in a manner established by the NBRB. Banks are not required to register foreign currency contracts when conducting operations with foreign currency valuable classified as banking operations. Pursuant to Instruction No. 37 of February 12, 2021, "On registration of foreign currency contracts by residents," foreign currency contracts signed between a resident and a nonresident are subject to registration when conducting foreign currency transactions defined therein, if the amount of monetary obligations under the foreign currency contract is not specified or is equal to or exceeds the equivalent of 2,000 base values (for resident individuals) or 4,000 base values (for resident legal entities and individual entrepreneurs) as of the date the contract is signed. The base value in rubels is determined annually by the government; the base value was set at 37 rubels in 2023.

Shares or other securities of a participating nature	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The purchase of shares of Belarusian issuers by nonresidents does not require a license from the NBRB or a license or other permission from the MOF (Securities Department), except that the maximum participation of foreign capital in the banking system of Belarus is 50%. The NBRB terminates the state registration of banks whose founders (shareholders) are foreign investors once the maximum has been reached. Foreign exchange legislation does not restrict these transactions; however, NBRB approval is required for transfer of bank shares by residents to nonresidents. Insurance institutions, including those with foreign investments, must be registered with the MOF. Performance of all types of activities and insurance services requires a special permit (license). When establishing an insurance organization with foreign investment, the proportion of a foreign investor's share is not restricted. However, the share of foreign investors in the authorized capital of any insurance organization may not exceed 30%. If that figure is exceeded, the MOF terminates the registration of insurance organizations with the participation of foreign investors and/or issues special permits (licenses) to such organizations to perform insurance activities. Permission from the MOF is required to transfer shares of Belarusian issuers to a depot loro correspondent account of a nonresident depository that has established a correspondent relationship with the Republic Central Securities Depository. Article 18 of the Republic of Belarus Law on the Securities Market of January 5, 2015, states that in the placement of securities, restrictions may be imposed on their acquisition by nonresidents.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	No.	Nonresidents are not required to have permission from the NBRB or a certificate of registration from the Securities Department of the MOF for the placement of securities. Pursuant to Instruction No. 37 of February 12, 2021, "On registration of foreign currency contracts by residents," foreign currency contracts signed between a resident and a nonresident are subject to registration when residents buy securities issued by a nonresident, if the amount of monetary obligations under the foreign currency contract is not specified or is equal to or exceeds the equivalent of 2,000 base values (for resident individuals) or 4,000 base values (for resident legal entities and individual entrepreneurs) as of the date the contract is signed. The base value in rubels is determined annually by the government; the base value was set at 37 rubels in 2023. According to Articles 23 and 27 of the Republic of Belarus Law on the Securities Market of January 5, 2015, a procedure was put in place for the placement and circulation of securities issued by nonresidents within Belarus. The procedures for admission of the securities of nonresident issuers are determined by the MOF. Pursuant to Article 8 of the Law on the Securities Market, the Council of Ministers of the Republic of Belarus specifies the procedures for the qualification of the issue-grade securities of nonresident issuers as securities in Belarus. Pursuant to Articles 23 and 27 of the Law, placement and circulation of securities of nonresident issuers are allowed only in the organized market.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	Pursuant to Instruction No. 37 of February 12, 2021, "On registration of foreign currency contracts by residents," foreign currency contracts signed between a resident and a nonresident are subject to registration when residents buy securities issued by a nonresident, if the amount of monetary obligations under the foreign currency contract is not specified or is equal to or exceeds the equivalent of 2,000 base values (for resident individuals) or 4,000 base values (for resident legal entities and individual entrepreneurs) as of the date the contract is signed. The base value in rubels is determined annually by the government; the base value was set at 37 rubels in 2023. Pursuant to Law No. 52-Z of the Republic of Belarus on Investment Funds of July 17, 2017, the amount of funds used for the acquisition of financial instruments issued by nonresidents of the Republic of Belarus must not exceed 30% of the value of the assets of a joint-stock investment fund intended for investment, or the assets of a mutual fund.

Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	Foreign placement of shares of domestic issuers does not require permission from the securities market regulator or the NBRB; however, shares of domestic issuers placed abroad must be registered in the Republic of Belarus pursuant to Article 18 of the Republic of Belarus Law on the Securities Market (a requirement related to the exercise of control functions over emission procedures and the correct formation of authorized funds, as well as for statistical purposes). OJSCs in the Republic of Belarus (except for banks, nonbank credit and financial institutions, as well as legal entities that are part of a bank holding company and legal entities owning 5% of the bank's stock or more) may issue and sell shares using foreign depositary receipts to attract foreign investment.
Bonds or other debt securities	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	Purchases of bonds of Belarusian issuers by nonresidents do not require a license from the NBRB or permission from the MOF (Securities Department). Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	Banks and nonbank financial and lending institutions with an appropriate banking license may purchase and sell foreign exchange. Banks may perform these transactions without restriction within the limits of their open foreign exchange position. A banking license is required to engage in banking operations. The definition of "banks" includes banks and nonbank credit and financial organizations that are such in accordance with the legislation of the Republic of Belarus.
Borrowing abroad	No.	Borrowing abroad by banks and nonbank financial institutions is not subject to NBRB approval, registration, or notification.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	No.	Banks may open correspondent accounts in foreign banks in accordance with special permits (licenses) for banking activities.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	No.	Credits granted to nonresidents by banks and nonbank credit and financial organizations are not subject to registration.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	The granting of credits to individuals in foreign currency, including tranches of credits under credit agreements previously entered into, is not allowed in the Republic of Belarus. The requirement with regard to lending to individuals in Belarusian rubels only is established in the Instruction on the Procedure for Providing Funds in the Form of Credit and their Return (Repayment), approved by NBRB Executive Board Resolution No. 149 of March 29, 2018, and also in Article 150 of the Banking Code of the Republic of Belarus. There are no restrictions on making loans in foreign currency to legal entities and individual entrepreneurs.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	No.	The nominal value of bonds which, under the terms of the prospectus, are placed in the territory of the Republic of Belarus, with the exception of government bonds and NBRB bonds, must be denominated in the official unit of currency of the Republic of Belarus. Settlements in foreign currency between residents on resident bonds denominated in foreign currency are prohibited, with the exception of government bonds and National Bank bonds.

Reserve requirements	Yes.	Reserve requirement for funds attracted in foreign currency is set at 16%, and at 4% for funds attracted in domestic currency. The required reserve fund is accumulated in Belarusian rubels.
Liquid asset requirements	No.	The liquidity coverage and net stable funding ratios have been introduced as a requirement to ensure safe operation of banks, as provided for by the Basel III system standards. The value of each ratio is at least 100%. For the Republic of Belarus Development Bank OJSC, only a net stable funding ratio of 100% is established. An LCR is not established. The rules for calculating liquidity ratios and their statutory minimum values established by the National Bank are broadly in line with the recommendations of the Basel Committee on Banking Supervision. In the context of the National Bank's countercyclical measures adopted by NBRB Executive Board Resolution No. 81 of March 18, 2020, on Certain Issues in Regulating the Activities of Banks in 2020, between April 22, 2020, and December 31, 2020, banks were allowed to apply the LCR of 80%. As of January 1, 2021, NBRB Executive Board Resolution No. 298 of September 18, 2020, on Certain Issues in Regulating the Activities of Banks, Nonbank Lending and Financial Organizations, and the Republic of Belarus Development Bank OJSC in 2021, extended the right to apply the LCR of 80% until June 30, 2021. As of July 1, 2021, to December 31, 2021, the LCR value was increased to 90%. Effective March 21, 2022, the LCR was reduced to 80%. Effective May 27, 2022, until year-end, banks in the Group 1 systemically important banks may include an irrevocable credit line opened by the National Bank as part of highly liquid assets for the LCR calculation. Effective January 1, 2023, in accordance with NBRB Executive Board Resolution No. 451 of December 1, 2022, on Certain Issues in Regulating the Activities of Banks, Nonbank Lending and Financial Organizations, and the Republic of Belarus Development Bank OJSC in 2023, the right to apply the LCR of 80% was extended to December 31, 2023.
Interest rate controls	No.	Banks set interest rates on deposits in domestic and foreign currencies. The NBRB may make recommendations to banks about interest rate levels, regardless of the banks' residency status.
Credit controls	No.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts held by nonresidents	Yes.
Reserve requirements	Yes.	Funds raised from nonresident banks and loans and funds received from nonresident clients in foreign exchange are not subject to reserve requirements.
Liquid asset requirements	No.	Liquid asset requirements are the same for deposit accounts of nonresidents and residents. For the LCR calculation, there is no difference between placing residents' and nonresidents' assets into the highly liquid assets category.
Interest rate controls	No.	There are no legislative restrictions for banks' establishing the size of interest rates for bank loans (deposits) of legal entities and individuals depending on whether they are Belarus residents or nonresidents.
Credit controls	No.
Investment regulations	Yes.

Abroad by banks	Yes.	Banks seeking to participate in the authorized fund of another legal entity must obtain a permit from the NBRB in the following cases: (1) acquisition of shares when they are distributed among the company's founders, as well as interest in the authorized capital or stakes in the property of nonresidents; (2) purchase of a unitary enterprise in the form of a property complex and/or shares (an interest) in another legal entity as a long-term financial investment, and/or contribution to raise the nominal (actual) value of shares in such a legal entity, if after such an acquisition and/or contribution, its stake in the given legal entity's authorized capital becomes equal to 5% or more (including cases when previously that stake was 5% or more), except for acquisition of shares (interest) and/or an increase in the nominal (actual) value of shares unrelated to the need for its contribution of additional funds as a result of disposal by other shareholders (partners) and/or redistribution of internal sources of the legal entity; (3) establishment by resident banks of subsidiaries and branches outside the Republic of Belarus and the participation by resident banks in the authorized capital of foreign banks; and (4) transfers to nonresidents based on commitments involving a resident's purchase of real estate abroad. These are prudential regulation requirements (except for Item (4)). In keeping with memoranda of understanding (agreements) on banking supervision between the NBRB and the banking supervisors of individual countries, the parties may provide information regarding a potential investor, report on the issuing of licenses to open subsidiary banks and permits to participate in authorized capital of banks, and share other information.
In banks by nonresidents	Yes.	The maximum participation of foreign capital in the banking system of Belarus is 50%. The NBRB terminates the state registration of banks whose founders (shareholders) are foreign investors once the maximum has been reached. Foreign currency legislation does not restrict such operations, but permission from the NBRB is required in the following cases: (1) acquisition of ownership, administrative control, operational management, or receipt in trust of 5% or more of shares in the authorized capital of a bank as a result of one or more transactions by one legal entity or individual, including a shareholder of the bank, by a group of individuals and/or legal entities connected by an agreement, or by a group of subsidiary or dependent legal entities, as well as all subsequent acquisitions of bank shares by said persons; and (2) an increase in the authorized capital of a bank as a result of funds provided by nonresidents and/or the transfer of bank shares by a resident shareholder to a nonresident. Decree No. 84 of the President of the Republic of Belarus of March 3, 2016, "On issue and circulation of shares using foreign depositary receipts," prohibits issue of additional tranches of shares placed through foreign depositary receipts, sale through foreign depositary receipts of shares issued by banks, nonbank credit and financial organizations registered in the territory of the Republic of Belarus, and those issued by legal entities which are part of a bank holding company, and legal entities that own 5% or more of the bank's stock.
Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.
On resident assets and liabilities	Yes.	The following limits are set for the open positions of banks and nonbank lending and financial institutions in foreign currencies and precious metals: the overall open position for all foreign currencies and precious metals in the form of bank and mint bullion and revalued coins may not exceed 10% of the regulatory capital; the net open position for each foreign currency and precious metal in the form of bank and Limits are calculated generally by type of foreign currency or precious metal in the form of bank bullion, revalued mint bullion, and revalued coins, regardless of whether assets or liabilities apply to a resident or nonresident.

On nonresident assets and liabilities	Yes.	The following limits are set for the open positions of banks and nonbank lending and financial institutions in foreign currencies and precious metals: the overall open position for all foreign currencies and precious metals in the form of bank and mint bullion and revalued coins may not exceed 10% of the regulatory capital; the net open position for each foreign currency and precious metal in the form of bank and mint bullion and revalued coins individually may not exceed 10% of the regulatory capital; the overall open balance-sheet position for all foreign currencies and precious metals in the form of bank and mint bullion and revalued coins may not exceed 10% of the regulatory capital, effective January 1, 2023; the overall open off-balance-sheet position for all foreign currencies and precious metals in the form of bank and mint bullion and revalued coins may not exceed 10% of the regulatory capital, effective January 1, 2023. Limits are calculated generally by type of foreign currency or precious metal in the form of bank bullion, revalued mint bullion, and revalued coins, regardless of whether assets or liabilities apply to a resident or nonresident.
Provisions specific to institutional investors	Yes.	Limits may be established by the Council of Ministers and the NBRB.
Insurance companies	Yes.	Insurance companies must obtain permission from the MOF to increase their authorized capital using funds from foreign investors and/or insurance organizations that are subsidiaries of those foreign investors, and to transfer shares (interest in the authorized capital) to foreign investors and/or insurance organizations that are subsidiaries of those foreign investors. The share of foreign investors in the authorized capital of all insurance organizations must not exceed 30%. If that maximum is exceeded, the MOF terminates the registration of insurance organizations with the participation of foreign investors and/or issues these organizations special permits (licenses) to perform insurance activities.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	Insurance laws do not establish any quantitative limits on the purchase by Belarusian insurance companies of securities issued by nonresidents. But insurance laws establish the following restrictions and requirements: (1) Belarusian state-owned insurance organizations and insurance organizations in which the state holds a stake in the authorized capital equal to more than 50% may not purchase securities issued by nonresidents (either at the expense of insurance reserves or at the expense of their own funds), except for participation in the establishment of insurance organizations and/or insurance brokers outside Belarus and/or the acquisition of interests (shares) in the authorized capital of such organizations (these should be carried out with the permission of the MOF); (2) Belarusian private insurance companies may purchase securities issued by nonresidents at their own expense free from liabilities and legal requirements (for example, minimum authorized fund resources are placed on bank accounts in the Republic of Belarus) in compliance with the diversification principle. (3) Insurance organizations may place no more than 30% of insurance reserves under trust management for a specific term with banks in the Republic of Belarus or other resident commercial organizations operating in the Republic of Belarus and acting as trust managers for at least three years. Funds placed under trust management may be invested, inter alia, in securities issued by governments, CBs (national), banks of foreign states, international financial institutions and development banks as per the list and criteria defined by the MOF.

Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	There are no quantitative restrictions on the portfolio of investments abroad. However, the establishment by insurance companies or insurance brokers of separate subdivisions outside Belarus, participation in the establishment of insurance companies and/or insurance brokers outside Belarus, or the acquisition of an interest (shares) in the authorized capital of such organizations requires MOF permission. Belarusian state-owned insurance organizations and insurance organizations in which the state holds a stake in the authorized capital equal to more than 50% may not purchase securities issued by nonresidents (either at the expense of insurance reserves or at the expense of their own funds), if they are not related to the participation in the establishment of insurance organizations and/or insurance brokers outside Belarus and/or the acquisition of interests (shares) in the authorized capital of such organizations (these should be carried out with the permission of the MOF). Belarusian private insurance organizations may purchase securities issued by nonresidents at the expense of their own funds that are unencumbered and not subject to legislative requirements (for example, minimum authorized capital funds are placed in accounts at Republic of Belarus banks), in compliance with the principle of diversification. (3) Insurance organizations may place no more than 30% of insurance reserves under trust management for a specific term with banks in the Republic of Belarus or other resident commercial organizations operating in the Republic of Belarus and acting as trust managers for at least three years. Funds placed under trust management may be invested, inter alia, in securities issued by governments, CBs (national), banks of foreign states, international financial institutions and development banks as per the list and criteria defined by the MOF.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	No.
Pension funds	No.	There are no pension funds acting as institutional investors in Belarus. This circumstance is because of the distributive pension system in the Republic of Belarus, which does not provide for an accumulative tier in the form of pension funds. In the event of a reform of the pension system and the creation of pension funds becomes possible, their creation and functioning will be carried out in accordance with the Law on Investment Funds of July 17, 2017, taking into consideration potential specific features established for Investment firms and collective investment funds	Yes.	The activities of brokers, dealers, depositories, trustees, clearinghouses, and organizers of securities trading are overseen by the MOF (Securities Department). Under a special permit (license) to perform banking activity, banks may provide services related to the trust management of money (individual investments) and trust management of bank management funds (collective investments). Republic of Belarus Law No. 52-Z on Investment Funds of July 17, 2017, provides for the possibility of creating two types of investment funds: joint-stock investment funds and mutual funds. The organization managing the assets of an investment fund may be a commercial company that has been created in accordance with the legislation of the Republic of Belarus and has gone through the state accreditation process. A specialized depository is a commercial company or unitary enterprise that has been created in accordance with the legislation of the Republic of Belarus and has gone through the state accreditation process. The Republic of Belarus Council of Ministers establishes the procedure for the registration of rules governing mutual funds; it establishes the procedure for the state accreditation process, as well as the procedure and grounds for the suspension, renewal, and termination of state accreditation for operating as a management company and state accreditation for operating as a specialized depository; it establishes the procedure for the state registration of investment shares; and it exercises other authority related to the state regulation of relations involving investment funds. State accreditation for operating as an investment fund management company is performed by the Republic of Belarus MOF following the procedure defined under Items 14.3.3, 14.3.2 (14.3.4) of the Uniform List of Administrative Procedures Performed by Government Authorities and Other Organizations with respect to Legal Entities and Individual Entrepreneurs, approved by Republic of Belarus Council of Ministers Resolution No. 548 of September 24, 2021. The Regulation on the Financing of Commercial Organizations against a Concession of Rights (Claims) at the Expense of Funds Attracted through a Bond Issue, or with a Subsequent Bond Issue, approved by Decree of the President of the Republic of Belarus No. 154 of May 11, 2017, introduced the concept of a Special Financial Institution (SFI). An SFI is a joint-stock company created for the performance of securitization operations. An SFI is prohibited from performing any entrepreneurial activity other than securitization operations and transactions involving the acquisition of financial assets during the period that bonds are in circulation (at the expense of temporarily available funds that are part of the assets that have been allocated), as well as transactions involving the conveyance of said financial assets. An SFI has the right to attract borrowed funds, including credits, for the acquisition of rights (claims) and for the payment of expenses related to a subsequent bond issue, for a term up to the day on which the bond placement ends, in an amount that does not exceed the cost of the rights (claims) acquired and the expenses related to the subsequent bond issue.

Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	The amount of funds used for the acquisition of financial instruments issued by nonresidents of the Republic of Belarus must not exceed 30% of the value of the assets of a joint-stock investment fund intended for investment, or the assets of a mutual fund.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	With regard to investment funds, the amount of funds used for the acquisition of financial instruments issued by nonresidents of the Republic of Belarus must not exceed 30% of the value of the assets of a joint-stock investment fund intended for investment, or the assets of a mutual fund.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.	There are no limits on nonbank professional participants, SFIs, or investment fund management companies.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	No.	There are no limits on nonbank professional participants, SFIs, or investment fund management companies.

The legal basis for the public trading of tokens in the Republic of Belarus is defined by Order No. 8 of the President of the Republic of Belarus of December 21, 2017, on Development of the Digital Economy. This regulatory legal act establishes the basic concepts and authorities of participants in legal relations involving the use of digital units (tokens). According to Paragraph 12 of Annex 1 to Order No. 8, a digital unit (token) is a record in a register of transaction blocks (a blockchain), or another distributed information system, which certifies that the owner of the digital unit (token) has the rights to objects subject to private rights and/or is a cryptocurrency. In accordance with Paragraph 4 of Annex 1 to Order No. 8, a cryptocurrency is a bitcoin or other digital unit (token) used in international trading as a universal means of exchange. Order No. 8 defines the authorities of individuals with respect to transactions with tokens. Individuals have the right to own tokens, and also to perform the following operations: mining, storage of tokens in virtual wallets, exchange of tokens for other tokens, their acquisition or disposal for Belarusian rubels, foreign currency, and electronic money, and also to give and bequeath tokens. Individuals have the right to perform operations of this kind only independently and without the involvement of third parties under employment and civil-legal contracts. Order No. 8 does not contain any restrictions with regard to the method used by individuals to perform such transactions. Individuals have the right to perform permitted transactions with tokens through High-Tech Park residents who are engaged in the relevant types of activity, through foreign trading platforms, and directly with each other. Legal entities have the right to perform transactions with tokens exclusively through crypto platform operators, cryptocurrency exchange operators, and other High-Tech Park residents who are engaged in the relevant types of activity using tokens. There is liability for unlawful entrepreneurial activity using tokens.

Free floating	Yes.	The exchange rate arrangement of the euro area is free floating. Belgium participates in a currency union (EMU) with 19 other members of the EU and has no separate legal tender. The ECB publishes information regarding its interventions; it last intervened in March 2011. When it intervenes, the ECB intervenes at the quotes of the market makers.
Official exchange rate	Yes.	The ECB publishes reference rates based on the daily concertation procedure between CBs within and outside the European System of Central Banks, which normally takes place at 2:15 p.m. Central European Time. On July 1, 2016, the ECB changed the publication time of the euro foreign exchange reference rates (ECB reference rates) from around 2:30 p.m. Central European Time to around 4:00 p.m. Central European Time. The reference rates against the euro are the average of the buying and selling rates. The publication regime aims to reinforce the distinction between exchange rate fixings used as benchmarks for transaction purposes and the ECB reference rates that are published for information purposes only.

Other monetary framework	Yes.	To maintain price stability is the primary objective of the Eurosystem and of the single monetary policy for which it is responsible. This is stated in the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union, Article 127(1). "Without prejudice to the objective of price stability," the Eurosystem will also "support the general economic policies in the Community with a view to contributing to the achievement of the objectives of the Community." These include a "high level of employment" and "sustainable and non-inflationary growth." Price stability is defined as a symmetric 2% inflation target over the medium term.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	No.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	No.	For anti-money laundering reasons, real estate may be paid for only with a bank transfer or check. Regardless of the total amount, no payment or donation may be made or received in cash for an amount above €3,000 of its equivalent in another currency, as part of one or several transactions that seem to be related. However, except in case of public auction under the supervision of a bailiff: (1) the payment of copper cables may not be carried out in cash, when the buyer is not a consumer and (2) the payment of old metals or goods containing precious materials, unless these precious materials are only present in small quantities and only because of their necessary physical properties: (a) may not be carried out or received in cash when neither the seller nor the buyer is a consumer; and (b) may not be carried out or received in cash for an amount or more than €500 when the seller is a consumer and the buyer is not a consumer. If, in this latter case, the buyer accepts to carry out the payment fully or partially in cash, he must identify the consumer, verify his identity, and keep his data and the proof of verification, in accordance with the rules determined by the King. The provision laid down in the first subparagraph does not apply to:

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

		(1) the sale of real property, referred to in Article 66; (2) transactions between consumers; (3) the obliged entities referred to in Article 5, § 1, 1, 3, 4, 6, 7, 10, and 16, as well as their clients when they carry out transactions with these entities. When the submitted accounting documents, including bank statements, do not enable to determine how payments or donations have been made or received, these are presumed to have been carried out or received in cash. Subject to evidence to the contrary, any payment or donation in cash is presumed to be made on Belgian territory, and therefore subject to the provisions of this article when at least one of the parties resides or conducts an activity in Belgium. Irrespective of the total amount, postal deposits on accounts of third parties or on postal current accounts may only be carried out by consumers, for a maximum amount of €3,000 per deposit or a set of linked deposits. This does not apply to postal deposits on postal current accounts or on current accounts carried out by federal or regional public service officials in the performance of their duties.

		or more. Travelers entering or leaving the EU and carrying more than €10,000 are required to make a declaration to the relevant authorities of the member country through which they enter or leave the EU. The authorities must keep a record of such information and report it to their national FIU. The obligation to declare is not fulfilled if the traveler makes no declaration or if the information provided is incorrect or incomplete. To check compliance with the regulation, the national authorities have the right to search natural persons, their baggage, and their means of transportation. In the event of failure to comply with the declaration obligation or suspicions of money laundering/terrorism financing, cash may be confiscated or retained administratively for a period of time between 30 and 90 days. The EC regulation requires member countries to impose effective, dissuasive, and proportionate penalties for failure to comply with the declaration obligation. If there are indications that cash is related to illegal activity, authorities of one member country may exchange information with authorities in other member countries. Under the framework of existing agreements on mutual administrative assistance, information obtained under the EC regulation may also be communicated to a third country in compliance with relevant national and EU provisions on the transfer of personal data to third countries. A similar mandatory declaration system exists when cash with a value of €10,000 or more is entering or leaving the EU non-accompanied. The EC regulation does not apply to physical cross-border transportation from one EU member country to another (that is, intra-EU transportation). Such transportation is not considered "cross-border" for the purposes of the EC regulation; the EC regulation only harmonizes the system for the EU's external borders. However, the Royal Decree of January 26, 2014, implemented an obligation to declare physical cross-border transportation of cash from one EU member country to another at the request of an appropriate authority (mainly the Customs and Excise Administration).

Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	Insurance or reinsurance companies governed by the Belgian law: There is no limit anymore because of the application of the prudent person principle. Insurance or reinsurance companies must invest all their assets in accordance with the "prudent person" principle as described in the law (Article 190). According to Article 191 of the Law of March 13, 2016, on the legal status and supervision of insurance or reinsurance companies "With respect to the whole portfolio of assets, insurance or reinsurance companies must only invest in assets and instruments the risks of which the company concerned can properly identify, measure, monitor, manage, control and report, and appropriately take into account in the assessment of its overall solvency needs in accordance with Article 91, § 1, second paragraph, 1. All assets, in particular those covering the minimum capital requirement and the solvency capital requirement, must be invested in such a manner as to ensure the security, quality, liquidity, and profitability of the portfolio as a whole. In addition, the localization of those assets must be such as to ensure their availability. Assets held to cover the technical provisions must also be invested in a manner appropriate to the nature and duration of the insurance and reinsurance obligations. Those assets must be invested in the best interest of all policyholders and beneficiaries taking into account any disclosed policy objective. In the case of a conflict of interest, insurance companies, or the entity which manages their asset portfolio, must ensure that the investment is made in the best interest of policyholders and beneficiaries." This law will not be applicable to insurance or reinsurance companies governed by the law of another member state, which will be supervised by the home country. Insurance or reinsurance companies governed by the law of a third country: The same rules as for companies governed by the Belgian law are applicable (prudent person principle).
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	For insurance or reinsurance companies governed by the Belgian law, the assets of the insurance and reinsurance companies can be localized in any country (in or outside the EEA). Nevertheless, investment in assets of countries outside the EEA and covering insurance (not reinsurance) risks situated inside this Area are subject to some conditions (Article 197 of Law of March 13, 2016) to ensure the effectiveness of the recovery and resolution measures against companies in difficulties (the limit of the power to dispose of assets). This law will not apply to insurance or reinsurance companies governed by the law of another member state, which will be supervised by the home country. For insurance or reinsurance companies governed by the law of a third country (provisions of the Law of March 13, 2016, are applicable at the Belgian branch), assets covering the technical provisions of insurance liabilities must be, in principle, localized inside the EEA. These assets can be localized outside the EEA if the law applicable to the winding-up procedures gives a similar protection to the policyholders as the Belgian law.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.	There are no minimum or maximum investment limits. Insurance or reinsurance companies must invest all their assets in accordance with the "prudent person" principle.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	No.	There is no limit because of the application of the "prudent person" principle. Insurance or reinsurance companies must invest all their assets in accordance with the "prudent person" principle as described in the law (Article 190).

Pension funds	Yes.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	The technical provisions of pension funds must be covered at all times by sufficient and appropriate assets belonging to the IORP and allocated in a way that guarantees fulfillment of the obligations of the pension schemes they manage and application of the relevant legal and regulatory provisions for each fund. The actual legislation for Belgian IORP contains no quantitative restrictions in this respect. Assets must be invested according to the principle of prudence and the following rules (control a posteriori): (1) The assets must be invested in the best interest of members and beneficiaries. If there is potential conflict of interest, the institution, or its portfolio manager, must ensure that the investment is made in the sole interest of members and beneficiaries. IORP can take into account the potential long-term impact of investment decisions on environmental, social, and governance factors. (2) The assets must be invested in such a manner as to ensure the security, quality, liquidity, and profitability of the portfolio as a whole. (3) The assets must be invested predominantly in regulated markets. Assets not traded in a regulated financial market must be kept to a prudent level. (4) Investments in derivative instruments are permitted insofar as they reduce investment risk or facilitate efficient portfolio management. They must be valuated prudently, taking into account the underlying asset, and included in the valuation of the institution's assets. The institution must avoid excessive risk exposure to a single counterparty and to other derivative operations. (5) The assets must be diversified in such a way as to avoid excessive reliance on any particular asset, issuer, or group of companies and accumulation of risk in the portfolio as a whole. Investments issued by the same issuer or by issuers of the same group must not expose the institution to excessive risk concentration. (6) Investments in, as well as loans granted to, and claims on the sponsoring company may not exceed 5% of the entire portfolio, and, if the sponsoring company belongs to a group, investment in, as well as loans granted to, and claims on companies of the same group as the sponsoring company may not exceed 10% of the portfolio. If the institution is sponsored by more than one company, investment in, as well as loans granted to, and claims on these companies must be made prudently, taking into account proper diversification. Derivative instruments that imply delivery are authorized only if at least one of the following conditions is met: (1) The IORP holds the underlying assets as covering assets. (2) The risks inherent in the highly liquid underlying assets are adequately covered by other liquid assets, provided the latter can be allocated to acquisition of underlying assets to be delivered, and provided the additional risk of this type of operation is adequately measured and managed. (3) A clearing institution is involved that offers an adequate guarantee of the success of the operation, the derivative positions are evaluated daily at market value, and margin calls are issued at least once a day. To apply the first paragraph, second point (of Article 28 of the Royal Decree of January 12, 2007), a hedging instrument is considered liquid if, during a period of at least seven bank working days, it can be converted to cash at a price very close to the actual valuation of the instrument. The amount in cash must be at the disposal of the IORP at maturity or at the exercise date of the derivative. Financial instruments that are not traded in a regulated market may not serve as cover unless they are realizable within a reasonable time. This condition (of Article 29 of the Royal Decree of January 12, 2007) may be waived for credit institutions, insurance companies, and investment firms whose registered office is in an EU Member State – with FSMA approval.

Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	Pension fund assets must be located within the EEA. By way of derogation from the first paragraph, movable cover assets outside the EEA are also accepted, provided the National Bank of Belgium or a credit institution or investment firm governed by the laws of an EU member and authorized to carry out the activity of depository attests that it holds these assets for the IORP's account, through an EEA establishment at a credit institution or investment firm outside the EEA whose authorization the FSMA deems equivalent to its own.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	Yes.	Assets of a pension fund may be denominated in (1) euros or currencies convertible to euros without restriction or (2) the currency of the liabilities, up to the amount of those liabilities.
Investment firms and collective investment funds	Yes.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	No.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	No.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	Yes.	For pension savings funds in the form of public open-end collective investment funds, up to 20% of the assets of such funds may be denominated in a currency other than euros. However, the assets denominated in a currency other than euros may be fully or partially hedged with financial derivatives for the currency risk, so that the hedged part is not taken into account for the determination of the maximum of 20%.

Domestic exchanges	Yes.	The virtual assets service providers (VASPs) must be registered with the FSMA according to the Law of September 18, 2017 (Belgian (AML) law) and to the Royal Decree of February 8, 2022. Please note that this registration is for AML supervision purposes only. The registered VASPs are subject to Belgian AML law and to AML supervision by the FSMA in Belgium. This registration requirement applies to all service providers offering the custodian wallet services and/or the exchange services between virtual currencies and legal currencies provided they are established in Belgium. By “service providers established in Belgium”, we mean, in addition to (1) providers governed by Belgian law, (2) the VASPs governed by the law of another Member State of the EEA who have a branch or any other form of permanent establishment in Belgium within the meaning of the relevant case law of the Court of Justice of the European Union (for example, representative, distributor), and also (3) the VASPs governed by the law of another Member State of the EEA and operating electronic infrastructures (ATMs) installed on Belgian territory. This limitation of the Belgian AML supervision to the obliged entities established in Belgium is not limited to the VASPs. In accordance with the territorial scope of the national laws transposing the AML Directives and with the principle of territorial application of the rules on combating money laundering and terrorism financing in general, only obliged entities established in Belgium are subject to the Belgian AML law and to the AML supervision in Belgium. That means that the VASPs governed by the law of another Member State of the EEA may provide their services in Belgium without applying for a registration at the FSMA. According to Article 47 of the AML Directive (AMLD), these VASPs are registered in their Home State and are subject in their Home Member State to AML supervision. However, we would like to point out that: - those VASPs are subject to the requirements applying to the marketing of virtual currencies to consumers as provided for by Regulation of the FSMA of January 5, 2023. - natural or legal persons governed by the law of a third country to the EEA are prohibited to provide, on Belgian territory, as a regular professional activity, even if complementary or ancillary, exchange services between virtual currencies and legal currencies or custody portfolio services. The registration requirements are laid down by the Royal Decree of February 8, 2022. The key registration criteria are the following : - to be a legal person with a minimum capital of €50.000,00 which must be fully paid up; - to have their statutory seat in Belgium for legal persons governed by the Belgian law; - central administration for legal person governed by the law of another Member State of the EEA except for VASP having installed ATMs in Belgium; - VASP governed by the law of another Member State of the EEE and which are established on Belgian territory other than through a branch (for example, via an agent, distributor, or ATM), shall designate a central contact point located in Belgium; - fit and properness of the executive managers. The persons entrusted with the effective management of the VASP are exclusively natural persons; - quality of the shareholders holding, directly or indirectly, more than 5% of the VASP; - adequate organization to comply with the regulatory requirements and to be able to adequately manage the operational risks (including IT); - compliance with the AML/CFT legislation.

Access to crypto exchange/trading platform by residents	No.	Registered VASPs must comply with AML/CFT obligation to residents who use exchanges/trading platforms to acquire, hold, and trade crypto currencies.

Exchange tax	Yes.	A stamp duty of 1.75% is levied on all conversions from Belize dollars to foreign currency greater than BZ$100 in value unless otherwise exempt via instructions from the MOF.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	All transactions in foreign exchange must be conducted through ADs (that is, domestic banks, the accountant general, and the postmaster general). Domestic banks may buy and sell foreign exchange at the official rate in transactions with their clients and interbank transactions. The CBB sets the buying and selling rates as well as the maximum commissions for major currencies.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Effective May 31, 2023, credit unions became ADs. Four domestic banks, one credit union, the accountant general, and the postmaster general are licensed to deal in foreign exchange with the public. The CBB grants official licenses. There are also three international banks that operate in Belize. There are no lawfully operating foreign exchange bureaus in Belize. Domestic banks may buy and sell foreign exchange at the official rate in transactions with their clients and interbank transactions. The CBB sets the buying and selling rates as well as the maximum commissions for major currencies.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.	The CBB quotes daily rates for the Canadian dollar, pound sterling, euro, US dollar, and a number of currencies of the CARICOM member countries.
Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	The CBB provides US dollars to ADs and the government at the official rate with a specified commission.
Allocation	No.
Auction	No.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	No.	Banks may trade in Belize dollars among themselves. They do not trade in foreign exchange among themselves. In 2022, there were only two offers or requests to borrow on the interbank market among banks.

Controls on the use of domestic currency	Yes.
For current transactions and payments	Yes.
For capital transactions	Yes.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	Yes.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	Yes.
Credit operations	Yes.
Use of foreign exchange among residents	No.	Pursuant to Act No. 6 of the 2010 Amendment to the CBB Act, residents who earn foreign exchange may not pay their taxes, utility bills, and other expenses in US dollars. Act No. 16 of the 2010 Amendment to the EPZ Act removed the requirement for EPZs to conduct business in US dollars. Section 21 of the CBB Act 2011 states that to be valid in Belize, all monetary contracts, obligations, or transactions in Belize, whether imposed or authorized by a law or otherwise, are deemed to be expressed and recorded and must be settled or discharged in Belize dollars unless specifically provided otherwise.
Payments arrangements	Yes.
Bilateral payments arrangements	Yes.	A bilateral arrangement aims to eliminate the need to use US dollars or other non-regional currencies for regional transactions. Settlement under the arrangement is done monthly between CBs based on the net amount outstanding.
Operative	Yes.	There is a bilateral clearing arrangement in effect. Caribbean countries with bilateral clearing arrangements with Belize are Antigua and Barbuda, Barbados, Dominica, Grenada, Guyana, Jamaica, St. Kitts and Nevis, St. Lucia, St. Vincent and the Grenadines, and Trinidad and Tobago. Settlement under the bilateral clearing arrangement is done on a monthly basis between CBs based on the net amount outstanding.
Inoperative	No.
Regional arrangements	Yes.	Belize is a member of CARICOM.
Clearing agreements	No.
Barter agreements and open accounts	No.
Administration of control	Yes.	The CBB administers exchange control, which applies to transactions with all countries. Authority over a wide range of operations is delegated to domestic banks and, effective May 31, 2023, credit unions in their capacity as ADs. Applications for foreign exchange processed by ADs are regularly forwarded to the CBB for auditing and record keeping. Capital transactions require CBB approval. The Government of Belize, including government ministries and departments, is no longer subject to the Exchange Control Regulations.
Payments arrears	No.
Official	No.

Private	No.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	Yes.	Residents may not hold monetary gold, except with CBB authorization.
On external trade	Yes.	Monetary gold may not be imported or exported without CBB approval.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.
On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Travelers may take abroad up to BZ$6,000 a trip. Larger amounts require CBB approval, which is liberally granted with supporting documentation.
Foreign currency	Yes.	The amount of foreign currency resident travelers may take abroad is limited. Nonresidents may take abroad the equivalent of BZ$500 or the amount imported.
On imports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Each traveler may bring in BZ$500 a trip.
Foreign currency	No.	There is no limit on the importation of currency. However, any amount over BZ$10,000 requires a customs declaration.

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Held domestically	Yes.	Domestic commercial banks may open foreign exchange accounts for residents. The CBB reserves the right to prohibit specific accounts. These accounts are demand accounts utilized solely for the purpose of meeting external obligations, and the Exchange Control Regulations apply to these accounts. Residents are not allowed to maintain foreign exchange accounts in international banks. Amendments in the International Banking Act provide for such exceptions, namely companies that operate in the Commercial Free Zone/Designated Processing Areas (DPAs) and government-owned entities. (See IBA amendment 2017.)
Approval required	Yes.
Held abroad	Yes.	Foreign exchange accounts held abroad must be approved by the CBB.
Approval required	Yes.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	No.
Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	No.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	No.	Only banks licensed under the International Banking Act may maintain foreign exchange accounts for nonresidents.
Approval required	No.	Domestic banks are not allowed to maintain foreign exchange accounts with nonresidents, except in rare cases with approval granted by the CBB.
Domestic currency accounts	Yes.	Nonresidents may maintain domestic currency accounts with domestic commercial banks. These accounts may be credited with proceeds from the sale of foreign currency.

Convertible into foreign currency	Yes.
Approval required	Yes.
Blocked accounts	Yes.	Funds held in such accounts are subject to specific or general authorizations by the CBB.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget	No.
Financing requirements for imports	No.
Minimum financing requirements	No.
Advance payment requirements	No.
Advance import deposits	No.
Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports	Yes.	Prepayment for imports requires CBB authorization.
Domiciliation requirements	No.
Preshipment inspection	No.
Letters of credit	Yes.
Import licenses used as exchange licenses	No.
Other	Yes.	Valid invoices and customs documents are required for approval of foreign exchange for imports. As stated in Exchange Control Direction No. 18/2014, all domestic banks must offer foreign currency for sale to a designated importer to cover payments for fuel in an orderly and timely manner. The amount of foreign currency that each bank must provide is the proportion of the fuel bill equivalent to the bank's share of foreign assets within the banking system. The CBB provides each domestic bank with a notice specifying the minimum amount of foreign currency it must offer for sale to the designated importer to cover monthly fuel payments.
Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.
Positive list	No.
Negative list	Yes.	For reasons of health, standardization, and protection of domestic industries, import licenses are required for a number of goods, mostly food and agricultural products and certain household and construction products; such licenses are granted liberally. Licenses are also required for pharmaceuticals and prescription medications from the chief pharmacist and director of health services before importation. Ministry of Agriculture, specifically Belize Agricultural Health Authority (BAHA), sets regulations to protect Belize's agriculture industry from foreign pests that may be transported through the products.
Open general licenses	No.
Licenses with quotas	No.
Other nontariff measures	No.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	Belize applies the fourth phase of the CARICOM CET. Duties range from 5% to 100%, and a number of items (particularly agricultural inputs) enter duty-free. Imports by most of the public sector and certain nonprofit, imports of an emergency or humanitarian nature, and goods for reexportation are exempt, as are goods originating in the CARICOM area. Some items are subject to revenue-replacement duties ranging from 5% to 50%. An environmental tax of 2% is levied on a broad range of imports. Specific duties and surcharges apply to certain products.

Taxes collected through the exchange system	No.
State import monopoly	Yes.	The Belize Marketing and Development Corporation has an import monopoly on onions, and other vegetables when a shortage exists in the country.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements	Yes.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	The CBB requires the direct surrender of sugar export proceeds.
Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	Export proceeds must be surrendered to ADs no later than six months after the date of shipment, unless directed otherwise by the CBB.
Financing requirements	No.
Documentation requirements	Yes.
Letters of credit	No.
Guarantees	No.
Domiciliation	No.
Preshipment inspection	No.
Other	Yes.	The exporter is required to fill out a form that provides information on the type of goods exported, the quantity, and export value. At the time of exportation, one XCH2 form is to be completed for export shipments valued at more than BZ$10,000. The foreign exchange proceeds from exports must be sold to or deposited with an Authorized Dealer in Belize who will endorse the XCH2 form indicating that payment has been received. The exporter or his agent must then forward the bank-endorsed XCH2 form to the CBB.
Export licenses	Yes.
Without quotas	Yes.	Export licenses are required for the exportation of live animals, excluding pets; fish, crustaceans, and mollusks, excluding agricultural species; lumber and logs; beans; citrus fruits; sugar; and wild flora and fauna.
With quotas	No.
Export taxes	Yes.
Collected through the exchange system	No.
Other export taxes	Yes.	Transshipments are subject to a 1.5% customs administration fee. Export duty is collected only on waste or scrap metals at BZ$10.00 a ton.

Payments for Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Controls on these transfers	Yes.
Trade-related payments	Yes.
Prior approval	Yes.	For the payment and transfer of commissions, approval is granted by the CBB, subject to clearance by the commissioner of income tax (CIT).
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Transactions for CBB approval must be accompanied by customs entry documentation and relevant invoices. Foreign exchange is provided up to the invoiced limit.
Investment-related payments	Yes.
Prior approval	Yes.	Interest payments are subject to CBB approval and clearance by the CIT; these require a copy of the loan agreement and amortization schedule and proof of the loan disbursement. For transfers of profits and dividends, an income statement and a declaration of dividends must be presented along with clearance by the CIT.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Transactions for CBB approval must be accompanied by documents from a reputable firm and of a recent date. Limits are based on amounts stated in the document submitted. A system of calculations and cross-checks is used to verify principal payments on loans. Payments are directed to the firms or names indicated in the documents.
Payments for travel	Yes.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	Yes.	The following limits are in effect for ADs for (1) nonbusiness travel by residents, the equivalent of BZ$6,000 a person a trip; (2) business travel by residents, BZ$500 a person a day; (3) medical travel, BZ $6,000 a person a trip; and (4) business or nonbusiness travel by nonresidents, BZ$500 a person a trip, unless payment is made from an external account or with foreign currency proceeds. Travel amounts in excess of these limits should be directed to the CBB for approval. Resident travelers must sell their excess holdings of foreign currency to an AD on returning to Belize. The CBB reserves the right to waive these limits.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Documentation required to obtain foreign currency includes a valid passport, visa, and plane ticket where applicable. Requests for larger amounts should include a letter from the company to support foreign exchange purchases for business travel and a letter or invoices from a doctor to support purchases for medical travel.
Personal payments	Yes.
Prior approval	Yes.	For the transfer of pensions and payments for family maintenance and alimony, CBB approval is required. CIT clearance is not required for family maintenance.
Quantitative limits	Yes.	ADs may approve up to BZ$1,000 a person a year or its equivalent for gifts.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	ADs provide foreign exchange up to the invoiced amount for correspondence course tuition with proper documentation. Payments related to medical costs can be made directly to the doctor, hospital, or applicant with original invoices or bills.
Foreign workers' wages	Yes.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

Prior approval	Yes.	Approval for remittance of wages is granted by the CBB.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	A letter is required from the employer showing proof of income.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	Domestic banks and credit unions are regulated and supervised by the CBB.
Borrowing abroad	Yes.	All residents, except for domestic banks and international banks, require the specific permission of the CBB to borrow from a nonresident. Only domestic banks are free of any requirements or regulations to borrow from abroad, subject to such directions by the CBB that would restrict them from doing so. Because other credit institutions are not ADs, they require specific permission to do so.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	Yes.	All residents, except for domestic banks and international banks, require the permission of the CB to maintain an account abroad. Only commercial banks are free from any requirements or regulations to hold accounts abroad, subject to such directions by the CB that would restrict them from doing so. Because other credit institutions are not ADs, they require specific permission to do so.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	Yes.	Direction No. 12 specifies that residents require the specific permission of the CBB for a nonresident to borrow from a resident, including domestic commercial banks. International banks are licensed to carry out international banking business with nonresidents.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	Written CBB permission is required. Domestic commercial banks in Belize may not, without the prior approval of the CBB, lend in foreign currency to residents of Belize for any purpose, regardless of the amount. International banks are permitted to lend in foreign exchange to a Designated Processing Developer or Business, Commercial Free Zone Developer or Business, and entities wholly owned or majority controlled by the Government of Belize and Social Security Board.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	Yes.	Domestic banks may invest foreign assets in sovereign and/or commercial securities subject to CBB approval.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	No.	No restrictions as reported in the latest IMF staff report as of December 31, 2022.
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	No.
Other security restrictions	Yes.	A regional framework to fight money laundering (AML) and the financing of terrorism (AFT) exists through two WAEMU Directives from 2002 (AML) and 2007 (AFT) as amended. This comprehensive framework facilitates the implementation of UNSC resolutions based on a list of persons and entities prepared by the Committee. Effective March 31, 2023, the regional framework was revised, and a draft law was adopted by the Council of Ministers of the Union. The law contains new provisions on preventive measures applicable to all reporting entities. These cover mainly the following points: (1) the redefinition of the scope of application of the law by reducing the number of reporting entities to three categories established by the FATF, namely financial institutions, Designated Non-Financial Businesses and Professions (DNFBPs), and Virtual Asset Service Providers (VASPs); (2) the strengthening of the States' role in implementing targeted financial penalties by designating a national body responsible for managing frozen, seized, or confiscated criminal assets and their recovery; (3) the strengthening of preventive measures; (4) the strengthening of responsibilities that fall to the competent authorities in regulating and supervising financial institutions; (5) review of the definitions of politically exposed persons (PEPs).

Conventional peg	Yes.	The exchange rate arrangement of the WAEMU is a conventional peg. Benin participates in a currency union with seven other members of the WAEMU and has no separate legal tender. A monetary cooperation agreement between the WAEMU member states and France was concluded on December 21, 2019, to replace the agreement dated December 4, 1973. The Monetary Cooperation Agreement is based on three pillars: (1) a common issuing institution, (2) fixed parity with the euro, and (3) a guarantee of unlimited convertibility.

Official exchange rate	Yes.	The CFA franc is officially pegged to the euro, the intervention currency, at the fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 per euro. Exchange rates for other currencies are derived from the rates for the currency concerned in the Paris foreign exchange market vis-à-vis the euro. The official rate is used for accounting and valuation purposes. The Conference of Heads of State and Government may decide to amend the Monetary Cooperation Agreement between the WAMU member countries and France. Effective September 2, 2022, Executive Order No. 2022-21 of September 2, 2022, authorizing the ratification of the Cooperation Agreement, signed on December 21, 2019, in Abidjan (Republic of Côte d'Ivoire) between the Governments of the Member States of the West African Monetary Union and the Government of the French Republic was adopted. Under the monetary reform, the obligation to centralize foreign exchange reserves with the French Treasury has ended, and France has withdrawn from the Governance Bodies of the Central Bank.

Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	Authorized intermediaries (licensed intermediary banks and licensed exchange dealers) freely set the buying and selling rates for foreign currencies, with the exception of the euro, which must be traded at the official fixed parity of CFAF 655.957 per euro. The commission on foreign exchange transactions may not exceed 2% for the euro. Instruction No. 013-11-2015 of November 10, 2015, on the terms and conditions for conducting rapid money transfers as a subagent within the WAEMU applies.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	The entities authorized to conduct nonelectronic foreign currency transactions are authorized intermediary banks and individuals and companies authorized to conduct nonelectronic transactions with the public by decision of the minister of finance. Authorized intermediaries must comply with the provisions in effect on the financial conditions for executing OTC foreign exchange transactions that involve foreign currencies and issue a transaction slip for all transactions with a client. Moreover, to provide satisfactory information to clients, they are required to permanently post at their windows the rates actually charged for the different currencies and post-notification that a transaction slip must be issued for all foreign exchange transactions on presentation of the requestor's identity document. Exchange bureaus may conduct transactions in foreign currencies (except the euro) with the BCEAO. Entities authorized to perform OTC operations may not make transfers or payments in foreign currency with other countries or maintain accounts abroad. As of December 31, 2022, Benin had 14 banks and 99 authorized OTC exchange dealers.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	The BCEAO exchanges foreign currency for CFA francs at rates published on the international markets, with the exception of the euro, which is traded at the official fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 per euro. The nonelectronic currency exchange windows are open to owners of accounts on the BCEAO books and to the general public. A commission of 0.5% is charged on all transactions with the public (purchases and sales) and on all withdrawals by banks and financial institutions (including euro withdrawals). However, no commission is charged for the following operations: (1) OTC foreign banknote exchanges conducted by state entities, government employees of WAEMU member states on mission abroad, and officials of the CB and their beneficiaries and (2) payments made by banks and financial institutions.
Allocation	No.
Auction	No.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	Transactions in CFA francs between authorized intermediaries are allowed. As of December 31, 2022, 12 banks participated in the domestic currency interbank market. There is no regulated foreign currency interbank market in the WAEMU.
Over the counter	Yes.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	No.

Forward exchange market	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to conduct the following transactions in the foreign exchange derivatives market with authorized intermediary banks established in the WAMU or with foreign banks: outright forward foreign exchange contracts (over the counter), foreign exchange options, foreign exchange swaps, and cross-currency swaps. Transactions in foreign exchange options are limited to the following two types of transactions: options to purchase foreign currency, purchased by residents of the WAEMU zone from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign bank, and options to sell foreign currency, purchased by residents of the WAEMU zone from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign credit institution. Authorized intermediary banks must simultaneously cover the exchange risk they incur with respect to derivative instruments traded with their customers. The underlying commercial and financial operations must relate to imports and exports of goods and services by a resident, foreign borrowing operations by a resident (drawings and repayments), or direct foreign investment in a resident company. All legitimate foreign currency needs are ultimately met by the BCEAO.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.	Payments with countries outside the WAEMU are made in foreign currencies. Trade with other the WAEMU countries is settled in CFA francs.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	Yes.	CFA francs may not be used for settlement of international transactions outside the WAEMU.
For current transactions and payments	Yes.	CFA francs may not be used for settlement of international transactions outside the WAEMU.
For capital transactions	Yes.	The CFA franc may not be used for capital transactions with countries outside the WAEMU. Investments by residents of the WAEMU zone outside the WAEMU are subject to prior authorization by the minister of finance, and at least 75% of the investment must be financed through foreign borrowing.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	Yes.	The CFA franc may not be used for capital transactions with countries outside the WAEMU. Foreign investment by residents of the WAEMU zone is subject to authorization by the MOF. At least 75% of the investment must be financed through foreign borrowing. The interested party must request authorization through a letter designating the authorized intermediary to settle the payment. Purchases of foreign negotiable securities authorized by the regional capital markets authority to be issued or sold in WAEMU members do not require Minister of Economy and Finance (MEF) authorization.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	Yes.	Residents of WAEMU member countries may engage in the following operations on derivatives and other instruments with accredited banks established in the WAEMU or foreign banks: (1) forward contract, (2) foreign exchange swaps, and (3) options. Operations on derivatives with foreign banks outside the WAEMU can only relate to the purchase or sale, by a resident, of foreign exchange other than the euro or another currency from the Franc Zone.
Credit operations	Yes.	Loans of any kind, CFA franc overdrafts, and, in general, any advances granted by authorized intermediaries to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to prior authorization by the Directorate of External Financial Relations of the MOF, after BCEAO approval.

Use of foreign exchange among residents	Yes.	The CFA franc is the only legal tender, and residents of the WAEMU zone may not use foreign exchange for domestic transactions.
Payments arrangements	Yes.
Bilateral payments arrangements	No.
Operative	No.
Inoperative	No.
Regional arrangements	Yes.	A monetary cooperation agreement between the WAEMU member states and France was concluded on December 21, 2019, replacing the previous agreement dated December 4, 1973. This monetary cooperation agreement is based on three pillars: (1) a common bank of issue; (2) a fixed exchange rate parity with the euro; and (3) an unlimited convertibility guarantee.
Clearing agreements	Yes.	There is a multilateral netting agreement between the WAEMU countries and the other ECOWAS member countries (Cabo Verde, The Gambia, Ghana, Guinea, Liberia, Nigeria, and Sierra Leone) as part of the WAMA. All payments for current transactions between countries whose CBs are WAMA members may be made under the netting agreement. However, this excludes transactions specified by the committee of governors of the CBs of ECOWAS members and payments for exports from one member country to another member country of finished products originating in countries whose CB or monetary authority is not a WAMA member.
Barter agreements and open accounts	No.
Administration of control	Yes.	On April 1, 2010, the institutional reform of the WAMU and the BCEAO went into effect, with the adoption of the following new basic instruments: (1) the WAMU Treaty, (2) the BCEAO Charter, (3) the Bank Regulation Act, and (4) the Convention governing the WAMU Banking Commission. All WAEMU residents are treated as residents of Benin for the purposes of preparing the external position of banks, domiciliation and repatriation of export revenue, issuance and sales of securities, gold imports and exports, investment and lending transactions, and physical exports of means of payment and securities by postal package or ordinary mail. However, for statistical purposes with regard to the balance of payments, all countries other than Benin are considered foreign countries. Moreover, all transfers with other countries must be made through registered intermediary banks, the postal service, or the BCEAO.
Payments arrears	No.
Official	No.
Private	No.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	No.
On external trade	Yes.	Gold imports and exports require MOF authorization, except (1) imports and exports by the Public Treasury and the BCEAO; (2) imports and exports of items with a low gold content (lined or plated objects); and (3) imports and exports, by travelers, of objects made of gold limited to a total weight of 500 grams. Imports and exports of gold within the WAEMU area are not subject to any restrictions.

Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.
On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Travelers may freely export CFA franc (XOF) banknotes from one WAEMU member country to another. Resident individuals and legal entities other than the BCEAO and its banking and commercial correspondents outside the WAEMU are prohibited from sending and receiving CFA franc banknotes issued by the BCEAO.
Foreign currency	Yes.	The reexportation of foreign banknotes by nonresident travelers is permitted up to the equivalent of CFAF 500,000; the reexportation of foreign banknotes above this ceiling requires documentation demonstrating either the importation of the foreign banknotes or their purchase against other means of payment registered in the name of the traveler or through the use of nonresident deposits in local banks. Residents of the WAEMU zone traveling to countries that are not WAEMU members are required to declare foreign currency on their person in excess the equivalent of CFAF 5 million. They are allowed to carry up to the equivalent of CFAF 2 million a person in banknotes not issued by the BCEAO. Larger amounts may be exported in the form of traveler's checks, prepaid debit and payment cards, conventional debit and payment cards, and other means of payment. Foreign exchange allowances issued by authorized intermediaries in the form of traveler's checks or prepaid debit and payment cards must be based on the need to cover customary, personal travel expenses, if they exceed the equivalent of CFAF 2 million a person. The issuance of foreign currency to resident travelers is subject to the presentation of travel documents and a valid passport or national identification card.
On imports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Resident and nonresident travelers may freely import domestic currency (CFA franc (XOF)). However, resident individuals and legal entities other than the BCEAO and its banking and commercial correspondents outside the WAEMU are prohibited from sending and receiving banknotes in domestic currency (CFA franc (XOF)).
Foreign currency	No.	Residents of the WAEMU zone and nonresidents of the WAEMU zone may freely import CFA area banknotes denominated in foreign currencies. Such means of payment in excess of or equal to the equivalent of CFAF 5 million must be declared to customs. Nonresident travelers must declare to customs foreign currency exceeding the equivalent of CFAF 5 million on entry and exit.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Held domestically	Yes.
Approval required	Yes.	Foreign exchange accounts in currencies other than the euro may be opened domestically with MOF authorization after non-objection from the BCEAO. The authorization specifies the operations that may be credited or debited on each such an account. These accounts are valid for a renewable term of up to one year. They cannot be credited with deposits of CFA banknotes or by debiting a CFA franc account. On expiration of the term set in the authorization, accounts are closed unless a new authorization is obtained.
Held abroad	Yes.
Approval required	Yes.	Individuals who are residents of the WAEMU and temporarily staying or traveling outside of the WAEMU may open bank accounts outside the WAEMU to deposit foreign currency legally exported and any income acquired outside of the WAEMU during their travel or temporary stay outside of the WAEMU. These individuals are required to repatriate balances on such accounts within 30 days of return to the WAEMU. In any circumstance other than the foregoing, opening of foreign accounts by WAEMU residents is subject to MOF authorization by after non-objection from the BCEAO. The MOF authorization specifies the operations that may be credited or debited on such accounts valid for up to one year. In the event of a failure to obtain a new MOF authorization, the accredited intermediary must request that the account be closed by the end of the term authorized and that any balance be repatriated to a WAEMU member country within eight days.

Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	No.
Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	No.

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Approval required	Yes.	Intermediaries authorized in the WAEMU are authorized to open accounts in euros for the benefit of nonresidents, subject to proof of their status and actual residence. Nonresident accounts denominated in foreign currency other than euros are subject to BCEAO authorization. Nonresident foreign currency accounts are valid for a renewable period of two years. In the event of a failure to obtain renewal (through a new BCEAO authorization for foreign exchange other than the euro), these accounts must be closed. The balances of these accounts may be freely transferred abroad after verification.
Domestic currency accounts	Yes.
Convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	Authorized intermediaries may open nonresident accounts in CFA francs and in euros, under their own responsibility, depending on the status and actual residence of the applicant. These accounts may be debited for spot purchases of foreign exchange.
Approval required	No.
Blocked accounts	No.

Open general licenses	No.
Licenses with quotas	No.
Other nontariff measures	No.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	The ECOWAS CET entered into force in Benin on January 1, 2015. The CET, amended in accordance with Supplementary Law No. A/SA.1/06/09 of June 22, 2009, to include the additional tariff bracket of 35% called "Category 4: specific goods for economic development," has five tariff brackets (0%, 5%, 10%, 20%, and 35%). Two additional taxes are planned to protect the budding ECOWAS industrial sector and the other strategic sectors: (1) a temporary adjustment tax on imports for five years intended to offset the reduced tariff protection for community products as a result of CET implementation and (2) a temporary supplementary protection tax for up to two years applicable to products imported from third countries in direct competition with similar products manufactured by an ECOWAS member country. In accordance with the spirit of Resolution No. A/DEC.17/01/06 of January 12, 2006, the adoption of the CET, as amended by Supplementary Law No. A/SA.1/06/09 of June 22, 2009, the previous WAEMU and ECOWAS community levies continue to be imposed for a temporary period of five years. Consequently, for five years, imports from ECOWAS nonmember countries will be subject to a 0.8% community levy, in addition to an ad valorem ECOWAS community levy of 0.5%.
Taxes collected through the exchange system	No.
State import monopoly	No.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Resident economic operators must collect and repatriate within 30 days of the payment due date the entire proceeds of sales of goods abroad in the country of origin with the bank with which the transaction is domiciled. The payment due date is specified in the trade agreement and normally falls within a period of 120 days after the goods are dispatched.
Surrender requirements	Yes.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Export proceeds must be surrendered by ADs to the BCEAO within 30 days of the payment due date, which may not exceed 120 days after shipment of the goods. To cover its current foreign exchange needs, the domiciling bank may hold up to 20% of its export proceeds as own foreign exchange resources. However, it must ensure that its total foreign exchange resources to cover its requirements do not exceed 5% of total customer demand deposits; otherwise, the surplus must be surrendered to the BCEAO.
Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	Proceeds must be surrendered to authorized banks within 30 days of the payment due date. Export revenue may be surrendered to intermediaries other than banks with which the transaction is domiciled if authorized by the BCEAO, provided they furnish the domiciling bank with the documents required for the domiciliation file to be closed.

Issuance of securities constituting a loan by residents of the WAEMU zone to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone must be made through an authorized bank and must be reported to the MEF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Controls on derivatives and other instruments	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may hedge risk using foreign exchange derivatives for the following commercial and financial operations: (1) imports and exports of goods and services; (2) foreign borrowing operations by a resident (drawings and repayments); and (3) negotiation of FDI in a resident enterprise. Foreign exchange derivatives can only relate to the purchase or sale, by a resident, of foreign exchange other than the euro or another currency from the Franc Zone.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may hedge risk using foreign exchange derivatives for the following commercial and financial operations: (1) imports and exports of goods and services; (2) foreign borrowing operations by a resident (drawings and repayments); and (3) negotiation of FDI in a resident enterprise. Foreign exchange derivatives can only relate to the purchase or sale, by a resident, of foreign exchange other than the euro or another currency from the Franc Zone. The use of exchange risk hedging derivatives on the domestic market is reserved exclusively for Union residents. Purchase of derivatives locally by nonresidents is not permitted.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may hedge risk using foreign exchange derivatives for the following commercial and financial operations: (1) imports and exports of goods and services; (2) foreign borrowing operations by a resident (drawings and repayments); and (3) negotiation of FDI in a resident enterprise. Foreign exchange derivatives can only relate to the purchase or sale, by a resident, of foreign exchange other than the euro or another currency from the Franc Zone. Residents are authorized to carry out transactions on approved foreign exchange derivative instruments on foreign exchange derivatives markets with nonresident banks.

Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	These instruments are subject to general regulations that apply to securities and investments. Residents of the WAEMU zone may freely purchase abroad or from nonresidents of the WAEMU zone call or put options on primary commodities or securities transactions. Residents of the WAEMU zone may not purchase commodities or securities in foreign markets to be delivered in complying with a put option contract. Put options must be placed on assets that can be acquired locally by the resident seller for delivery abroad in execution of the contract. Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to purchase foreign currency purchase options on the foreign exchange derivatives market from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign credit institution.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to purchase foreign currency sell options on the foreign exchange derivatives market from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign (that is, nonresident of WAEMU) credit institution.
Controls on credit operations	Yes.	Borrowing by residents of the WAEMU zone from nonresidents of the WAEMU zone must be conducted through authorized intermediaries (whenever borrowed funds are made available for use in the country), unless otherwise indicated by the minister of finance.
Commercial credits	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	There are no controls on credits related to exports of goods. The date on which payment falls due is agreed to in the contract (in principle no later than 120 days after the date of shipment).
To residents from nonresidents	No.	There are no controls, and repayments of commercial credits are generally conducted without prior authorization, subject to the presentation of documents attesting to the validity of the commercial operation or of the services rendered, as well as the payment due date, to the licensed intermediary bank responsible for handling the repayment.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	These credits require MEF approval. Outward transfers to service such facilities require an exchange authorization, subject to the approval of the minister of finance and substantiated by documentation.
To residents from nonresidents	No.	There are no controls on these credits, but they must be reported for statistical purposes to the MOF and the BCEAO when granted and when repaid, except for the following credits: (1) mail overdrafts: CFA franc overdrafts for durations not to exceed the normal mail delivery times; (2) LCs available by acceptance, issued to exporters at the request of the authorized intermediaries' foreign correspondent banks; and (3) credit provided pursuant to a financial agreement between a WAEMU member country and a foreign government or pursuant to an interbank arrangement approved by the Directorate of External Finance. The necessary funds must be transferred from abroad through an authorized agent. There are no controls on repayment of loans, provided the authorized agent handling the settlement is furnished with documentation attesting to the validity of the transaction. Borrowing abroad is unrestricted.

Guarantees, sureties, and financial backup facilities	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	The granting of guarantees and sureties is subject to minister of finance approval. Transfers abroad of funds to service these facilities require an exchange authorization, subject to minister of finance approval and submission of supporting documents.
To residents from nonresidents	No.	These facilities may be granted freely, although the funds required for servicing them must be transferred abroad by an authorized bank. If, however, these transactions take place between a resident direct investment company and its parent company located abroad, they are considered to be direct investments and therefore require declaration to the MEF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Controls on direct investment	Yes.	Direct investment implies control of a company or enterprise. Mere participation is not considered direct investment, unless it exceeds 10% of the capital of a company. All investment outside of WAEMU by residents of the WAEMU, including investment through foreign companies under the direct or indirect control of WAEMU residents and investment by foreign branches or subsidiaries of companies established in a WAEMU member country, requires MEF authorization.
Outward direct investment	Yes.	All investment abroad by residents of the WAEMU zone is subject to MEF authorization. At least 75% of such investment must be financed by foreign loans. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM.
Inward direct investment	Yes.	FDIs, including by resident companies that are directly or indirectly under foreign control and by branches or subsidiaries of foreign companies, must be reported to the MEF for statistical purposes. A share is not considered a direct investment, unless it exceeds 10% of the capital of a company.
Controls on liquidation of direct investment	No.	The liquidation of investments abroad must be reported to the MEF and the CB for statistical purposes. Reinvestment of the proceeds of liquidation is subject to MEF authorization. If reinvestment is not authorized, the liquidation proceeds must be repatriated within one month through an authorized intermediary. The sale of foreign investments by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone is unrestricted but must be reported to the MEF and the CB for statistical purposes.
Controls on real estate transactions	Yes.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	These purchases require MEF authorization.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	Purchases for purposes other than direct investment in a business, branch, or company are allowed. They require a declaration to the minister of finance and the CB for statistical purposes.
Sale locally by nonresidents	No.	Sales by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone to residents of the WAEMU zone require submission of supporting documentation to the authorized intermediary that handles the settlement and must be declared to the minister of finance and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Controls on personal capital transactions	Yes.	Personal capital transactions between residents of the WAEMU zone and nonresidents of the WAEMU zone must be made through the BCEAO, the postal service, or an authorized intermediary bank, unless authorization is obtained from the minister of finance.
Loans	Yes.	The regulations governing securities and investments apply.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	These transactions require MEF authorization. The individuals concerned may not engage in such operations as a professional occupation without first being licensed and included on the list of financial institutions.

To residents from nonresidents	No.	These transactions may be made freely, but are subject to declaration for statistical purposes to the MEF and the CB when disbursed and when repaid. They must be conducted through an authorized intermediary.
Gifts, endowments, inheritances, and legacies	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Inheritances and dowries are generally allowed. Gifts and endowments, however, are subject to authorization by the MOF and the BCEAO. These transactions must be conducted through an authorized intermediary and comply with the relevant AML and terrorism financing provisions.
To residents from nonresidents	No.	These transactions do not require authorization but are subject to declaration to the minister of finance and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Settlement of debts abroad by immigrants	Yes.	Immigrants with resident status must obtain MEF authorization to settle debts contracted abroad, while they were nonresidents of the WAEMU zone.
Transfer of assets	Yes.
Transfer abroad by emigrants	Yes.	These transactions require MEF authorization if the value exceeds CFAF 500,000 a person. There are no restrictions on transfers of amounts below this threshold.
Transfer into the country by immigrants	Yes.	Foreign accounts of nonresidents of the WAEMU zone (in foreign currencies or CFA francs) who become residents of the WAEMU zone must be closed. However, these residents may maintain abroad bank accounts opened and financial assets acquired, while they were nonresidents of the WAEMU zone. New transfers to these accounts require MEF approval.
Transfer of gambling and prize earnings	No.	These transfers are conducted freely by authorized intermediaries, subject to the presentation of supporting documents and compliance with the relevant provisions on combating money laundering and financing of terrorism.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	The Uniform Law on the Treatment of Dormant Accounts on the Books of Financial Agencies of the Member States of the WAMU by the Council of Ministers of the Union took effect through Decision No. CM/UMOA/023/2012 of September 28, 2012. This decision was incorporated into Benin's legislation in July 2016.
Borrowing abroad	No.	Foreign borrowing is unrestricted. For statistical purposes, these transactions must be declared to the MEF and the BCEAO when granted and when repaid.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	Yes.	Banks and financial institutions are authorized to open accounts with their correspondent banks for settling transactions for their own account or the accounts of their customers. However, banks are not authorized to hold in these accounts amounts that exceed their current requirements. In accordance with Regulation No. 09/2010/CM/UEMOA on the External Financial Relations of the WAEMU Member States, to cover their foreign currency requirements, banks are authorized to hold in banking institutions located in non-WAEMU countries: (1) demand deposits not exceeding the total amount of import payments domiciled by clients in their books, payable within a period of eight days, and (2) demand deposits not exceeding the balance on their open foreign accounts denominated in foreign currencies other than euros and their open resident accounts denominated in foreign currency. The total amount of these assets may not exceed 5% of the clients' outstanding demand deposits. Assets in excess of foreign currency requirements must be surrendered to the BCEAO.

Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	Yes.	Commercial lending is allowed. Financial credits are subject to MEF authorization following BCEAO approval.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	There are no explicit regulations regarding these transactions, but MEF authorization is required with BCEAO approval.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	Yes.	These purchases require MEF authorization if their issuance was not approved by the RCPSFM.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.
Reserve requirements	No.	A reserve requirement of 3% has been applicable to banks in the WAEMU zone since March 16, 2017. Demand deposits, other debit deposit accounts, and loan accounts are included in the calculation of required reserves. The following four elements are taken into account in calculating the required reserves to be established in the CB: (i) demand deposits; (ii) short-term loans; (iii) gross claims abroad, including customer deposits in foreign currency; (iv) medium- and long-term loans. Required reserves are therefore established on a standard, settlement, or securities account based on eligibility for calculation of reserves allocated by the MPC.
Liquid asset requirements	No.	In accordance with the prudential framework applicable to banks and financial institutions carrying out banking operations in the WAEMU, the minimum liquid asset requirement is 75%. A 50% transformation ratio is also required to ensure that banks continually have more stable financing sources to finance their long-term uses.
Interest rate controls	No.
Credit controls	Yes.	Loans of any kind, CFA franc overdrafts, and, in general, any advances granted to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to MEF authorization, after BCEAO approval. These claims are included in the external position of banks and financial institutions, which is subject to special monitoring.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts held by nonresidents	Yes.	Banking regulations make no distinction among resident deposit accounts, nonresident deposit accounts, and foreign deposit accounts.
Reserve requirements	No.
Liquid asset requirements	No.
Interest rate controls	No.
Credit controls	Yes.	Any overdraft or advance granted to a nonresident requires MEF authorization with BCEAO approval.
Investment regulations	Yes.	The regulations governing direct investment apply.
Abroad by banks	Yes.	All investment abroad by residents of the WAEMU zone is subject to MOF authorization. At least 75% of such investment must be financed by foreign loans. Authorization is not required for the purchase of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in the WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM.
In banks by nonresidents	Yes.	These transactions may, depending on their volume, be subject to authorization by the minister of finance. The banking law stipulates that investment by any person in a bank that would have the effect of changing the minority and/or majority voting rights requires authorization by the minister of finance.
Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.	No prudential ratios apply. Because of the surrender requirement, banks are not allowed to maintain open foreign exchange positions. However, the BCEAO grants individual dispensations that allow banks to keep working balances in their correspondent accounts for the smooth completion of international payments, up to the equivalent of 5% of total customer demand deposits. To cover their foreign currency requirements, banks are authorized to hold in banking institutions located in non-WAEMU countries: (1) demand deposits not exceeding the total amount of import payments domiciled by clients in their books, payable within a period of eight days, and (2) demand deposits not exceeding the balance on their open foreign accounts denominated in foreign currencies other than euros and their open resident accounts denominated in foreign currency.

On resident assets and liabilities	Yes.	No prudential ratios apply. Because of the surrender requirement, banks are not allowed to maintain open foreign exchange positions. However, the BCEAO grants individual dispensations that allow banks to keep working balances in their correspondent accounts for the smooth completion of international payments. To cover their foreign currency requirements, banks are authorized to hold in banking institutions located in non-WAEMU countries: (1) demand deposits not exceeding the total amount of import payments domiciled by clients in their books, payable within a period of eight days, and (2) demand deposits not exceeding the balance on their open foreign accounts denominated in foreign currencies other than euros and their open resident accounts denominated in foreign currency.
On nonresident assets and liabilities	Yes.	No prudential ratios apply. Because of the surrender requirement, banks are not allowed to maintain open foreign exchange positions. However, the BCEAO grants individual dispensations that allow banks to keep working balances in their correspondent accounts for the smooth completion of international payments. To cover their foreign currency requirements, banks are authorized to hold in banking institutions located in non-WAEMU countries: (1) demand deposits not exceeding the total amount of import payments domiciled by clients in their books, payable within a period of eight days, and (2) demand deposits not exceeding the balance on their open foreign accounts denominated in foreign currencies other than euros and their open resident accounts denominated in foreign currency.
Provisions specific to institutional investors	Yes.
Insurance companies	Yes.	Controls are imposed by the CIMA Code.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	The CIMA Code allows insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest up to 50% of resources collected locally in other CIMA member countries.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	The CIMA Code allows insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest up to 50% of resources collected locally in other CIMA member countries.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	Yes.	According to the CIMA Code, a minimum of 50% of resources collected in a CIMA member country by insurance companies must be invested locally.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	Yes.	The CIMA Code specifies that liabilities in a given currency must be covered by assets denominated in the same currency.
Pension funds	Yes.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance, presentation, and floating of securities of any kind by foreign governments, local authorities, foreign companies, or international institutions are subject to authorization by the

Exchange Measures

Exchange measures imposed for security reasons
Other security restrictions	03/31/2023	The regional framework was revised, and a draft law was adopted by the Council of Ministers of the Union. The law contains new provisions on preventive measures applicable to all reporting entities. These cover mainly the following points: (1) the redefinition of the scope of application of the law by reducing the number of reporting entities to three categories established by the FATF, namely financial institutions, Designated Non-Financial Businesses and Professions, and Virtual Asset Service Providers; (2) the strengthening of the States' role in implementing targeted financial penalties by designating a national body responsible for managing frozen, seized, or confiscated criminal assets and their recovery; (3) the strengthening of preventive measures; (4) the strengthening of responsibilities that fall to the competent authorities in regulating and supervising financial institutions; (5) review of the definitions of politically exposed persons.

Exchange Arrangement

Official exchange rate	09/02/2022	Executive Order No. 2022-21 of September 2, 2022, authorizing the ratification of the Cooperation Agreement, signed on December 21, 2019, in Abidjan (Republic of Côte d'Ivoire) between the Governments of the Member States of the West African Monetary Union and the Government of the French Republic was adopted. Under the monetary reform, the obligation to centralize foreign exchange reserves with the French Treasury has ended, and France has withdrawn from the Governance Bodies of the Central Bank.

Status under IMF Articles of Agreement

Date of membership		September 28, 1981.
Article VIII
Article XIV	Yes.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	Yes.	The IMF staff report for the 2022 Article IV Consultation with Bhutan states that, as of April 26, 2022, Bhutan continues to avail itself of transitional arrangements under Article XIV, Section 2, pursuant to which it maintains exchange restrictions in connection with: (1) foreign exchange balancing requirement on remittances of income in convertible currencies or other foreign currencies from FDI and (2) on the availability of foreign exchange for importers who have not provided evidence that goods for which payments have been made were actually imported. Bhutan also maintains exchange restrictions subject to IMF approval under Article VIII, Section 2(a) in connection with: (1) the foreign exchange balancing requirements for imports of capital goods (for projects involving FDI) and primary raw materials (for certain industrial projects); (2) requiring FDI companies to pay for their operational expenses (including insurance payments) from their own foreign exchange resources; and (3) requiring Bhutanese companies to pay the interest on and amortization of external loans from their own foreign currency resources. (Country Report No. 22/146)
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	Yes.	Banking institutions have been instructed to freeze all capital transfers and financial assets of individuals, groups, and organizations associated with terrorism, pursuant to the relevant UNSC resolutions. In addition, financial institutions are required to report to the Royal Monetary Authority (RMA) any financial transactions linked to groups associated with terrorism. The RMA has the power to share information and cooperate in any way necessary with domestic and foreign supervisors to combat money laundering and the financing of terrorism.
Other security restrictions	Yes.

Exchange Arrangement

Currency	Yes.	The currency of Bhutan is the Bhutanese ngultrum.
Other legal tender	No.	Indian rupee banknotes circulate freely in Bhutan, but there is no legal/official provision establishing them as legal tender in Bhutan. Since January 2015, Indian rupee (INR) denominations above Rs. 500 (specifically currency notes in denominations of Rs. 500 and Rs. 1,000) started to circulate, and individuals from India are allowed to carry to Bhutan INR in denominations of Rs. 500 and/or Rs. 1,000 subject to a limit of Rs. 25,000. The RMA opened an exchange counter at the RMA (Thimphu and Phuntsholing branch office) for facilitating the exchange of ngultrum notes for INR notes, beginning with the facility for Bhutanese proceeding on pilgrimage to India. Any Bhutanese may avail INR from the RMA exchange counters in Thimphu and the RMA branch Office in Phuntsholing up to a limit of Rs. 10,000 a month a person on production of personal context identity (Citizenship Identity Card) to the exchange counter tellers. All current international transactions denominated in rupees have been streamlined to reflect the legal status of the rupee as a foreign currency. Since the demonetization of high denomination Indian rupee note in India from November 2016, INR denominations of 500 and 1000 were not allowed to be used in Bhutan and only INR denominations of 100 and below are allowed to be used in Bhutan. The new series of INR denominations up to 500 were re-permitted in Bhutan since June 2018. Furthermore, the RMA opened up exchange counters at the Airport and Phuntsholing to facilitate exchange of Indian rupees to ngultrum and vice versa. Effective October 1, 2023, the INR travel allowance for Bhutanese was recalibrated from INR 10,000 a month to INR 25,000 semi-annually (INR 50,000 in a year) with the implementation of the Foreign Exchange Rules and Regulations 2022 .

No current legal documents establish a fixed exchange rate arrangement; the ngultrum has been pegged at par with the Indian rupee since the introduction of the ngultrum in 1974. Under the RMA Act of Bhutan 2010 (Provisions 88 and 89), the Bhutanese government, on recommendation of the RMA, may declare the external value of the ngultrum, and the RMA will determine the appropriate external value. The RMA does not publish the intervention data.

		declare the external value of the ngultrum vis-à-vis currencies for which the RMA determines a fixed exchange rate or the width of the exchange rate band against that of foreign currencies whose rate or width it considers compatible with the primary monetary policy objective. The rates for currencies other than the Indian rupee are determined on the basis of the prevailing rupee exchange rates (average rate) against the currencies concerned. The official exchange rate is used for all foreign exchange transactions in Bhutan. The method as mentioned above is prevailing rupee exchange rates (average rate) against the currencies concerned plus fixed margin as decided by the RMA.

Foreign exchange market	Yes.	Banks may charge customers a spread of 0.2% above or below the dealing rate used by the RMA. Hotels licensed under restricted authorized money changers (AMCs) may charge a commission of 0.5% on cash only. ADs (banks and AMCs) use exchange rates that are determined by the RMA on a daily basis.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	In addition to the six depository institutions operating in Bhutan, there are 65 AMCs licensed by the RMA. These AMCs may purchase but not sell foreign currency. Financial Institutions licensed under the Financial Services Act of Bhutan 2012 as of end 2022 is 9 of which 5 commercial banks. Commercial banks may only make foreign exchange transactions with the CB. These banks may maintain accounts abroad, conduct operations for the purchase and sale of banknotes, and make foreign currency payments and transfers on behalf of their clients. As of December 2022, there were 65 AMCs licensed by the RMA. As stipulated in Chapter IIIC of the Foreign Exchange Regulations 202, any person other than authorized bank may apply for a license from the RMA to carry out money-changing business in Bhutan. Accordingly, these licensed AMC operations are limited to (1) buying from individual's banknotes and traveler's checks denominated in convertible currencies against the ngultrum or (2) selling to an authorized bank, holdings of banknotes and traveler's checks denominated in convertible currencies against the ngultrum. They are not allowed to operate like authorized banks, viz. maintain accounts abroad or transfer on behalf of their clients. The RMA allows commercial banks to hold convertible currency up to the maximum limit of US$15 million, beyond which the commercial banks are required to sell it to the RMA.

Currency	Yes.	The boliviano is the unit of the monetary system of the Plurinational State of Bolivia. It is issued by the Central Bank of Bolivia (CBB) and has been legal tender since January 1, 1987.

Stabilized arrangement	Yes.	The de jure exchange rate arrangement of the Plurinational State of Bolivia is a crawling peg to the US dollar (also called a “sliding” rate) and is characterized by small exchange rate movements that are not announced in advance. The CBB determines the floor price for the daily competitive foreign exchange auction (“bolsín”) in which the financial private sector and the nonfinancial private sector participate. The CBB ensures that the exchange rate is consistent with moderate inflation, thus mitigating external and internal inflationary pressures, because the exchange rate is still used as a benchmark for the prices of nontradable goods, albeit to a decreasing extent because of bolivianization (dedollarization) in real and financial transactions. The exchange rates used in most exchange transactions fluctuate daily within a band of 12 centavos (1.7%), defined by the official buying and selling exchange rates (Bs. 6.86 and Bs. 6.96, respectively) plus a margin of one centavo at each end. Because the boliviano stabilized against the US dollar since November 2011, the de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as a stabilized arrangement. The authorities consider that the de facto stabilized arrangement does not fully reflect the exchange arrangement managed by the CBB because the official policy of a crawling peg has not changed. The CBB's crawling peg mechanism allows the sliding rate to be set at 0 without changing the arrangement if the underlying economic fundamentals warrant it. The CBB publishes information on its exchange market interventions and on its foreign exchange purchases and sales in the "Weekly Statistics" section and in other publications such as the Monthly Statistical Bulletin, all of which are available on its website. Publication of the size of interventions is published daily, and the exchange rate of operations registered during the day is updated daily.

Official exchange rate	Yes.	The official selling exchange rate is the minimum auction price resulting from the bolsín. The official exchange rate is used for official transactions, and the buying rate (Bs. 0.10 less than the official rate) is used for valuation and accounting purposes. The CBB uses the official selling exchange rate of the day for same-day sales of US dollars to the general public and to financial institutions, by debiting the accounts in domestic currency and crediting the accounts in US dollars held with financial institutions (Board Resolution No. 63/2013). The CBB can sell US$ to financial institutions and to the general public on the same day at the official selling exchange rate in effect (RD No. 63/2013). The majority of foreign exchange operations transacted by financial institutions and exchange bureaus are carried out at an exchange rate within the band defined by the buying and selling exchange rates, plus a margin of Bs. 0.01 at each end. The CBB does not sell US dollars directly to the general public (ventas en ventanillas) and/or through FIs that are majority State-owned. The CBB sells dollars to financial intermediaries (FIs) through two arrangements (bolsin and direct same-day sales). Similarly, foreign currency (FC) can be acquired from any FI.

Exchange tax	Yes.	The Financial Transactions Tax (Impuesto a las Transacciones Financieras – ITF) is levied on transactions performed in FC and in domestic currency indexed to any FC. The rate applies to the gross amount of the transaction and applies to taxpayers who are individuals or legal entities and who hold current or savings accounts. Law No. 1135 of December 20, 2018, amended Law No. 713, extending the effective date of the ITF until December 31, 2023, maintaining a rate of 0.30% while in force. The following are exempt from this tax: (1) credits to and debits from the savings accounts of individuals in FC and in indexed domestic currency, up to US$2,000 or its equivalent in other FCs; (2) on the condition of reciprocity and enforceability of agreements and treaties, credits to and debits from bank accounts corresponding to diplomatic and consular missions and diplomatic personnel; (3) credits to or debits from accounts belonging to the judicial branch, the legislative branch, the central government, the CBB, and departmental and municipal autonomous governments, except publicly owned enterprises; (4) credits to and debits from accounts held by entities governed by the Securities Market Law in the financial system or with the CBB, corresponding to investment accounts belonging to third parties; (5) credits to current or savings accounts through remittances from abroad; and (6) redemption and earnings of shares in investment funds with balances (in domestic or FC) less than or equal to US$2,000.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	(1) FIs supervised by the regulator (Financial System Supervisory Authority – ASFI), and exchange bureaus, may sell US dollars to their clients at an exchange rate no greater than one (1) boliviano cent from the official selling exchange rate in effect on the date of each operation. (Article 21 RD No. 063/2013). (2) FIs supervised by the regulator (ASFI), and exchange bureaus, may purchase US dollars from their clients and users at an exchange rate not less than one (1) Boliviano cent from the CBB buying exchange rate in effect on the date of each operation (Article 22 RD No. 063/2013). (3) Owing to the pandemic, and as an exchange rate hedging mechanism, the CBB created the liquidity lending funds known as CPVIS Fund – II and CPVIS III; in 2021, it created the CPRO Fund, through which FIs constitute funds in FC resulting from a reduction in the FC legal reserve ratio, and may request loans in local currency to encourage portfolio growth. In addition, a voluntary contribution option was set up to enable FIs to increase their participation in the funds by making voluntary contributions in FC, to request liquidity loans from the CBB in local currency at preferential rates. The CPVIS II and CPVIS III funds are valid until March 2026. A voluntary contribution option is available for the CPVIS II fund. The CPRO fund is valid until March 2025 and includes a voluntary contribution option until December 2023.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	The fee (or service charge) for outward fund transfers by the financial system through the CBB is 1% and the fee for funds transfers received by the financial system through the CBB is 0.6% (Board Resolution No. 175/2015). The exceptions are as follows: (1) transfers from exporters through the CBB and remittances equivalent to US$1,000 or less and (2) transactions carried out through the financial system by the diplomatic corps, cooperation agencies, and international bodies. The temporary ITF, mentioned in III.F above, is separate from the service charge mentioned in this paragraph. The commissions on transfers from the financial system through the CBB are 1.6% for transfers abroad and 0.0% for transfers from abroad (Board Resolution No. 18/2016). Included are transactions through the CBB for exports and remittances, and transactions through the financial system for the diplomatic corps, cooperation agencies, and international bodies, and remittances less than or equal to US$1,000. The fee for transfers of funds sent by the financial system through the CBB is 2% (Board Resolution No. 39/2017). Charges on transfers for 2019 remain at 2% for transfers going abroad and 0% for transfers from abroad RD 177/2018. From January 1, 2020, the commission for transfers abroad decreased from 2% to 0.1% for the payment of capital and interest for financing from multilateral organizations for the private sector. For the financial system, they remain at 2% for transfers abroad and 0% for transfers from abroad (RD 152/2019). From January 1, 2021, the commission for the financial system is 2% for transfers abroad and 0% for transfers from abroad (RD 143/2020). Exchange transactions may be freely executed and require no special authorization. Commercial banks, exchange bureaus, individuals, legal entities, and nonfinancial private sectors are authorized to deal in foreign exchange. The foreign exchange bought in official public sales by the CBB is freely available for use by the buyer. Foreign exchange sold at auction may be bought only by institutions holding accounts with the CBB, whether for themselves or on behalf of their clients. Effective March 6, 2023, the CBB announced that it would start selling US dollars directly to the public and established a dollar selling mechanism through Banco Unión to meet the unusual public demand for foreign exchange. Previously, the CBB did not sell US dollars directly to the general public and/or through FIs that are majority state owned. Exchange bureaus also trade in FC and are subject to supervision and regulation by the ASFI, pursuant to ASFI Resolution No. 486/2011 of June 16, 2011. The Regulation governing Exchange Bureaus, issued September 14, 2011, establishes guidelines for the creation of exchange bureaus and for the process of conforming to those in operation as of June 16, 2011. The services that exchange bureaus with legal status can engage in were also defined, such as buying and selling currency, exchanging traveler's checks, sending and receiving domestic transfers, exchanging and paying remittances from abroad in the capacity of payment agent and, for single-person exchange bureaus only, the buying and selling of currency. As of December 31, 2022, 177 exchange bureaus and 7 money transfer and remittance companies were registered with an ASFI operating license.

Operated by the central bank	Yes.	The CBB buys FC from the financial system at the buying exchange rate of the day, without any restriction as to the amount. In turn, the CBB sells FC to the financial and nonfinancial private sectors through the various mechanisms specified in the previous section.
Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	Exchange market participants may buy FC at the CBB, and the CBB in turn sells FC to the financial and nonfinancial private sectors and to the public sector.
Allocation	No.
Auction	Yes.	Exchange Regulation No. 063/2013, in its Articles 8 to 18, regulates

		FC sales through the bolsín. There are no specific auction regulations as such. The CBB sells FC at a bolsín-denominated daily auction. The Monetary and Exchange Policy Committee (Comité de Política Monetaria y Cambiaria – CPMC) determines the amounts to be auctioned. The information on the supply of FC is published each day on the CBB website. The floor price is set by the CBB president, who directs the allocation of FCs in descending price order, provided it is higher than the floor price, until the bid is exhausted. Financial institutions may participate in these auctions on their own account or on behalf of their clients with a minimum bid of US$100,000; the nonfinancial private sector may also participate. In the applications to participate in the bolsín, the banks only specify if the FCs to be acquired at the auction are for the banks themselves or for their clients. Once these are awarded, they can be withdrawn through the CBB vaults for domestic use or transferred abroad; in the latter case, the bank must fill out a form where they are asked the reason for the transfer, which is usually for trade (imports) or for the bank's own operations. Auction results are published on the CBB website daily. Bidders pay their offered price. Bids without the necessary resources are rejected and the bidder is barred from bolsín participation for five business days. If the US dollar amount offered is not sufficient to meet all the bids submitted at a particular exchange rate, the dollars are awarded on a prorated basis. The total offer of US$150 million per day is distributed as follows: the CBB's daily offer of dollars through the bolsín is US$100 million, and direct sales amount to US$50 million. Minute No. 024/2014 of December 23, 2014, of the CPMC. The CBB purchases FC from the financial system at the buying rate of the day, without any restriction as to the amount.

The LGA of July 28, 1999, and Law No. 2492 of August 2, 2003, provide that the Executive may establish the tariff rates (TRs) applicable to imported goods.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

Within this framework, in accordance with the Community and Productive Social Economic Model (MESCP) implemented by the Bolivian government, the policies adopted through tariff measures are intended to encourage the consumption of goods made in Bolivia and foster the substitution of imports with domestic production.

Tariff Schedule
To contribute to transformation of the means of production with a view to prioritizing strategic sectors that add value and diversification, while leveraging and focusing on domestic market potential and supply, without ignoring external demand, a schedule of tariffs for merchandise imports was established comprising seven TRs, with rates of 0% and 5% to encourage imports of capital goods and inputs and foster change in the productive matrix; medium rates of 10%, 15%, and 20% so as not to affect imports of goods included in the household basket; and high rates of 30% and 40% to discourage merchandise imports that compete with national production, primarily manufactured goods.

Furthermore, imports are subject to the VAT and, in the case of certain goods, they are subject to the Specific Consumption Tax and the Special Tax on Hydrocarbons and their Derivatives.

Tax and Customs Treatment Applicable to Specific Products.

The Plurinational State of Bolivia has established tariff deferrals for certain goods to promote the productive sector and has also given priority to the import of medical inputs and medication to combat the COVID-19 pandemic.

S.D. No. 4227, of April 28, 2020, defers the TR for the import of inputs and medicines for the treatment of COVID-19 and other basic diseases to 0%.

S.D. No. 4299 eliminates the granting of prior import authorizations (S.D. 2752) for articles used for transportation or packaging.
S.D. No. 4372 reduces the engine and tire tariffs to promote road safety and reduce the likelihood of accidents.

The rates on finished goods or those that generate some negative externality were modified, to protect the industry and the population in general.

Law No. 1391 of August 31, 2021, which establishes tax incentives for the import and commercialization of capital goods and industrial plants pertaining to the agricultural and industrial sectors, for economic reactivation and promotion of the import substitution policy; and approval of its Regulatory S.D. No. 4579, on exemption from the payment of VAT on the import, and commercialization in the domestic market, of capital goods, industrial plants and vehicles of high volume and tonnage capacity.
S.D. No. 4514, of May 26, 2021, with the aim of protecting domestic industry and encouraging the consumption of Bolivian products, and also encouraging reading, modifies the TRs for publications and printed matter, ceramic plates and tiles, and glass canisters, bottles, and jars.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

S.D. No. 4521, of June 16, 2021, makes it easier for autonomous governments to engage in direct foreign procurement of COVID-19 vaccines.
S.D. No. 4522, of June 16, 2021, modifies the import customs TRs for: chicken, powdered milk, cocoa, potatoes, tomatoes, onions, apples, and strawberries.
S.D. No. 4539, of July 7, 2021, to encourage the assembly of electric vehicles, modifies the import TRs for telematic control units, telematic systems, and electric motors. The TRs for electric motor vehicles and agricultural machinery are also modified.

S.D. No. 4728, effective May 26, 2022, with the aim of promoting domestic production, the purpose of this S.D. is to alter the TRs on potatoes (20%), tomatoes (20%), onions (30%), and strawberries (20%). These rates will remain in force until September 30, 2022.

S.D. 4573: Alters TRs until December 31, 2022, on goods identified in tariff subheadings of the Bolivian Customs Import Tariff that include dairy products and derivatives, sugar and derivatives, confectionery, fruits, vinegars, candles, saddlery, leather goods, and light household goods.

Trade Agreements.

The Plurinational State of Bolivia grants preferential treatment to imports from countries with which it has preferential agreements within the framework of ALADI.

The tariff preferences granted in the framework of all the agreements amount to 100% of the tariff universe except for the agreement with Mexico and with Chile.

Similarly, with the Bolivarian Republic of Venezuela, there is a tariff preference equal to 100% of the tariff universe. Outside the ALADI framework, there is a tariff preference with the Bolivarian Republic of Venezuela.

Donation of Goods.

Subsequently, Law No. 617 of December 17, 2014, determined that imports of goods donated to public entities directly from abroad or acquired by them with resources derived from nonreimbursable financial cooperation or from donations will be exempt from the full payment of customs duties.

In addition, S.D. No. 2308 of March 25, 2015, regulating Law No. 617, establishes the procedure and the requirements for processing exemption from import duties on in-kind donations of goods or on goods acquired with resources derived from donations or nonreimbursable cooperation

Thus, export permits are granted without quota restrictions when this activity does not jeopardize the supply of basic products.
With quotas	Yes.	The Government of the Plurinational State of Bolivia established a socioeconomic policy that puts the country's food security and food sovereignty first. The policy aims to prevent usury, speculation, and/or price increases of certain basic foodstuffs. Steps have been taken to authorize exports of certain products only after verification of adequate fairly priced domestic supplies. S.D. No. 3456 of January 10, 2018: (1) amends and incorporates provisions into S.D. No. 1554, regulating Law No. 307 on the sugarcane production complex to promote exports and (2) established oversight and monitoring mechanisms for ensuring conditions for adequate fairly priced domestic supplies, taking market conditions into account. S.D. No. 3920 of May 29, 2019, authorizes soybean exports equal to 60% of the national production of the previous fiscal year according to official National Statistics Institute (INE) data after verification of sufficiency and supply in the domestic market at a fair price. S.D. No. 4139 of January 22, 2020 revokes the Certificate of Internal Supply and Fair Price issued by the National Customs Service and eliminates the following products from the list of those that may be subject to temporary suspension of exports: beef and live cattle, corn and its by-products, sorghum, oil, and sugar.

Article 471 of Law No. 393 on Financial Services stipulates that the ASFI will regulate the maximum limits on investment abroad by FIs, that is, entities that accept deposits and grant loans. In accordance with ASFI Resolution No. 429/2016 of June 17, 2016, the limits on investing in shares of multilateral financing organizations may not exceed 40% of the bank's regulatory capital. Investments in shares of auxiliary financial service companies, in enterprises in the securities, insurance, and pension sectors, and in development banks may not exceed the amount of their regulatory capital, insofar as it is a requirement for obtaining credit lines. Through Resolution No. 247/2019, ASFI modified the Regulation of Investments in Fixed Assets and Operations with Foreign Entities and lowered the foreign investment limit of banks from 25% to 15% of regulatory capital. To compute this limit, investments in time deposits and securities abroad are considered, in addition to the account of banks and corresponding entities abroad. Additionally, through Resolution No. 246/2019, ASFI approved reducing limits on investment abroad for new open and closed investment funds from 25% to 5%. This limit will not apply to investment funds that are currently in operation. It was established, however, that the limit applicable to these funds will be the percentage of investments reached and reported up to March 27, 2019. Pursuant to ASFI Resolution No. 145/2021, the limit on investments and demand deposits abroad held by financial intermediation entities was reduced from 15% to 10% of regulatory capital. Moreover, in accordance with Law No. 65 of December 10, 2010, investments abroad by pension fund managers may not exceed 50% of each managed fund. Administrative Resolution APS/DJ/UI/No. 464/2017 states that the National General Treasury of Bolivia (TGN) may also directly or indirectly invest the resources of Integrated Pension System's Funds (Fondos del Sistema Integral de Pensiones – SIP Funds) in foreign debt securities up to the limit of 10% of the total amount of each issue through the intermediaries contracted by the Ministry of the Economy and Public Finance of the Plurinational State of Bolivia. Administrative Resolution APS/DJ/DI/No. 222/2021 of March 15, 2021, amends the second paragraph of Article 6 of the Investment Regulation, providing that SIP Funds may be invested in debt

It includes aspects focused on financial consumer protection and the development of the housing and productive sectors by establishing a system to control interest rates and minimum portfolio levels (S.D. No. 1842 and S.D. No. 2055). It also strengthens the prudential and solvency measures applicable to financial institutions, in addition to establishing deposit insurance for low-income savers, who account for more than 90% of the total number of deposit accounts. Law No. 921 of March 29, 2017, amends the first paragraph of Article 51 ter. of Law No. 843, as amended by Law No. 771 of December 29, 2015, establishing that when the rate of return on equity of financial intermediation entities regulated by the ASFI exceeds 6%, the net taxable profits of these entities will be subject to an additional corporate income tax rate of 25%.
Borrowing abroad	Yes.	In accordance with Chapter VIII of Title II of Book 2 of the Compilation of Standards for Financial Services, revised April 27, 2018, short-term foreign liabilities are subject to reserve requirements, with the exception of liabilities incurred solely in connection with foreign trade operations in which the assets and liabilities of each transaction are exactly matched.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	No.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	No.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	In accordance with the ASFI Circular of December 16, 2010, as amended by ASFI Resolution No. 13/2014, the specific provisions for loans denominated in FC or in indexed domestic currency (MNV) as a function of the category and type of credit are as follows: Category A: (1) For Business, Microcredit, SMEs 2.25% and 1% for direct and contingent, respectively; (2) for housing (direct and contingent) Residential mortgage credit, social residential mortgage credit, and social residential credit with no mortgage guarantee, 2.5%; (3) for housing (direct and contingent) Residential credit without mortgage guarantee and duly secured home loans without mortgage guarantee, 7%; (4) for consumption (direct and contingent), 7%. Category C: 20% for all types of loans; Category D: 50% for all types of loans; Category E: 80% for all types of loans; Category F: 100% for all types of loans.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	No.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.
Reserve requirements	Yes.	The reserve requirement regime varies by currency. Via CBB Board Resolution No. 35/2019, the reserve requirement for deposits in FC and MVDOL (unit of account indexed to the exchange rate vis-à-vis the US dollar) for demand deposits, savings account deposits, and DPFs up to 360 days is 31.5% (previously 46.5%), 18% for DPFs between 360 and 720 days (previously 33%), and 10% for DPFs greater than 720 days (previously 25%). With the release of these resources, the Fund for Loans to the Productive Sector and Social Interest Housing III (CPVIS III Fund) was created. In addition, it allows the CBB or one or more foreign institutions to act as delegated administrators in the administration of the FC Liquid Assets Requirement Fund (RAL-ME). For domestic currency and domestic currency indexed to the Housing Development Unit (MNUFV), it is 11% for demand deposits, savings account deposits, and DPFs of 30–360 days, 5% in securities and 6% in cash. Deposits in MN and UFV greater than 360 days are exempt from reserve requirements. For funds in escrow, which is the percentage of cash reserves that FIs hold in FC and MVDOL in their vaults, the reserve requirement is 40%, and for domestic currency, it is up to 50% for MNUFV. Board Resolution No. 044/2020 of March 24, 2020 adds the single transitory provision to the Reserve Requirements, specifically referring to the Extraordinary Reserve Requirement associated with the Exceptional Funds. The exceptional funds received by FIs must be used in the construction of new portfolios between April 1, 2020, and July 31, 2020. If this increase is less than the amount established in the schedule, the FIs must constitute an extraordinary legal reserve in cash for 100% of the difference. Board Resolution No. 055/2020 of May 15, 2020 modified the Single Transitional Provision so that the exceptional funds also reach Development Financial Institutions and Credit Unions when calculating new portfolio creation. Via Board Resolution No. 060/2020, the reserve requirements were reduced as follows: (1) in domestic currency and MNUFV (cash) from 6% to 5.5%; (2) in domestic currency and MNUFV (securities) from 5% to 4.5%; (3) in FC and MVDOL (cash) from 13.5% to 10%; (4) in FC and MVDOL (securities) from 18% to 11%; except for time deposits of 720 days or more, for which 10% is maintained. FIs may maintain up to 60% of their cash reserve requirement in domestic currency and MNUFV in Funds in Custody in any location; previously, the percentage was 50%. The released resources (from the reductions in the reserve requirements) should be kept at the Fondo para Créditos para la Board Resolution No. 071/2020 of July 31, 2020, granted authorization on an exceptional basis for loans granted from the CAPROSEN fund to compensate for the extraordinary legal reserve for non-compliance with the portfolio targets for the July and August 2020 account closings. It also includes the portfolio resulting from loans to IFDs and Savings and Loan Cooperatives (CACs) between April 1 and September 30, 2020. Board Resolution No. 081/2020 of September 8, 2020, modified the CPVIS III Fund so that loans requested from the CBB by EFVs, CACs, and IFDs using their Fund resources as collateral would not be conditional on any sort of increase in the portfolio. Furthermore, the credit granted by banks to CACs and IFDs is recorded as part of the allocation of the proceeds of loans requested by banks from the CBB using their resources in the CPVIS III Fund as collateral.

Board Resolution No. 018/2021 of January 21, 2021, extended the terms of the CPVIS III Fund. In this connection, liquidity loans may be requested until January 3, 2022, and the liquidity loans will come due January 31, 2022.
Board Resolution No. 047/2021 of March 23, 2021, extended the terms of the CPVIS II [sic] Fund with regard to voluntary contributions until June 30, 2022, requests for liquidity loans until September 30, 2022, and the maturity of liquidity loans and the repayment of CBB resources to FIs until December 31, 2022.

Effective January 10, 2022, Board Resolution No. 147/2021 (Article 5) amends the regulation on required reserve ratios as follows: The legal required reserve ratios on liabilities specified in Article 3 of the regulation are as follows; in domestic currency and MNUFV, a 5.5% reserve in cash and 3.5% (previously 4.5%) in securities. In FC and MVDOL, 10% in cash and 9% (previously 11%) in securities for DPFs with maturities longer than 720 days; and 10% for other liabilities. FIs must constitute a legal reserve in cash, at a rate of 100%, on accounts included in “Other liabilities with the public, companies with State participation, and banks and other lending institutions.”

Board Resolution (RD) No. 076/2022 of August 26, 2022, approves the new Regulation Governing Reserve Requirements, which repeals the previous provisions: RD No. 018/2020 of February 18, 2020, RD No. 044/2020 of March 24, 2020, RD No. 055/2020 of May 15, 2020, RD No. 060/2020 of June 29, 2020, RD No. 071/2020 of July 31, 2020, RD No. 081/2020 of September 8, 2020, RD No. 018/2021 of January 21, 2021, RD No. 047/2021 of March 23, 2021, RD No. 094/2021 of August 13, 2021, RD No. 141/2021 of November 30, 2021, RD No. 147/2021 of December 28, 2021, and RD No. 046/2022 of June 22, 2022.

Effective August 26, 2022, the legal reserve requirement rates are therefore established by Board Resolution (RD) No. 076/2022 as follows:
(1) In foreign currency and MVDOL:
- 10% reserve in cash for demand deposits, savings account deposits, and fixed-term deposits (DPFs); DPFs with maturities longer than 360 days are exempt from these legal reserve requirements.
- 9% reserve in securities for DPFs with maturities longer than 720 days, and 10% for other liabilities.
(2) In domestic currency and MNUFV:

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

- 5.5% reserve in cash for demand deposits, savings account deposits, and DPFs; DPFs with maturities longer than 360 days are exempt from these legal reserve requirements.
- 3.5% reserve in securities for demand deposits, savings account deposits, and DPFs; DPFs with maturities longer than 360 days are exempt from these legal reserve requirements.
FIs must constitute a legal reserve in cash, at a rate of 100%, on accounts included in "Other liabilities with the public, companies with State participation, and banks and other lending institutions."

The same rule states that, for funds in escrow, which is the percentage of cash reserves that FIs hold in FC and MVDOL in their vaults, the reserve requirement must be 40% and, for domestic currency and MNUFV, up to 60%.

Additionally, a single final provision in Board Resolution No. 076/2022 establishes the extraordinary legal reserve (ELE) as follows: FIs that, as of April 1, 2020, would have generated a new gross portfolio for the nonfinancial private sector, for development finance institutions, and for savings and loan cooperatives (NCB) lower than the exceptional funds (FEs) received through the DPF issuance in March 2020 must maintain an ELE in cash. The ELE will be 100% of the difference between the FEs and the NCB. FIs that increase their NCB by at least 100% of the FEs are exempt from the ELE; otherwise, the ELE is maintained for the difference until that condition is fulfilled. Lastly, continuity is also provided for in the constitution of liquidity lending funds through prior modifications to the legal reserve ratio.

Effective November 15, 2022, Board Resolution No. 107/2022 of November 15, 2022, amends the legal reserve ratio in securities as follows:
(1) In foreign currency and MVDOL:
- 4% reserve for DPFs with maturities longer than 720 days, and 5% for other liabilities.
(2) In domestic currency and MNUFV:
- 3% reserve for demand deposits, savings account deposits, and DPFs; DPFs with maturities longer than 360 days are exempt from these legal reserve requirements.

Subsequently, effective February 27, 2023, Board Resolution No. 043/2023 of February 27, 2023, amends the reserve ratios as follows:
In domestic currency and MNUFV:
- 7.5% reserve in cash for demand deposits, savings account deposits, and DPFs; DPFs with maturities longer than 360 days are exempt from these legal reserve requirements.
- 5% reserve in securities for demand deposits, savings account deposits, and DPFs; DPFs with maturities longer than 360 days are exempt from these legal reserve requirements.
The same provision also provides for a decrease to 20% in the requirement for funds in escrow in FC and MVDOL.

Board Resolution No. 036/2023 of February 16, 2023, incorporates an additional provision whereby the CBB may authorize temporary exemptions to the provisions of the Regulation Governing Reserve Requirements by express notice from the General Manager to the ASFI.

A month later, effective March 24, 2023, Board Resolution No. 054/2023 of March 24, 2023, again amended the requirement for funds in escrow in FC and MVDOL to 10%. The final amendment to legal reserve ratios was made by way of Board Resolution No. 066/2023 of April 20, 2023, as follows: In domestic currency and MNUFV: - 5.5% reserve in cash for demand deposits, savings account deposits, and DPFs; DPFs with maturities longer than 360 days are exempt from these legal reserve requirements. - 3% reserve in securities for demand deposits, savings account deposits, and DPFs; DPFs with maturities longer than 360 days are exempt from these legal reserve requirements.

Abroad by banks	Yes.	Article 471 of Law No. 393 on Financial Services stipulates that the ASFI will regulate the maximum limits on investment abroad by FIs, that is, entities that accept deposits and grant loans. ASFI Resolution No. 429/2016 of June 17, 2016, specifies the following maximum limits for investment by banks abroad: FIs, entities that accept deposits and grant loans, may invest up to 40% of their regulatory capital to set up branches or fixed agencies abroad, and/or to purchase shares in multilateral lending institutions abroad. Investments in shares of complementary financial services companies, firms in the securities, insurance and pension sectors, and in development banks may not exceed the amount of their regulatory capital, when it is a requirement for obtaining credit lines. Through Resolution No. 247/2019, ASFI modified the Regulation of Investments in Fixed Assets and Operations with Foreign Entities and lowered the foreign investment limit of banks from 25% to 15% of regulatory capital. To compute this limit, investments in time deposits and securities abroad are considered, in addition to the account of banks and corresponding entities abroad. In addition, the new formula to calculate the limit takes the monthly average of the daily balance of the sub-accounts with the cutoff date on the last day of the month. The deadline to comply with this limit is June 28, 2019. Additionally, through Resolution No. 246/2019, ASFI approved reducing limits on investment abroad for new open and closed investment funds from 25% to 5%. This limit will not apply to investment funds currently in operation. It was established, however, that the limit applicable to these funds will be the percentage of investments reached and reported up to March 27, 2019. 		approved and put into effect the Regulation that provides for the responsibility of financial intermediation entities to control the financing received or granted. It provides for the obligation of the Internal Audit Unit of the financial intermediation entity to incorporate, within its Annual Work Plan, the verification of the financing contracted by the entity. It determines that the supervised entities must have policies and procedures to achieve an optimal management of the financing, allowing for the expansion of credit coverage to the productive sector. It specifies that FIs must consider preventive measures for the control of financing to monitor that it does not exceed the legal limits. It also stipulates that the supervised entity that grants financing must have policies and procedures for assessing and mitigating the risk inherent in the financing; and credit coverage for the production sector in rural areas must take the classification of urban and rural municipalities into account. ASFI Resolution No. 145/2021, which amends the Regulation on Investments in Fixed Assets and Operations with Foreign Entities, establishes that investments abroad may not exceed 10% of regulatory capital. Pursuant to ASFI Resolution No. 202/2021, for the purposes of computing the limits, investments in sovereign debt bonds issued abroad by the Plurinational State of Bolivia are also considered to be investments abroad starting in fiscal year 2021. Administrative Resolution APS/DJ/DI/No. 222/2021 of March 15, 2021, amends the second paragraph of Article 6 of the Investment Regulation, providing that SIP Funds may be invested in debt securities issued abroad by the TGN (Bolivian Sovereign Bonds) up to 2.5% of the total amount of the fourth issue for each AFP. These limits were modified by way of Administrative Resolution APS/DJ/DI/No. 120/2022 of February 2, 2022, up to 5% of the total amount of the fourth issue for each AFP. Administrative Resolution APS/DJ/DP/No. 036/2023 of January 16, 2023, amends Article 6 of the Investment Regulation, providing that SIP Funds may be invested in debt securities issued abroad by the TGN (Bolivian Sovereign Bonds) up to 2% of the total amount of the fifth issue for each AFP. The investment limit for investments made abroad in Bolivian Sovereign Bonds of the first, second, and third issues will be the level recorded on the date of notification of Administrative Resolution APS/DJ/DP/No. 036/2023.

Changes during 2022 and 2023

Exchange Arrangement

Foreign exchange market

Spot exchange market	03/06/2023	The Central Bank of Bolivia (CBB) announced that it would start selling US dollars directly to the public and established a dollar selling mechanism through Banco Unión to meet the unusual public demand for foreign exchange. Previously, the CBB did not sell US dollars directly to the general public and/or through FIs that are majority state owned.

Imports and Import Payments

Import taxes and/or tariffs	05/26/2022	With the aim of promoting domestic production, the purpose of this Supreme Decree is to alter the tariff rates on potatoes (20%), tomatoes (20%), onions (30%), and strawberries (20%). These rates will remain in force until September 30, 2022.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange
Reserve requirements	01/10/2022	Board Resolution No. 147/2021 (Article 5) amends the regulation on required reserve ratios as follows: The legal required reserve ratios on liabilities specified in Article 3 of the regulation are as follows; in domestic currency and National Currency Housing Development Unit, a 5.5% reserve in cash and 3.5% (previously 4.5%) in securities. In foreign currency and MVDOL, 10% in cash and 9% (previously 11%) in securities for fixed-term deposits with maturities longer than 720 days; and 10% for other liabilities.
	08/26/2022	The legal reserve requirement rates are therefore established by Board Resolution (RD) No. 076/2022 as follows: (1) In foreign currency and MVDOL: - 10% reserve in cash for demand deposits, savings account deposits, and fixed-term deposits (DPFs); DPFs with maturities longer than 360 days are exempt from these legal reserve requirements. - 9% reserve in securities for DPFs with maturities longer than 720 days, and 10% for other liabilities. (2) In domestic currency and MNUFV: - 5.5% reserve in cash for demand deposits, savings account deposits, and DPFs; DPFs with maturities longer than 360 days are exempt from these legal reserve requirements. - 3.5% reserve in securities for demand deposits, savings account deposits, and DPFs; DPFs with maturities longer than 360 days are exempt from these legal reserve requirements. FIs must constitute a legal reserve in cash, at a rate of 100%, on accounts included in “Other liabilities with the public, companies with State participation, and banks and other lending institutions.” The same rule states that, for funds in escrow, which is the percentage of cash reserves that FIs hold in FC and MVDOL in their vaults, the reserve requirement must be 40% and, for domestic currency and MNUFV, up to 60%.
	11/15/2022	Board Resolution No. 107/2022 of November 15, 2022, amends the legal reserve ratio in securities as follows: (1) In foreign currency and MVDOL: - 4% reserve for DPFs with maturities longer than 720 days, and 5% for other liabilities. (2) In domestic currency and MNUFV: - 3% reserve for demand deposits, savings account deposits, and DPFs; DPFs with maturities longer than 360 days are exempt from these legal reserve requirements.
	02/27/2023	Board Resolution No. 043/2023 of February 27, 2023 provides for a decrease to 20% in the requirement for funds in escrow in FC and MVDOL.
	03/24/2023	Board Resolution No. 054/2023 of March 24, 2023, again amended the requirement for funds in escrow in FC and MVDOL to 10%.

Crawling peg	Yes.	The de jure and de facto exchange rate arrangements are classified as a crawling peg. The official exchange rate of the pula is determined according to a weighted basket of currencies comprising the SDR and the South African rand. The crawl rate is set as the difference between the Bank of Botswana's (BOB's) inflation objective and the average inflation forecast in major trading partner countries. The crawl rate is thus determined using a forward-looking approach and is revised regularly. In this approach, the authorities periodically determine the crawl rate for the subsequent period, such as the next 6 or 12 months. The weights of the basket are 45% for the South African rand and 55% for the SDR. The rate of crawl was changed from a downward rate of crawl of 2.87% per annum for 2022 to a downward rate of crawl of 1.51% for 2023, while the weights of the Pula basket remained unchanged. This rate of crawl took into account the projected reduced inflation differential between Botswana and trading partner inflation in 2023. Decisions relating to this framework are made by the President of the Republic of Botswana on the recommendation of the Minister of Finance after consultation with the BOB.

There is no official exchange rate for Brazil as the exchange rate of the real is defined by supply and demand in the foreign exchange market. The Central Bank of Brazil (BCB, in Portuguese: Banco Central do Brasil) intervenes to smooth out excessive volatility and/or provide liquidity and hedge, with the ultimate objective of assuring a functioning foreign exchange market. Consolidated data on intervention in the interbank market are available in the BCB's weekly publication on currency flows on the BCB website with a lag ranging from 7 to 12 days, considering execution dates. However, the Deputy Governor for Monetary Policy may choose to publish intervention volumes on the same day of each auction. Data on interventions in the derivatives market are published on the same day of each auction.

Official exchange rate	Yes.	There is no official exchange rate for the real determined by the BCB. The BCB publishes a reference rate, known as the PTAX rate, which is the average of four polls conducted by the BCB with the group formed by its primary dealers (up to 14 institutions in the domestic US dollar interbank market). The polls start at a random time in the 10 minutes following 10:00, 11:00, 12:00, and 13:00, and the dealers have two minutes to report their bid and ask quotes for the US dollar–Brazilian real (USD–BRL) at the beginning of the poll. The BCB cannot buy or sell at the quotes provided by the dealers, but dealers who consistently provide out-of-market quotes may lose their dealer status. At each poll, the two highest and two lowest bid and ask quotes are trimmed, and the consistency of the final results is tested against market parameters obtained from the BCB's information systems and data feeders. The PTAX rate is published after the last poll results. The BCB does not require that government agencies use the PTAX rate as a benchmark for conversion. However, government agencies and financial institutions generally use the PTAX as it is a reliable reference. According to the foreign exchange regulation, the exchange rate is freely agreed between the parties, including if the government is the client.

CPI	Yes.	National CPI Extended is measured by the Brazilian Institute of Geography and Statistics. The definition is given by the Brazilian Institute of Geography and Statistics. National CPI Extended measures inflation rate for a group of products and services from retail trade, relative to household expenditure. The income range between 1 and 40 minimum wages was created to guarantee a 90% coverage of families living in urban areas.
Core inflation
Target horizon	Yes.	A one-year inflation target and its tolerance interval are fixed 30 months in advance by the CMN, and the BCB must pursue this target. The inflation-targeting framework in Brazil is flexible. The horizon that the BCB sees as appropriate for the return of inflation to the target depends on both the nature of the shocks that affect the economy and their persistence.
Operating target (policy rate)	Yes.
Policy rate	Yes.	The BCB's MPC (COPOM) was created on June 20, 1996, and was assigned the responsibility of setting the stance of monetary policy and the short-term interest rate. The aim of creating the COPOM was to enhance the monetary policy transparency and confer adequate regularity to the monetary policy decision-making process. The Selic rate is the primary instrument of the monetary policy. It is the average interest rate charged on the daily interbank loans – with a maturity of one day (overnight) backed by federal government securities – registered in the Special System of Clearance and Custody (Selic). In sum, the Selic rate balances the market for the bank reserves.

Exchange tax	Yes.	Foreign exchange transactions are subject to the IOF general tax rate of 0.38%, which is levied and collected on the settlement date of the foreign exchange operation. An IOF of 5.38% is applied to foreign exchange transactions related to the purchase of prepaid cards and traveler's checks, and payment transactions carried out through credit and debit cards. On July 29, 2022, Decree No. 11.153 announced that the IOF general tax rate will be gradually reduced to 5.38% effective January 2, 2023; to 4.38% as of January 2, 2024; to 3.38% as of January 2, 2025; to 2.38% as of January 2, 2026; to 1.38% as of January 2, 2027; and to 0% as of January 2, 2028. There are some transactions on which the IOF rate of 0% is already applicable, such as (1) trades involving overseas depositary receipts (DRs) issued by Brazilian companies; (2) inflows of export proceeds; (3) interbank transactions between institutions that make up the national financial system and that are authorized to operate in the foreign exchange market, and between these institutions and institutions abroad; (4) investments by investment funds in the international market, according to the limits and conditions established by the Brazilian Securities and Exchange Commission (Comissão de Valores Mobiliários – CVM); (5) outflows related to local revenues of international air transportation companies domiciled abroad; (6) inflows of foreign currency to cover expenses from the use of credit cards issued abroad; (7) inflows of cash donations received by financial institutions controlled by the Brazilian government and destined for the prevention, monitoring, and combating of deforestation and the promotion of the conservation and sustainable use of Brazilian forests, as provided by specific legislation; (8) inflows and outflows of funds obtained as external loans and financing, including effective March 18, 2022, external loans with maturity less than 180 days (previously, external loans with maturity less than 180 days as well as external loans with an initial term of more than 180 days but repaid within a 180-day period were subject to a 6% IOF rate); (9) remittances of interest on owner's equity and dividends; (10) transactions of foreign investors, including through simultaneous operations, for investment in the financial and capital markets; (11) purchases of foreign exchange by institutions authorized to operate in the foreign exchange market, executed simultaneously with a sale transaction, when required by Law; (12) nonresidents' investments in fixed-income securities and derivative margin deposits; (13) settlements of foreign exchange inflow transactions, including through simultaneously contracted foreign exchange transactions after December 1, 2011, related to inflows stemming from cancelation of DRs invested in stocks in the stock market; (14) use of credit and debit cards by the public sector for acquisition of goods and services abroad; and (15) settlements of foreign exchange operations derived from a foreign investor regime switch from direct investment to investment in stocks traded on a securities exchange according to regulation issued by the CMN. Some cross-border operations have been exempt from the IOF (set in the Law, not amendable by Presidential Decree), most notably operations carried out for payment of imported goods, foreign exchange operations by diplomatic missions, and credit to housing programs or for project purposes, including infrastructure facilities and Itaipu Binacional.

Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	Banks and other institutions authorized to operate in the foreign exchange market may freely negotiate with their clients the exchange rates and foreign exchange commissions in.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	As of November 7, 2023, there were 179 institutions authorized by the BCB to operate in the foreign exchange market buying and selling foreign currency (101 banks and 78 nonbank financial institutions). Any institution authorized by the BCB to operate in the foreign exchange market may maintain accounts abroad for the purpose of performing international payments and transfers on behalf of their clients. Any institution authorized by the BCB to operate in the foreign exchange market can qualify to be a primary foreign exchange dealer, which is eligible to operate directly with the BCB. (In practice, however, because of the weight given to transacted amounts in the qualifying process, only banks have been selected as dealers so far.) Currently, there are 14 primary foreign exchange dealers, which are the only institutions authorized to buy/sell currencies in the BCB's foreign currency auctions. Any of the 179 foreign exchange-authorized institutions, however, can perform operations with the BCB in which they cash their deposits in foreign currencies or vice versa. Nonbanks have a limit of US$300,000 an operation with clients (not applicable to operations in the interbank market). Effective July 1, 2023, payment institutions may be authorized by the BCB to operate in the foreign exchange market to perform operations up to US$100,000 with clients and operations in the interbank market. Banks and nonbanks financial institutions may contract with companies, which act as foreign exchange bureaus to perform foreign exchange operations up to US$3,000 related to unilateral transfers or international travel. The limit is US$1,000 if both the foreign and the national currencies are delivered in cash. There were 5,429 such contractor companies as of November 7, 2023.

Auction	Yes.	Depending on market circumstances, the BCB may execute foreign exchange auctions and direct operations for intervention purposes. The types of auctions performed by the BCB in the interbank market are spot, forward, and credit lines (equivalent to foreign exchange swaps). Only foreign exchange dealers authorized by the BCB are eligible to participate in these auctions. Currently, there are 14 institutions authorized as primary dealers. The dealers are selected every 12 months based on the volume traded in the foreign exchange market and, for those previously authorized, their past performance as dealers. The BCB may also intervene in the derivatives market using specific listed contracts at B3, formerly BM&FBOVESPA, the foreign exchange swaps (formally called US Dollar Swap with Reset Referencing One-Day Repurchase Agreements) which function as synthetic futures contracts. In this kind of auction, any preregistered market participant may take part. In credit lines and foreign exchange swaps auctions, the amounts to be auctioned are preannounced. There is a minimum amount for bids for auctions in the interbank market. In the auctions with preannounced amounts, that is also the maximum bid. The frequency of the auctions is only known if they are part of an intervention program. All BCB auction operations are delivery versus payment (DVP); if an institution's payment fails, that institution will lose its dealer status. Results are disclosed in Communiqués. Brazilian Global dollar-denominated bond repo agreements were introduced in 2020.

Interbank market	Yes.	As of November 7, 2023, there were 179 institutions authorized by the BCB to operate in the interbank foreign exchange market (101 banks and 78 nonbank financial institutions – securities intermediaries and foreign exchange brokerage firms). Nonbanks can only operate on a spot basis, while banks can also perform future or forward operations. There are no limits on the bid-ask spreads and commissions of market participants. The Brazilian currency leg of all foreign exchange interbank transactions must be settled through the BCB-operated real-time gross settlement (RTGS) system. The BCB intervenes in the foreign exchange interbank market mainly with auctions via its primary foreign exchange dealers.
Over the counter	Yes.
Brokerage	Yes.
Market making	Yes.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Concerning the deliverable foreign exchange market, only interbank operations are allowed to be traded on a forward basis, limited to 1,500 days. Forward foreign exchange auctions are one of the instruments available for the BCB for intervention purposes. Effective December 31, 2022, foreign exchange operations with clients may have a future settlement date, with a term up to 1,500 days, except for the operations where the foreign currency is delivered in cash/traveler's checks or where it is credited/withdrawn via cards or other electronic payment means of international use. Previously, foreign exchange operations related to import and financial transactions had to be settled within 360 days, while those related to export or National Treasury transactions had to be settled within 1,500 days.

Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	No.	There are three separate markets for gold transactions: financial, foreign exchange, and commercial. Transactions with gold in any grade of purity (crude or refined) by institutions of the national financial system in the financial market, following the extraction of gold or to implement exchange rate policy, are regulated by the CMN. These transactions are subject to the IOF. Rules regarding gold transactions for industrial purposes are defined separately by the federal states, which also establish different rates for the commercial tax levied thereon. The Electronic Declaration of International Physical Movement of Valuables must be submitted to the customs office of the Secretariat of the Federal Revenue of Brazil (RFB) for imports and exports of gold as a financial or foreign exchange instrument in amounts exceeding R$10,000 or its equivalent.

Held domestically	Yes.	These accounts may be held by institutions authorized to operate in the foreign exchange market, tourism agencies, providers of tourism services, companies providing postal services, issuers of credit card for international use, companies responsible for the development and execution of projects in the energy sector, insurance and reinsurance companies, reinsurance brokers, companies holding rights to explore and produce oil and natural gas, the Union, entities of the direct and indirect administration of the Union, the States, the Municipalities and the Federal District (linked to an external credit operation granted by international organizations and foreign agencies). Foreign exchange accounts of resident clients must be held in banks authorized by the BCB to conduct foreign exchange operations. The balances may be transferred abroad freely.
Approval required	No.
Held abroad	Yes.	The balances in these accounts may be freely transferred to and from Brazil. An IOF tax of 1.1% is applied on foreign exchange transactions for transfers of funds by residents to their foreign exchange accounts held abroad.
Approval required	No.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	Yes.	The balances in these accounts may be freely transferred to and from Brazil.
Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	The balances on accounts held by residents in domestic currency may be freely transferred to and from Brazil as long as the counterparty in the operation is an institution authorized by the BCB to conduct foreign exchange operations.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	Foreign exchange accounts may be held by embassies, foreign delegations, international organizations, foreign transportation companies, foreign citizens in transit in the country, Brazilians living abroad, and reinsurance companies (if authorized to operate in Brazil). The balances in these accounts may be transferred abroad freely. Foreign exchange accounts of nonresident clients must be held in banks authorized by the BCB to conduct foreign exchange operations. Deposits and withdrawals in foreign currency are not subject to tax (IOF), unless a foreign exchange operation is involved, in which case a rate of 0.38% is applied. Some foreign exchange transactions are exempt from the IOF, such as those of diplomatic missions and consular offices and of their foreign officials.
Approval required	No.
Domestic currency accounts	Yes.
Convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	Effective December 31, 2022, nonresident account holders may use these accounts to remit abroad resources on behalf of a third party, but only in the case where the holder of the account is a nonresident institution under financial regulation and supervision in its country of origin – thus, the use of such accounts is free to both receive or remit resources on behalf of a third party. Previously, the use of such accounts held by nonresident banks to perform international transfers on behalf of a third party was allowed for inbound transfers only. An IOF of 5.38% is applied to foreign exchange transactions carried out by institutions part of cross-border Payment Schemes, as nonresident service providers part of these Payment Schemes and holder of a domestic currency account in Brazil, to convert into foreign currency resources from its account for the payment of obligations because of operations abroad carried out by their clients

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget	No.
Financing requirements for imports	No.
Minimum financing requirements	No.
Advance payment requirements	No.	Effective December 31, 2022, the restriction that payment of import financing operations with a maturity of more than 360 days could not be transferred prior to the arrival of the good or to the rendering of the service and the requirement for external financing of imports for periods of more than 360 days to be registered with the BCB were removed.
Advance import deposits	No.
Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports	Yes.
Domiciliation requirements	No.
Preshipment inspection	No.
Letters of credit	No.
Import licenses used as exchange licenses	No.
Other	Yes.	Imports must be registered in the import subsystem of the Integrated Foreign Trade System (Sistema Integrado de Comércio Exterior – SISCOMEX/IMPORT), which allows importers, carriers, banks, and brokers to register the various stages of an import process directly through the interlinked computers of the SECEX and RFB.
Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.	Commercial imports must be registered in Brazil's SISCOMEX. The granting of nonautomatic licenses for imports of used machinery and equipment is conditional on proof that such items are not produced in Brazil and that no substitute item is currently produced in Brazil. Nonautomatic licensing is also used for administration of duty and tax concessions; to benefit, imports must undergo a "similarity examination" to ascertain that there is no equivalent domestic product. Imports are grouped into the following three categories: (1) those that do not require licenses (most common), (2) those subject to automatic import licenses, and (3) those subject to nonautomatic licenses. In general, imports are exempt from approval requirements. However, some require approval (that is, an import license) from the SECEX or another government agency, and it is promptly given to importers that fulfill licensing requirements. As a rule, licenses are valid for 90 days and may be extended if the delay is justified by the importer. Import licenses for certain imports may be obtained after the goods have arrived but before customs clearance. Products subject to automatic licensing are listed in the Administrative Treatment of SISCOMEX and on the Ministry Web page. Products under the special customs regime of drawback are also subject to automatic licensing. Products subject to nonautomatic licensing are listed in the Administrative Treatment of SISCOMEX and on the Ministry Web page. They are mostly products that may damage human, plant, or animal health or cause environmental damage; products classified as weapons or made for warlike purposes; products subject to nontariff quotas as established in the agreements of the Uruguay Round; products subject to tariff quotas; and products subject to trade remedy measures established in accordance with the WTO agreements. The Brazilian normative framework related to similarity examination and import licensing procedures is based on the following legislation: (1) Decree-Law No. 37 of November 18, 1966; (2) Decree No. 6,759 of February 5, 2009; and (3) SECEX Ordinance No. 23 of July 14, 2011. Any person, enterprise, or institution may request import licensing. The only requirement is SISCOMEX registration. Import licenses are obtained through the SISCOMEX. Such an administrative procedure – that integrates the registration activities and monitors imports and exports – is based on the sole flow of computerized information so as to make the process efficient and fast. Importers may request import licensing directly from their institution if it is registered with the SISCOMEX. Imports of used consumer goods are prohibited for environmental, safety, and consumer rights reasons. Used consumer goods may be imported only by the government or education and scientific institutions. Imports of used nonconsumer goods (except aeronautic goods and packaging materials in temporary admission or reimportation) are subject to nonautomatic licensing.

Positive list	No.
Negative list	Yes.	Imports of agrochemical products not authorized under Brazilian regulations are prohibited, as are imports of weapons and military equipment (from Eritrea, the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, and Libya) and of certain drugs, for reasons of security, health, morals, or UNSC resolutions. It is forbidden to import, export, or store dichlorodiphenyltrichloroethane (DDT) and to import and export rough diamonds from countries not participating in the Kimberley Process Certification Scheme.
Open general licenses	No.
Licenses with quotas	Yes.	In addition to imports covered by the LAIA agreement, goods imported through the Manaus and Tabatinga free trade zones are subject to an annual quota. Foreign goods worth up to the equivalent of US$2,000 imported into the Manaus Free Trade Zone may be transferred to other parts of Brazil (as a passenger's baggage) free of import duties.
Other nontariff measures	Yes.	Sanitary and phytosanitary measures and technical regulations, conformity assessment, and standards must be observed.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	The MERCOSUR agreement established a customs union with a CET. Ad valorem tariffs range from 0% to 20%. Exceptional cases are subject to higher rates. MERCOSUR members are allowed temporary national tariff exceptions. Accordingly, Brazil may maintain an exception list for information technology and capital goods under the "ex tarifários" program established by Ordinance ME Foreign Trade and International Affairs Special Secretariat No. 309 of June 24, 2019. For general items, up to 100 tariff codes may be included on the list of CET exceptions through December 31, 2021. Tariffs applied in Brazil are on MFN basis and consolidated in Gecex Resolution No. 272, November 19, 2021. Particularly, temporary tariff reductions taken in response to COVID-19 are stablished in Annex VII and Annex II of Gecex Resolution No. 272, November 19, 2021.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements	No.	Exporters may keep all their proceeds abroad.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	No.
Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	Once the proceeds in foreign currency are repatriated (by own decision of the recipient of the foreign currency), regulation requires to sell these proceeds to ADs in return for local currency.
Financing requirements	No.
Documentation requirements	Yes.
Letters of credit	No.
Guarantees	No.
Domiciliation	No.
Preshipment inspection	Yes.	Preshipment inspection is required for commodities subject to standardization.
Other	Yes.	Documentation includes invoices, international shipment notification, and export registration.
Export licenses	Yes.	New export operations should use the Single Export Declaration (Declaração Única de Exportação). The Single Export Declaration is based on the electronic receipt and comprises information of a commercial, administrative, customs, tax, and logistics nature that characterizes the export operation of the merchandise contained therein. It is basic document for the customs clearance and should therefore cover all the goods contained in an export consignment subject to this procedure. By now with the implementation of the Licensing, Permits, Certificates, and Other Export Documents (LPCO-Exportation) module of the Single Window, it is also possible to request to the government bodies the legal document necessary to the export through a single point on the Internet. The responsible agency will analyze the request within 30 days (Law No. 9.784, of 1999, Article 49). The inward process is regulated by Ordinance SECEX No. 44. As for financed exports, it is necessary to present the Operations Summary Form (Ficha de Resumo de Operações) directly to the National Development Bank so that the financing operation can be started. The LPCO will be created by the National Development Bank itself to ensure consistency between the Ficha de Resumo de Operações and the LPCO so as to mitigate a large reason for requesting rectification of the credit records. A number of products are subject to special export procedures, including exports subject export taxes, export licenses, or country-specific tariff quotas in certain markets under Brazil's international agreements. The Annex of Ordinance SECEX No. 52 lists the export procedures of goods under quotas, which are described on the Annex XVII of Ordinance SECEX No. 23. These include (1) certain types of beef to the EU under the "Hilton quota"; (2) poultry and poultry preparations to the EU subject to country-specific tariff quotas; (3) sugar and confectionery products to the EU subject to export licenses; (4) milk to Colombia under the MERCOSUR quota; (5) cigarettes; (6) precious stones, which may be sold for foreign currency to nonresidents; (7) arms and ammunition subject to export tax and other restrictions; and (8) cars to Argentina, under the Economic Complementation Agreement – ACE No. 14. The exports procedures of cars to Colombia, under MERCOSUR/Colombia ACE No. 72, are described in the Ordinance SECEX No. 49. In accordance with UNSC resolutions, Brazil prohibits exports of weapons and military equipment to the Democratic Republic of the Congo, Iraq, the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, Libya, Sierra Leone, Somalia, and Sudan and of materials and technology that could lead to the development of nuclear weapons. Exports of some products are prohibited for reasons of environmental protection and compliance with international agreements (for example, Montreal Protocol) and UNSC resolutions. Some export operations are subject to control by government agencies, including the SECEX. Most operations that the SECEX examines have automatic approval through the SISCOMEX, under parameters of analysis in the system. Exports of certain goods require authorization from government agencies mainly for reasons of safety and environmental protection and compliance with international agreements.

Without quotas	Yes.
With quotas	Yes.	Some products listed in SECEX Ordinance No. 72 of December 18, 2020, are subject to tariff quotas/licenses when exported to certain markets. There are export quotas for Europe and United Kingdom (poultry, beef – Hilton quota – and sugar), Colombia (milk and cars), Argentina (cars), and Paraguay (cars). There are also some export quotas for goods in MERCOSUR/Colombia and MERCOSUR/Israel Agreements (SACME – MERCOSUR Quota Management System). In the case of beef and poultry, the producers must be accredited by the Ministry of Agriculture, Livestock and Food Supply (Ministério da Agricultura, Pecuária e Abastecimento – MAPA) and accepted by the EU or United Kingdom as safe exporters to obtain a quota. Exports of milk (HS 0402) to Colombia must obtain a MERCOSUR quota authorization from the Subscretariat of Foreign Trade Operations (SUEXT) to benefit from the access conditions under the ACE.
Export taxes	Yes.	In general, exports are not subject to export tax. However, exports may be subject to taxation by executive action. Currently, only exports of cigarettes and guns are taxed.
Collected through the exchange system	No.
Other export taxes	Yes.	Export duties apply to cigarettes to the Caribbean, Central America, and South America, 150%.

Payments for Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Controls on these transfers	Yes.	Foreign exchange transactions are subject to the IOF general tax rate of 0.38%, which is levied and collected on the settlement date of the foreign exchange operation. An IOF of 5.38% is applied to foreign exchange transactions related to purchase of prepaid cards and traveler's checks and to payment transactions carried out through credit and debit cards.

In banks by nonresidents	No.	Presidential Decree No. 10,029 delegated to the BCB the authority to recognize the interest of the Brazilian government on the foreign participation in financial institutions, under no discriminatory procedure. Pursuant to Circular No. 3,977, of January 22, 2020, the BCB recognized, as of interest to the Brazilian Government, the participation in the capital of financial institutions headquartered in Brazil by natural or legal persons resident or domiciled abroad.
Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.
On resident assets and liabilities	Yes.	A limit of 30% of a financial institution's capital base applies to its exposure in gold and assets and liabilities denominated in foreign currency. Calculation of exposure takes into account (1) the net value of short and long positions and (2) 70% of the minimum value between total short and long positions in each currency.
On nonresident assets and liabilities	Yes.	A limit of 30% of a financial institution's capital base applies to its exposure in gold and assets and liabilities denominated in foreign currency. Calculation of exposure takes into account (1) the net value of short and long positions and (2) 70% of the minimum value between total short and long positions in each currency.
Provisions specific to institutional investors	Yes.
Insurance companies	Yes.	Resolution CMN No. 4.993 of March 24, 2022, provides rules governing the investment of technical reserves, provisions and funds of insurance companies, capitalization companies, open private pension entities, local reinsurers, admitted reinsurers (on the application of the resources required in the country to guarantee their obligations) and the portfolio of Individual Programmed Retirement Funds. Resolution CNSP No. 432 of November 12, 2021, provides rules governing investments that exceed technical provisions.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	Insurers are allowed to directly invest their technical provisions in the following financial assets issued by nonresidents: securities issued by central governments of foreign jurisdictions and their central banks (provided the external risk rating of the issue, conferred by a credit risk rating agency registered or recognized in Brazil by CVM, is equal to or higher than AA- or equivalent), fixed-term deposits and certificates of deposit issued or unconditionally guaranteed by financial institutions, and BDRs.

		Application limits depend on the type of provisions being guaranteed by such assets. Indirect investment (through Brazilian investment funds) in other types of assets issued by nonresidents is subject to prudential limits set by regulation. Effective January 3, 2022, the restriction where derivative transactions without an underlying operation were not allowed was lifted by Resolution CMN No. 4,948, of September 9, 2021. Previously, entities could engage in hedging operations with financial institutions or stock exchanges abroad to protect themselves against the risk of fluctuations in interest rates, exchange rates, and commodity prices.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	Insurers are allowed to directly invest their technical provisions in the following financial assets held abroad: securities issued by central governments of foreign jurisdictions and their central banks (provided the external risk rating of the issue, conferred by a credit risk rating agency registered or recognized in Brazil by CVM, is equal to or higher than AA- or equivalent), Brazilian sovereign bonds issued abroad (Eurobonds, Global Bonds, and A-bonds), corporate bonds of Brazilian companies issued abroad, and certificates of deposit issued or unconditionally guaranteed by financial institutions and BDRs. Application limits depend on the type of provisions being guaranteed by such assets. Indirect investment (through Brazilian investment funds) in other types of assets held abroad is subject to prudential limits set by regulation.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	Yes.	These apply only to technical provision liabilities. Investment limits for assets subject to foreign exchange exposure are looser for technical provisions on foreign currencies.
Pension funds	Yes.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	Investments abroad may not exceed 10%, including BDRs. The only type of financial assets issued by nonresidents for open-end private pension funds whose investment is permitted are fixed-term deposits and certificates of deposit issued or unconditionally guaranteed by financial institutions, and BDRs. Application limits depend on the type of provisions being guaranteed by such assets. Investments in Brazil are subject to some limits under the Law, which establishes the maximum technical provisions that may be invested in federal bonds, stocks (per type), and so forth. Assets that exceed the technical provisions are subject to a liquidity requirement (at least 20% of the risk capital in highly liquid assets). Effective January 3, 2022, the restriction where derivative transactions without an underlying operation were not allowed was lifted by Resolution CMN No. 4,948, of September 9, 2021. Previously, entities could engage in hedging operations with financial institutions or stock exchanges abroad to protect themselves against the risk of fluctuations in interest rates, exchange rates, and commodity prices.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	Investments abroad may not exceed 10%, including BDRs. Open-end private pension funds may invest their technical provisions in accordance with the legislation, as follows: (1) in Brazilian sovereign bonds issued abroad (Eurobonds, Global Bonds, A-bonds); (2) corporate bonds of Brazilian companies issued abroad; (3) in certificates of deposit issued or unconditionally guaranteed by financial institutions; and (4) in BDRs. Application limits depend on the type of provisions being guaranteed.

Controls on derivatives and other instruments

Purchase locally by nonresidents	05/02/2022	Nonresidents may use borrowed securities for margin purposes in the derivatives market. Previously, the restriction which was implemented in 2010 at the wake of the global financial crisis intended to provide more effectiveness to the tax on financial transactions (IOF) on the placement of collateral. It prevented investors from borrowing assets to be used as collateral in derivative transactions, which would allow circumventing the IOF charge at the inflow of the resources to be used in the acquisition of securities. The resolution had forbidden the performance of operations of rental, trading, and lending of securities, assets and financial asset gold by financial institutions on behalf of nonresident investors in derivative markets.
Purchase abroad by residents	01/03/2022	The restriction where derivative transactions without an underlying operation were not allowed was lifted by Resolution CMN No. 4,948, of September 9, 2021. Previously, entities could engage in hedging operations with financial institutions or stock exchanges abroad to protect themselves against the risk of fluctuations in interest rates, exchange rates, and commodity prices.

No separate legal tender
Currency board	Yes.	The exchange rate arrangement is a currency board. The Brunei Darussalam Central Bank (BDCB) issues Brunei dollars and manages the Currency Fund, which is used to back up the currency in circulation. Under the Currency Interchangeability Agreement (CIA), signed in 1967, which remains in effect between the BDCB and the Monetary Authority of Singapore, the monetary authorities agree to the mutual exchange of their currency at par without charge. The monetary authorities and banks must accept each other's currency at par, and the currencies are customary tender in both countries. Excess currency is repatriated regularly, with the cost borne by the currency-issuing authority. The BDCB must ensure that reserves in Foreign exchange market	Yes.	The Brunei Association of Banks provides indicative daily buying and selling rates to its members for transfers/remittances in 15 other currencies on the basis of the interbank quotes for these foreign currencies against Singapore dollars. Customers are encouraged to liaise with their respective banks for competitive rates should they want to deal in this foreign exchange as rates fluctuate from time to time.

Spot exchange market	Yes.	As of December 31, 2022, there were 7 banks (6 conventional and 1 Islamic), 18 remittance companies, and 24 money changers that were authorized to conduct foreign exchange transactions (including four hotels with conditional license). Money-changing businesses: do not conduct foreign exchange transactions directly with the CB; do not maintain accounts abroad; are limited to the purchase and sale of banknotes; and are not allowed to make foreign currency payments and transfers on behalf of their clients.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

		As for remittance businesses, foreign exchange transactions are not conducted directly with the CB. Remittance business can maintain accounts abroad. Remittance business operations are mainly focused on transmitting funds abroad. The purchase and sale of banknotes are not part of their operations.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.	The BDCB does not control or direct any foreign exchange activity with banks, except for the Singapore dollar activity.
Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	The BDCB stands ready to buy and sell Singapore dollars for Brunei dollars at the official rate without a bid-ask spread or commission. The BDCB deals only in Singapore dollars and does not quote rates for other currency. The BDCB deals directly with the government.
Allocation	No.
Auction	No.

Investment firms and collective investment funds	No.	Investment firms and collective investment funds are regulated by BDCB under the Securities Markets Order, 2013, and the Securities Markets Regulations, 2015 ("SMR"). Chapter XIII (Public Collective Investment Scheme), Division III (Investment and Borrowing Powers), states certain limitations. For example, Regulation No. 165(1)(c), SMR states that other collective investment schemes may not have more than 20% of their value in the units of collective investment schemes. Regulation No. 166, SMR states that the total exposure of a public collective investment scheme to derivatives may not exceed the net asset value of the public collective investment scheme property. Regarding stock lending and borrowing, Regulation No. 167(2), SMR requires that the operator of a public investment scheme ensures that the value of any collateral for the stock lending arrangement is at all times at least equal to the value of the securities transferred. Regarding borrowing restrictions, Regulation No. 168(2), SMR states that the operator of a public collective investment scheme must ensure, except in the case of a property collective investment scheme, that the public collective investment scheme's borrowing does not, on any day, exceed 20% of the net asset value of the public collective investment scheme property and must take reasonable care to ensure that arrangements are in place that enable borrowings to be repaid to ensure such compliance.

Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	No.
Other security restrictions	Yes.	Bulgaria maintains exchange restrictions and restrictive measures in accordance with UNSC resolutions and decisions and regulations of the EC, adopted with the aim of preserving peace and the rule of law, safeguarding human rights, preventing conflicts, and strengthening national and international security. Detailed information on sanctions imposed by the UNSC and the EC can be found on the Internet page of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, with reference to the EU Sanctions Map. Bulgaria implements the following European Regulations and Directives for the prevention of the use of the financial system for the purposes of money laundering or terrorism financing and regarding the information accompanying transfers of funds: Directive (EU) No. 2015/849, Directive (EU) No. 2018/843, Regulation (EU) No. 2015/847, and Commission Delegated Regulation (EU) No. 2019/758. Since March 12, 2021, the EC decided to revoke the EU framework for sanctions against persons identified as responsible for the misappropriation of Egyptian state funds, and, to that effect, to lift the restrictive measures currently in force against nine Egyptian individuals. Restrictive measures were initially adopted on February 21, 2011.

According to the Currency Law, persons making transfers and payments abroad to a third country in foreign or local currency exceeding lev 30,000 or its equivalent are required to provide documentation to the payment services provider. Ordinance No. 28 of the MOF and BNB on the Information and Documents Submitted to Payment Service Providers in Executing Third-Party Cross-Border Transfers and Payments provides the details on this requirement.
Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.	Bulgaria applies the EU import licensing system, based on the premise that import licenses are not required except for specific products subject to quantitative restrictions, safeguard measures, or import monitoring and surveillance. The basic regulations setting up the rules for imposition of safeguard measures are Regulation (EU) No. 2015/755 of the European Parliament and of the Council of April 29, 2015, on common rules for imports from certain third countries and Regulation (EU) No. 2015/478 of the European Parliament and of the Council of March 11, 2015, on common rules for imports (codified version of Regulation No. 260/2009). By Commission Implementing Regulation (EU) No. 2019/159, the European Commission imposed a definitive safeguard measure, which consists of tariff-rate quotas on imports into EU of certain steel products. (This Regulation entered into force February 2, 2019.) Where tariff quotas are exhausted, a safeguard duty at the rate of 25% is applied on the imports of the steel products in the scope of the Regulation No. 2019/159 of February 2, 2019. After the second review investigation carried out by the European Commission, the Commission Implementing Regulation (EU) No. 2020/894 of June 29, 2020, amending Implementing Regulation (EU) No. 2019/159 imposing definitive safeguard measures against imports of certain steel products is in force. Since July 1, 2021, Commission Implementing Regulation (EU) No. 2021/1029 of June 24, 2021, amending Commission Implementing Regulation (EU) No. 2019/159 to prolong the safeguard measure on imports of certain steel products is in force. Agricultural imports are licensed for statistical purposes under an automatic licensing system. Import licenses require lodging a security and are valid in all EU member countries. Some EU agricultural tariff quotas are subject to import licensing. Licenses may be issued on a pro rata or historical basis or related to quotas of exporting countries. Article 176 (1) of Regulation (EU) No. 1308/2013 requires licensing of certain agricultural imports, which are listed in Annex, Part I, of Commission Delegated Regulation (EU) No. 2016/1237 and include cereals, rice, sugar, olive oil, flax and hemp, fruits and vegetables, processed fruits and vegetables, beef and veal, milk and milk products, pork, eggs, poultry, and agricultural ethyl alcohol. Import licenses are issued by the relevant authority on request. Forest Law Enforcement, Governance, and Trade (FLEGT) voluntary partnership agreements (VPAs) with the EU are subject to licensing. Under these agreements, timber-producing countries agree to verify the legality of their shipments of timber and timber products to the EU. FLEGT VPAs were signed with Cameroon (2011), the Central African Republic (2012), the Democratic Republic of the Congo (2013), Ghana (2010), Indonesia (2014), Liberia (2013), and Vietnam (2019). Lately, VPA between the EU and the Republic of Honduras on FLEGT in timber products to the EU was signed on February 23, 2021, and effective September 1, 2022. Negotiations are ongoing with, Democratic Republic of the Congo, Gabon, Laos, Malaysia, and Thailand. As of October 19, 2022, negotiations with Côte d'Ivoire were concluded and signing is scheduled for the end of 2023. Effective December 15, 2022, VPA was signed with Guyana.

Positive list	No.
Negative list	Yes.	Bulgaria applies all EU trade policies. The EU acquis includes a number of legal provisions that engage customs to carry out checks in the context of the enforcement of many different policies aiming at the safety and security of the EU. In accordance with Articles 134 and 267 of Regulation (EU) No. 952/2013 (Union Customs Code), prohibitions or restrictions may be imposed on imports, exports, or goods in transit when they are justified on grounds of: - public morality, public policy, or public security; - the protection of health and life of humans, animals, or plants; - the protection of the environment; - the protection of national treasures possessing artistic, historic, or archaeological value; and - the protection of industrial and commercial property. The negative list is available on the EC website. Products covered by Community legislation with specific provisions relating to border controls are not subject to import controls described in Articles 27 to 29 of Regulation (EC) No. 765/2008 according to Article 15(5) of Regulation (EC) No. 765/2008.
Open general licenses	No.
Licenses with quotas	Yes.	Bulgaria applies all EU trade policies. Import prohibitions and surveillance are maintained on security, technical, sanitary, phytosanitary, environmental, and other grounds. The EU maintains tariff-rate quotas and preferential regimes on some agricultural products that require licenses: cereals (wheat, barley, maize, and rice), sugar (sugar and sugarcane), olive oil, fruits and vegetables (garlic), processed fruits and vegetables (preserved mushrooms), beef and veal (including meat and live animals), milk and milk products, pork (including meat and live animals), eggs, and poultry. On October 12, 2017, Council Regulation (EU) No. 2017/1836 of October 10, 2017, amending Regulation (EU) 2017/1509 concerning restrictive measures against the DPRK prohibited to import, purchase or transfer, directly or indirectly, textiles from the DPRK, whether or not originating in the DPRK. Commission Regulation (EU) No. 418/2012 amending Commission Regulation (EC) No. 376/2008 (repealed by Commission Delegated Regulation (EU) No. 2016/1237) regulates import and export licenses and advance fixing certificates for agricultural products and abolished import licensing for seeds of durum wheat, including products imported under tariff quotas referred to in Article 1(2)(a)(iii) of Regulation (EC) No. 376/2008 for barley and grain sorghum seeds other than hybrids; manioc, arrowroot, salep, Jerusalem artichokes, sweet potatoes and similar roots, and tubers with high starch or inulin content, fresh, chilled, frozen, dried, sliced, or in pellets; sago pith; and sweet potatoes for human consumption. Commission Delegated Regulation (EU) No. 2020/760 and Commission Implementing Regulation (EU) No. 2020/761 published on June 12, 2020, repealed Commission Regulation (EC) No. 1301/2006 laying down common rules for the administration of import tariff quotas for agricultural products managed by a system of import licenses and repealed several sectoral regulations. Commission Regulation (EU) Nos. 498/2012 and 1217/2012 of the European Parliament and of the Council of December 12, 2012, govern the allocation of tariff-rate quotas for exports of wood from Russia to the EU (OJ L 152, June 13, 2012, pp. 28–37, and OJ L 351, December 12, 2012, pp. 34–35, respectively).

Other nontariff measures	Yes.	Import surveillance applies to the following agricultural products: rice, flax and hemp, and agricultural ethyl alcohol. These products are subject to automatic licensing for statistical purposes and to maintain better control over their origin. The EU licenses a range of firearms and ammunition. Imported food must comply with the requirements of EU food and animal health laws, conditions recognized by the EU as equivalent to these requirements, or requirements contained in specific agreements. The EU has sanitary and phytosanitary agreements with Andorra, Canada, Chile, EFTA, the Faeroe Islands, Liechtenstein, Mexico, New Zealand, San Marino, Switzerland, and the United States of America. Imports of live animals and animal products are prohibited except from previously approved areas, which are on the Commission's relevant "third country list." Products and live animals generally may be imported only from countries on the approved third-country import list for that product or animal species. Products of animal origin usually must be from establishments approved for exportation to the EU. In October 2010, the EU adopted legislation that prohibits the sale of illegally harvested timber and timber products in the EU – Regulation No. 995/2010. Under Regulation No. 995/2010, operators who sell domestically produced or imported timber and timber products in the EU for the first time must exercise due diligence to ensure that such products do not contain illegally timber harvested. Due diligence systems involve a risk management exercise based on information and criteria in the regulation. Anyone trading in timber and timber products within the EU, except first-time participants in the EU market, must keep records of their suppliers and customers. Timber and timber products with valid FLEGT or CITES licenses are considered to be in compliance. Since January 1, 2021, a new law entered into full force across the EU – the Conflict Minerals Regulation – Regulation (EU) No. 2017/821 of the European Parliament and of the Council of May 17, 2017, laying down supply chain due diligence obligations for Union importers of tin, tantalum and tungsten, their ores, and gold originating from conflict-affected and high-risk areas. It aims to help stem the trade in four minerals – tin, tantalum, tungsten, and gold – which sometimes finance armed conflict or are mined using forced labor. Imports of the following items are prohibited in accordance with UN or EU regulations: antipersonnel mines, torture equipment, and certain products from the DPRK, the Islamic Republic of Iran, and Syria. Regulation (EU) No. 2019/125 of February 20, 2019, of the European Parliament and of the Council of January 16, 2019, concerning trade in certain goods which could be used for capital punishment, torture or other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment (codified version of Regulation No. 1236/2005), Council Regulation (EU) No. 692/2014 (as amended) restricts imports into the EU of goods from Crimea or Sevastopol, in response to the illegal annexation of Crimea and Sevastopol. Council Regulation (EU) No. 2021/1030 amending Regulation (EC) No. 765/2006 concerning restrictive measures in respect of Belarus prohibit the import petroleum products as listed in Annex VII, import, purchase or transfer, directly or indirectly, potassium chloride ("potash") products as listed in Annex VIII from Belarus, whether or not originating in Belarus. Furthermore, restrictions on access to Union capital markets should be imposed in relation to the Belarusian Government, as well as Belarusian state-owned financial institutions and entities. A prohibition should also be introduced on providing insurance and reinsurance to the Belarusian Government and Belarusian public bodies and agencies. Council Regulation (EU) No. 2017/1509 of August 30, 2017, concerning restrictive measures against the DPRK and repealing Regulation (EC) No. 329/2007 introduced restrictions on the import and export of certain goods, services, and technology which could contribute to the DPRK's nuclear-related, ballistic missile-related, or other weapons of mass destruction-related programs, luxury goods embargo.

Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	Bulgaria applies import tariffs according to the Community Customs Code for trade with countries outside the EU and does not levy tariffs on trade within the EU. Under the Treaty on the Functioning of the EU, common customs tariff duties are set by the European Parliament and the Council or by the Council based on a proposal from the Commission. The basic customs legislation is the EU Customs Code and its implementing regulation: Council Regulation (EEC) No. 2913/92, October 12, 1992, establishing the Community Customs Code (OJ L 302, October 19, 1992), applied as of January 1, 1994, and Commission Regulation (EEC) No. 2454/93, July 2, 1993, establishing Provisions for the Implementation of the Common Customs, as amended. The EU has exclusive authority in customs matters. Customs procedures, as defined in EU legislation, are harmonized and monitored at the EU level. The tariff nomenclature, known as the Combined Nomenclature, is based on the Harmonized Commodity Description and Coding System (HS). The 2013 tariff reflects the fourth amendment to the HS (HS 2007). The EU has harmonized the structure and established a number of minimum rates for excise duties – indirect taxes on the consumption or use of certain products – on alcohol, tobacco, and energy. The EU maintains a public online database that integrates tariff rates and other measures, including quantitative restrictions and contingency measures applied on imports (and exports) – known as Integrated Tariff of the European Communities. Following the EU-US Joint Statement published on May 17, 2021, the Commission adopted Implementing Regulation (EU) 2021/866 on commercial policy measures concerning certain products originating in the United States of America, which suspended the application of the additional ad valorem duties on products listed in Annex II to Implementing Regulation (EU) 2018/886 until November 30, 2021. The Commission Implementing Regulation (EU) 2021/2083 suspended commercial policy measures concerning certain products originating in the United States of America imposed by Implementing Regulation (EU) No. 2018/886 and No. 2020/502. The EU suspended the application of additional ad valorem duties on imports of the products listed Implementing Regulation (EU) No. 2018/886 and Implementing Regulation (EU) No. 2020/502 until December 31, 2023.

Export licenses	Yes.	The rules concerning obligation for export licenses issued for husked (brown) rice and for semi-milled or wholly milled rice, whether or not polished or glazed are abolished by Regulation (EU) No. 2021/1467 of July 6, 2021.
Without quotas	Yes.	Bulgaria has adopted EU policies for export licenses. An export authorization or license is required for cultural goods and certain agricultural products and for the control of exports of dual-use items and technology. Under Article 176 (1) of Regulation (EU) No. 1308/2013, the Commission may require an export license for one or more products from the following categories: cereals, rice, sugar, beef and veal, milk and milk products, pig meat, eggs, and poultry meat. Article 2(2) of Regulation No. 1237/2016 requires a license for exports of products listed in Part II of the Annex and the following Union products referred to in Part II of the Annex to be exported: (1) products that are under the customs procedure of inward processing; (2) products that are basic products as listed in Annex III to Regulation (EU) No. 510/2014 of the European Parliament and of the Council and that are under the customs procedure of outward processing; (3) products that are subject to the recovery or remission of the amount of import or export duty as set out in Chapter 3 of Title III of Regulation (EU) No. 952/2013 of the European Parliament and of the Council in respect of which a final decision has not yet been taken. Export licenses are issued by the relevant authorities at the request of economic operators. There are quantitative restrictions and controls on exports for foreign policy or national security reasons. These follow EU common rules governing exports of military technology and equipment, as defined in Council Common Position (Common Foreign Security Policy (CFSP)) No. 2008/944, which aims to standardize members' arms export policies to meet agreed minimum standards. Exports of dual-use items are controlled at the EU level. The EU's dual-use export control system in Regulation (EU) No. 2021/821 of the European Parliament and of the Council of May 20, 2021, sets up a Union regime for the control of exports, brokering, technical assistance, transit, and transfer of dual-use items (recast). It defines dual-use items as "items, including software and technology, which can be used for both civil and military purposes, and includes items which can be used for the design, development, production or use of nuclear, chemical or biological weapons or their means of delivery, including all items which can be used for both non-explosive uses and assisting in any way in the manufacture of nuclear weapons or other nuclear explosive devices." Bulgaria has imposed some restrictive measure on some countries for security reasons. An export authorization is required for the export of vaccines against SARS-related coronaviruses. This requirement also covers active substances including master and working cell banks used for the manufacture of such vaccines. Commission Implementing Regulation (EU) No. 2021/1728 of September 30, 2021, prolonged the implementation of this measure until December 31, 2021. In line with its CFSP obligations, Bulgaria has imposed restrictive measures on some countries for security reasons.

With quotas	Yes.	Article 2(2)(b) of Regulation No. 1237/2016 requires a license for exports of EU products for which an export license needs to be presented for admission under a quota that is administered by the Union or by a third country and has been opened in that country for those products. Tariff quotas must be administered in one of the following ways: (1) based on the chronological order of submission of the applications (first-come, first-served principle); (2) distributed in proportion to the quantities requested at the time of application (simultaneous examination method); or (3) taking into account traditional trade patterns (traditional/new comers method). Export licenses are issued by the relevant authorities at the request of economic operators.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	The Law on Limitation of Cash Payments aims to limit cash payments. According to the law, payments in Bulgaria may be made only through transfers or payments on account if (1) the amount is equal to or exceeds lev 10,000; (2) the amount is less than lev 10,000 but may be considered as part of a linked payment transaction on the same grounds whose total value is equal to or exceeds 10,000 lev; or (3) the provisions of the law are applicable also to foreign currency payments equal to or exceeding lev 10,000. The provisions do not apply to (1) withdrawals or cash payments from the holder's own accounts; (2) withdrawals or cash payments from accounts of family members, direct relatives, and fully or partially legally disabled individuals; (3) cash transactions by foreign exchange bureaus; (4) banknote and coin operations with the CB; (5) exchanges by banks of damaged Bulgarian banknotes and coins; (6) payments of employment remuneration in the meaning of the Labor code, except those paid by employers with 100 or more employees, with the exception of persons with whom an employment contract for short term seasonal agricultural work has been concluded in accordance with Article 114a; or of a value equal to or exceeding BGN 1,000 for a dividend within the meaning of § 1 Item 4 of the additional provisions of the Corporate Income Law; and (7) payments of deposits guarantee as defined by the Law on Bank Deposits Guarantee. The amendments to the Law on Limitation of Cash Payments on April 10, 2018, create a new possibility of collecting revenues by means of card payments to the budget organizations and their subordinate budget authorizers by delegation serviced by the BNB. In this way, these budget organizations can optimize the management of their revenues as the amounts directly come to the account with the BNB, designated for the purpose. In this way, cashless payments in the public sector are optimized, and the costs for servicing cash payments are reduced. With regard to natural and legal persons, this amendment to the Law creates one more free and convenient way for them to pay their obligations to the budgets of these budget organizations. Article 4, Paragraph 8, of the Law expressly says that natural and legal persons pay no bank charges or fees for making card payments to budget organizations.

Provisions specific to institutional investors	Yes.
Insurance companies	Yes.	The Solvency II Directive (EC) No. 2009/138 transposed into the Bulgarian Insurance Code introduces prudential requirements tailored to the specific risks which each insurer bears. Those prudential requirements are not restrictions and apply equally to all insurers. The directive requires insurance companies to hold capital in relation to their risk profiles to guarantee that they have enough financial resources to withstand financial difficulties. Also, the Insurance companies under the scope of the Directive (insurers with a right of access to the common market of the EU and EEA) have to put in place an adequate and transparent governance system and conduct their own risk and solvency assessment on a regular basis. These insurers should invest its assets in accordance with prudent person principle (Article 124 of the Insurance Code). There are no restrictions on investing in financial instruments issued by nonresidents for insurance undertakings under the scope of the Solvency II Directive (insurers with a right of access to the common market).

Chapter XVII, Articles 198–207, of the Insurance Code defines the technical reserves requirements and the provisional fund of an insurer excluded from the scope of the Solvency II Directive (insurers without a right of access to the market of the EU and EEA). The general rules for diversification, the currency conformity rules, and special rules for the cover of reserves for the investment funds of life insurance companies apply. The requirement of Article 198 is not a restriction, because it is a general rule applicable equally to all insurers that fulfill the requirements of Part IV of the Insurance Code. Chapter XVIII, Article 208, of the Insurance Code and the following defines own funds; the solvency margins, and guarantee capital, which applies only to the insurers without a right of access to the common market. Different types of assets may cover technical reserves of insurance companies without a right of access to the common market (Article 200 of the Insurance Code). The requirement of Articles 208 and 200 is not restrictions, because they are general rules applicable to all insurers equally.
There are no restrictions on investing technical reserves in financial instruments issued by nonresidents. Investments to cover technical provisions are securities admitted for trading on a regulated market or a multilateral trading facility in the Republic of Bulgaria or in another Member State, as well as shares, qualified bonds, and other qualified debt securities, admitted for trade on internationally recognized and liquid regulated markets or multilateral trading facilities in a third state as it is described in Article 200, Paragraph 1, p. 1, of the Insurance Code. There are other assets that may cover the technical provisions of the insurers without a right to access of the common market described in Article 200 of the Insurance Code. All assets must be invested in compliance with the prudent person principle. According to the rules on diversification, the technical provisions can be invested: (1) up to 20% in real estate, but not more than 10% in a single property or in a group of properties that may be regarded as one investment because of their location; (2) up to 80% in securities under Article 200, Paragraph 1, Items 1 and 3, but not more than 30% in assets other than qualified bonds and other qualified debt securities; (3) without any restriction whatsoever in assets under Article 200, Paragraph 1, Item 2; (4) up to 5% in securities of a single issuer, where this restriction may not apply to assets specified in Article 200, Paragraph 1, Item 2; (5) up to 50% in bank deposits, but not more than 25% of the gross amount with one bank; and (6) up to 3% in cash in hand and under current accounts.

Territorial distribution rules stipulate that the technical reserves must be covered by assets located on the territory of the Republic of Bulgaria or on the territory of a member state. By permission of the Commission, issued in each specific case, technical reserves may also be covered by assets, located within the territory of a third country.
The requirement for territorial distribution of assets under Article 205, Paragraph 1, may not apply to cases where the technical reserves are covered by investments in receivables from reinsurers in the proportion set under Article 202.
The assets' location according to Article 205, Paragraph 1, must be:
(1) For ownership of real estate – the real estate's location;
(2) For securities:
(a) the issuing enterprise's seat of business;

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

		(b) the bank's seat of business – in case the securities are guaranteed by a bank; (c) the Depository's seat of business – in the case of dematerialized securities; (3) For deposits – the place where the deposit contract has been concluded; (4) For any other receivables – the debtor's seat of business; (5) For shares in investment funds – the location of assets included in the fund with a predominant share, fixed pursuant to the terms and conditions under Items 1–4. Requirements for professional qualification and reliability – Article 80(7) stipulates that each member of a management or control body of an insurer or of a reinsurer, respectively, as well as each person authorized to manage and/or represent it must hold a permit for long-term residence in the Republic of Bulgaria if he is a person from a third country. In terms of granting consent in the case of a transfer of an insurance portfolio within the EU, the FSC must refuse to grant consent, when insurance contracts, under which risks located in the Republic of Bulgaria are covered, are transferred to: (1) a branch of an insurer from a third country with a seat of business in another member state; (2) an insurer from a member state which does not have the right to cover risks on the territory of the Republic of Bulgaria. In terms of certification of the capital solvency requirement of an insurer with a seat of business in the Republic of Bulgaria on transfer of insurance portfolio by an insurer from a third country established in a member state through a branch – the FSC must issue a document, certifying that, following the transfer, the undertaking insurer will have at its disposal the necessary eligible own funds for cover of the capital solvency requirement. The FSC must refuse to issue such certificate, if: (1) following the transfer, the undertaking insurer or the branch of an insurer from a third country registered in the Republic of Bulgaria, respectively, will not have at its disposal the necessary eligible own funds for cover of the capital solvency requirement and therefore the interest of the insured person is jeopardized or (2), as a result of the transfer, a branch of an insurer from a third country with a seat of business in the Republic of Bulgaria will undertake a portfolio of contracts covering risks located in other member states. According to Article 3 of Economic and Financial Relations with Companies Registered in Preferential Tax Treatment Jurisdictions, the Persons Controlled Thereby and Their Beneficial Owners Act, companies registered in preferential tax treatment jurisdictions and the persons controlled thereby may not participate in procedures for obtaining a license to perform insurance or reinsurance activity under the Insurance Code or participation in a company carrying out such activity, where the percentage of participation constitutes a qualifying holding within the meaning of the Insurance Code.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	There are no limits on securities and on investment portfolio held abroad. The assets of the insurers must be properly diversified in such a way as to avoid excessive reliance on any particular asset, particular issuer or group of companies, or market, and excessive accumulation of risk in the portfolio as a whole. For small insurers without a right of access to the common market, the maximum amount may be 20% in case an insurer invests technical reserves in debt securities issued by a credit institution having its seat of business in a member state, subject to special supervision, for the purpose of protecting the holders of such securities. Furthermore, the technical provisions of such insurers must be covered by assets situated in the territory of the Republic of Bulgaria or in the territory of a Member State. With a permission by the FSC granted on a case-by-case basis, the technical provisions may also be covered by assets situated in the territory of a third country. The requirement for territorial distribution of the assets does not apply to cases where the technical provisions are covered by investments in receivables from reinsurers. Freedom of investment is regulated in Article 196 of the Insurance Code, and it is relevant to the insurers with a right to access of the common market: (1) The insurer or the reinsurer, respectively, may not be placed under an obligation to invest in specific asset categories. (2) The investment decision of the insurer or reinsurer or of the persons managing the investment operations may not be subject to a preliminary approval or to a notification procedure. (3) The Commission may, by an ordinance, limit the assets or the benchmark values, with which the insurance policies related to investment funds are to be associated. Location of the assets and prohibition to pledge assets are regulated in Article 197 of the Insurance Code: The assets for covering the technical reserves as regards risk located within the boundaries of the EU may be located in any member state, as well as in a third state.

Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	There are no limits on securities and on investment portfolio held abroad. There are no restrictions on investing technical reserves in financial instruments issued by nonresidents. The only limit is on the eligibility of those assets to cover the technical provisions of an insurer. However, for an insurer without a right of access to the common market (small insurers), the technical provisions must be covered by assets situated in the territory of Republic of Bulgaria or in the territory of a Member State. With a permission by the FSC granted on a case-by-case basis, the technical provisions may also be covered by assets situated in the territory of a third country. The requirement for territorial distribution of the assets does not apply to cases where the technical provisions are covered by investments in receivables from reinsurers. This provision applies only for small insurers without a right of access to the market of the EU and EEA.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	Yes.	Assets covering technical reserves must be in the same currency as the liabilities ensuing from contracts under which the technical reserves were set up. Currency matching is required when the assets in any one currency exceed 7% of the assets in the other currencies. Up to 20% of the total amount of technical reserves may be covered by assets in a currency other than the one in which they were set up, provided the total amount of assets for cover of technical reserves in all currencies is at least equal to the total amount of liabilities in all currencies. If the technical reserves were set up in leva, euros, or another currency of an EU member, the assets for their cover may be in euros (Article 206 of the Insurance Code).
Pension funds	Yes.	Controls specific to pension funds in Bulgaria are provided in the SIC. Chapter 14 on Assets and Investments and Chapter 25 on Investments contain the requirements for the investment of mandatory and voluntary pension funds, respectively. The specialized reserve requirements are laid down in Chapter 16 of the SIC, as well as in Article 213 with regard to voluntary pension funds only. In addition, further detailed requirements on the reserves are stipulated in Ordinance No. 19 of December 8, 2004, on pension reserves and reserves for guaranteeing the payment of lifelong pensions.

		With respect to investing funds of the supplementary mandatory pension funds, there are specific restrictions with regard to investment in third countries. These restrictions are valid for: - debt securities issued, or guaranteed by a third country designated by an ordinance of the FSC, the obligations which constitute sovereign debt, or are issued by a third-country CB and are admitted to trading on a regulated market in a Member State or on an official stock exchange market, or on another regulated market in a third country, operating regularly, recognized, and publicly available; - bonds issued by a local authority of a third country determined by an ordinance of the FSC, in which case the bonds must have an investment credit rating and be admitted to trading on a regulated market in a Member State or on an official stock exchange market, or on another regulated market in a third country, operating regularly, recognized and publicly available; - corporate bonds admitted to trading on an official market on a stock exchange or on another regulated market in a third country, operating regularly, recognized and publicly available, whereas the bonds must have an investment credit rating; - shares, other than shares of a collective investment undertaking, as well as rights or warrants on them traded on an official stock exchange market or on another regulated market in a third country, operating regularly, recognized and publicly available, whereas the shares must be included in the indices of these markets. According to Article 176, Paragraph 2, Item 14, of SIC, the supplementary mandatory pension funds cannot invest in investment property unless it is located in EU member state. The detailed requirements for the third country investing described above, as well as the full list of applicable third countries, are stipulated in Ordinance No. 29 of July 12, 2006, on the minimum level of credit ratings of banks and on the determination of countries, international financial organizations, markets, and indices of these markets pursuant to Article 176, Paragraph 1, of the SIC. Moreover, some limits apply to the diversification of supplementary pension funds' investment portfolios (Articles 177a, 178, and 251 of the SIC). These limitations are the same for investments in both local and foreign securities. According to Article 3 of Economic and Financial Relations with Companies Registered in Preferential Tax Treatment Jurisdictions, the Persons Controlled Thereby and Their Beneficial Owners Act, companies registered in preferential tax treatment jurisdictions and the persons controlled thereby may not, directly and/or indirectly, participate in procedures for obtaining a license for carrying out the activity as a company for additional social security under the SIC or participation in such a company, where the percentage of contribution represents 10% or more than 10% of the capital of the company. The activity of supplementary pension insurance can be carried out only by pension insurance companies licensed by the FSC (Article 121 and Article 353 of the SIC). Foreign companies are not allowed to provide services except for IORP based in the EU and the EEA (Article 120a, Article 229d, and Article 353 of the SIC).
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	No.	The legal framework does not contain any specific limits in this regard.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	No.	The legal framework does not contain any specific limits in this regard.

assets/liabilities composition		pension insurance fund may be denominated in any currency other than Bulgarian leva and euro (according to Article 178, Paragraph 17, of the SIC). No more than 30% of the assets of a supplementary voluntary retirement insurance fund or of a fund for supplementary voluntary pension insurance with occupational schemes, as appropriate, may be denominated in any currency other than Bulgarian leva and euro (according to Article 251, Paragraph 14, of the SIC).
Investment firms and collective investment funds	Yes.	The Law on Collective Investment Schemes (CISs) and other collective investments applies as of 2011. CIS investment policy requirements in Chapter 6 outline the legal obligations regarding the investment policy of CISs. Detailed rules are given in Ordinance No. 44, which incorporates Directive (EC) Nos. 2010/43 and 2010/44. In 2013, the AIFMD was transposed in Part III, Title 2, of the Law on CISs and other collective investments, and in Part III, Title 1, a new type of investment fund was introduced – the national investment fund. National investment fund investment policy requirements are mentioned in Article 187. Investments in local and foreign securities are treated the same. In terms of the investment firms, Bulgaria fully transposed the EU framework on markets in financial instruments, which consists of Directive (EU) No. 2014/65 and Regulation No. 2014/600. In terms of capital requirements, Bulgaria complies with the EU rules under capital requirements. According to Article 3 of Economic and Financial Relations with Companies Registered in Preferential Tax Treatment Jurisdictions, the Persons Controlled Thereby and Their Beneficial Owners Act, there are prohibitions for companies registered in preferential tax treatment jurisdictions and the persons controlled thereby directly and/or indirectly to participate in procedures for obtaining a license for providing services or carrying out activities under the Markets in Financial Instruments Act or participation in a company that has been licensed under the said Act, where the percentage of participation constitutes a qualifying holding within the meaning of the said Act, or participate in procedures for obtaining a license, permit, or in a registration procedure under the CISs and Other Undertakings for Collective Investment Act or participation in a company that owns a license, permit, or is registered under the said Act, where the percentage of participation constitutes a qualifying holding within the meaning of that Act. There are exceptions, described in Article 4.

factor (RtM K-factor) requirement on the basis of K factor for Net Position Risk (K-NPR) in accordance with Article 21(1) of Regulation (EU) 2019/2033 must report the information specified in templates C 18.00 to C 24.00 of Annex I to Commission Implementing Regulation (EU) 2021/451 in accordance with the instructions set out in Part 2 of Annex II to that Implementing Regulation with a quarterly frequency.

Note that "K factors" means own funds requirements (set out in Title II of Part Three of Regulation (EU) 2019/2033) for risks that an investment firm poses to clients, markets and to itself.

The RtM K-factor requirement for the trading book positions of an investment firm dealing on own account, whether for itself or on behalf of a client is either K-NPR calculated in accordance with Article 22 of Regulation (EU) 2019/2033 or K factor for Clearing Margin Given (K CMG) calculated in accordance with Article 23 of Regulation (EU) 2019/2033. The RtM K-factor requirement applies to all trading book positions, which include in particular positions in debt instruments (including securitization instruments), equity instruments, collective investment undertakings, foreign exchange and gold, and commodities (including emission allowances).

"NPR" means the value of transactions recorded in the trading book of an investment firm (Article 4, p. 34 of Regulation (EU) 2019/2033);

In addition, "clearing margin given" or "CMG" means the amount of total margin required by a clearing member or qualifying central counterparty, where the execution and settlement of transactions of an investment firm dealing on own account take place under the responsibility of a clearing member or qualifying central counterparty (Article 4, p. 32 of Regulation (EU) 2019/2033).

This definition is also referred to in Item 1 of § 1 of the Additional Provisions of Ordinance No. N-9 of 7 August 2020 on the terms and conditions for entry in the register of persons who, by occupation, provide services for exchange between virtual currencies and recognized currencies without gold coverage, and to wallet providers that offer custodial services, issued by the Minister of Finance. Furthermore, a “wallet provider, offering custodial services” is defined as “a natural or legal person, or other legal entity, providing services for the protection of private cryptographic keys on behalf of its clients for owning, storing and transferring virtual currencies” according to Item 25 (State Gazette, Issue 94 of 2019) of § 1 of the Additional Provisions of MAMLA. These definitions were introduced by the 5th Money Laundering Directive (Directive (EU) 2015/849) and have been adopted by Bulgarian authorities. In addition to the above, there are no specific cryptocurrency or fintech laws that have been enacted or are being currently prepared. It is expected that the national regulators will strictly follow any European regulation in the field when passed. According to statement Ref. No. BNB – 108809/19.09.2014, the virtual currency Bitcoin is not legal tender. Bitcoin acquisition, trading and payment activities are not regulated by applicable national and European legislation and are not subject to licensing or registration. A regional framework to combat money laundering (AML) and the financing of terrorism (AFT) exists at the regional level through two WAEMU Directives from 2002 (AML) and 2007 (AFT) as amended. This comprehensive framework facilitates the implementation of UNSC resolutions based on a list of persons and entities prepared by the Committee. Effective March 31, 2023, the regional framework was revised, and a draft law was adopted by the Council of Ministers of the Union. The law contains new provisions on preventive measures applicable to all reporting entities. These cover mainly the following points: (1) the redefinition of the scope of application of the law by reducing the number of reporting entities to three categories established by the FATF, namely financial institutions, Designated Non-Financial Businesses and Professions (DNFBPs), and Virtual Asset Service Providers (VASPs); (2) the strengthening of the States' role in implementing targeted financial penalties by designating a national body responsible for managing frozen, seized, or confiscated criminal assets and their recovery; (3) the strengthening of preventive measures; (4) the strengthening of responsibilities that fall to the competent authorities in regulating and supervising financial institutions; (5) review of the definitions of politically exposed persons (PEPs).

No separate legal tender
Currency board
Conventional peg	Yes.	The exchange rate arrangement of the WAEMU is a conventional peg. Burkina Faso participates in a currency union with seven other members of the WAEMU and has no separate legal tender. A monetary cooperation agreement between the WAEMU member states and France was concluded on December 21, 2019, to replace the agreement dated December 4, 1973. The Monetary Cooperation Agreement is based on three pillars: (1) a common issuing institution, (2) fixed parity with the euro, and (3) a guarantee of unlimited convertibility.

Official exchange rate	Yes.	The CFA franc is officially pegged to the euro, the intervention currency, at the fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 per euro. The exchange rates for other currencies are derived from the rate for the currency concerned in foreign exchange market vis-à-vis the euro. The official rate is used for accounting and valuation. The Conference of Heads of State and Government may decide to amend the Monetary Cooperation Agreement between the WAMU member countries and France. Effective September 2, 2022, Executive Order No. 2022-21 of September 2, 2022, authorizing the ratification of the Cooperation Agreement, signed on December 21, 2019, in Abidjan (Republic of Côte d'Ivoire) between the Governments of the Member States of the West African Monetary Union and the Government of the French Republic was adopted. Under the monetary reform, the obligation to centralize foreign exchange reserves with the French Treasury has ended, and France has withdrawn from the Governance Bodies of the Central Bank.
Monetary policy framework
Exchange rate anchor	Yes.
U.S. dollar
Euro	Yes.	The monetary policy framework is an exchange rate anchor vis-à-vis the euro. The operational target of price stability is defined as an annual inflation rate in the WAEMU that falls within a band of ±1% around a central rate of 2%. The Harmonized CPI is the benchmark rate to measure inflation.

		members of the WAEMU area is 0.6%. This commission must be surrendered to the National Treasury and is a portion of its tax revenue.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	Authorized intermediaries (authorized intermediary banks and authorized nonelectronic exchange dealers) freely determine the buying and selling rates of foreign currencies, with the exception of the euro, which must be traded at the official fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 per euro. The commission on foreign exchange transactions may not exceed 2%. Instruction No. 013-11-2015 on the terms and conditions for conducting rapid money transfers as a subagent within the WAEMU went into force November 10, 2015.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Authorized intermediaries must comply with the provisions in effect on the financial conditions for engaging in nonelectronic foreign exchange transactions that involve foreign currencies and issue a transaction slip for all transactions with a client. Moreover, to provide satisfactory information to clients, they are required to (1) continuously post at their windows the rates actually charged for the different currencies and (2) post a notification that a transaction slip must be issued for all foreign exchange transactions based on the requestor's identity document. Banks and licensed exchange dealers are intermediaries authorized by the minister responsible for finance to conduct foreign exchange transactions with the public. As of December 31, 2022, there were 15 active banks, including 2 branches, and 171 authorized exchange bureaus operating in Burkina Faso. They may conduct transactions in foreign currencies, except euros with the BCEAO. Licensed exchange houses may not make transfers or payment in foreign currency with other countries or maintain accounts abroad. The entities authorized to conduct nonelectronic foreign currency transactions are authorized intermediary banks and individuals or companies authorized to conduct nonelectronic transactions by decision of the minister responsible for finance, with the consent of the BCEAO. In their operations with customers, authorized intermediaries (authorized intermediary banks and authorized OTC dealers) freely determine the buying and selling rates of foreign currencies, with the exception of the euro, which is traded at the official fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 and may be subject to a maximum commission of 2.0%.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	The BCEAO exchanges foreign currency for CFA francs at the rates published on the international markets, with the exception of the euro, which is traded at the official fixed rate of 655.957 per euro. The nonelectronic currency exchange windows are open to owners of accounts on the BCEAO books and to the general public. A commission of 0.5% is charged on all transactions with the public (purchases and sales) and all withdrawals by banks and financial institutions (including euro withdrawals). However, commissions are not charged on cash foreign exchange transactions conducted by governments, officials of Member States of the WAMU on missions abroad, officials of the CB and their beneficiaries, and on payments made by banks and financial institutions.
Allocation	No.
Auction	No.

Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	Transactions in CFA francs between authorized intermediaries are allowed. As of December 31, 2022, 14 banks participated in the domestic currency interbank market in the common currency, the CFAF. There is no regulated foreign currency interbank market in the WAEMU.
Over the counter	Yes.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	No.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to conduct the following transactions on the foreign exchange derivatives market with authorized intermediary banks established in the WAMU or with foreign banks: outright forward foreign exchange contracts (over the counter), foreign exchange options, foreign exchange swaps, and cross-currency swaps. Transactions in foreign exchange options are limited to the following two types of transactions: options to purchase foreign currency, purchased by residents of the WAEMU zone from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign bank, or options to sell foreign currency, purchased by residents of the WAEMU zone from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign credit institution. Authorized intermediary banks are required to simultaneously cover the exchange risk they incur in respect of derivatives instruments traded with their customers. The underlying commercial and financial operations must relate to imports and exports of goods and services by a resident, foreign borrowing operations by a resident (drawings and repayments), or direct foreign investment in a resident company. All legitimate foreign currency needs are ultimately met by the BCEAO.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.	Payments with countries outside the WAEMU are made in foreign currencies. Trade with other WAEMU countries is settled in CFA francs.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	Yes.	The CFA franc may not be used for settlement of current or capital international transactions with countries outside the WAEMU.
For current transactions and payments	Yes.	The CFA franc may not be used for settlement of international transactions outside the WAEMU.
For capital transactions	Yes.	The CFA franc may not be used for capital transactions with countries outside the WAEMU. Investments by residents of the WAEMU zone outside the WAEMU are subject to prior authorization by the minister of finance, and at least 75% of the investment must be financed through foreign borrowing.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	Yes.	The CFA franc may not be used for capital transactions with countries outside the WAEMU. Foreign investment by residents of the WAEMU zone is subject to authorization by the MOF. At least 75% of the investment must be financed through foreign borrowing. The interested party must request authorization through a letter designating the authorized intermediary to settle the payment. Purchases of foreign negotiable securities authorized by the regional capital markets authority to be issued or sold in WAEMU members do not require Minister of Economy and Finance (MEF) authorization.

Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	Yes.	Residents of WAEMU member countries may engage in the following operations on derivatives and other instruments with accredited banks established in the WAEMU or foreign banks: (1) forward contract, foreign exchange swaps, and options. Operations on derivatives with foreign banks outside the WAEMU can only relate to the purchase or sale, by a resident, of foreign exchange other than the euro or another currency from the Franc Zone.
Credit operations	Yes.	Loans of any kind, CFA franc overdrafts, and, in general, any advances granted by authorized intermediaries to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to prior authorization by the Directorate of External Financial Relations of the MOF, after BCEAO approval.
Use of foreign exchange among residents	Yes.	The CFA franc is the only legal tender, and residents of the WAEMU zone are not permitted to use foreign exchange for domestic transactions.
Payments arrangements	Yes.
Bilateral payments arrangements	No.
Operative	No.
Inoperative	No.
Regional arrangements	Yes.	A monetary cooperation agreement between the WAEMU member states and France was concluded on December 21, 2019, replacing the previous agreement dated December 4, 1973. This monetary cooperation agreement is based on three pillars: (1) a common bank of issue; (2) a fixed exchange rate parity with the euro; and (3) an unlimited convertibility guarantee.
Clearing agreements	Yes.	A multilateral clearing agreement exists in the context of the WAMA among the countries of the WAEMU and other ECOWAS countries (Cabo Verde, The Gambia, Ghana, Guinea, Liberia, Nigeria, Sierra Leone). Payments for current transactions between countries whose CBs are WAMA members may be effected under the clearing arrangements. However, this excludes transactions specified by the committee of governors of the CBs of ECOWAS members and payments for exports from one member country to another member country of finished products originating in countries whose CB or monetary authority is not a WAMA member.
Barter agreements and open accounts	No.
Administration of control	Yes.	The institutional reform of the WAMU and the BCEAO went into effect April 1, 2010, with the adoption of the following new basic instruments: (1) the WAMU Treaty, (2) the BCEAO Charter, (3) the Bank Regulation Act, and (4) the Convention governing the WAMU Banking Commission. All residents of WAEMU countries are treated as residents of Burkina Faso for the purposes of determining the foreign assets of banks, domiciliation and repatriation of export proceeds, the issuance and marketing of securities, imports and exports of gold, investment and borrowing operations, and the physical exportation of payment instruments and securities by postal package or ordinary mail. However, for statistical purposes related to the balance of payments, all countries other than Burkina Faso are considered foreign countries. In addition, all transfer operations with the rest of the world must be performed through an authorized intermediary bank, the postal service, or the BCEAO.
Payments arrears	No.

Official	No.
Private	No.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	No.
On external trade	Yes.	Gold imports and exports require MOF authorization, except (1) imports and exports by the Public Treasury and the BCEAO; (2) imports and exports of items with a low gold content (lined or plated objects); and (3) imports and exports, by travelers, of objects made of gold limited to a total weight of 500 grams. Imports and exports of gold within the WAEMU area are not subject to any restrictions.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.
On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Travelers may freely export CFA franc (XOF) banknotes from one WAEMU member country to another. Resident individuals and legal entities other than the BCEAO and its banking and commercial correspondents outside the WAEMU are prohibited from sending and receiving CFA franc banknotes issued by the BCEAO.
Foreign currency	Yes.	The reexportation of foreign banknotes by nonresident travelers is permitted up to the equivalent of CFAF 500,000; reexportation of foreign banknotes above this ceiling requires documentation demonstrating either the importation of the foreign banknotes or their purchase against other means of payment registered in the name of the traveler or through the use of nonresident deposit accounts in local banks. Residents of the WAEMU zone traveling to countries that are not WAEMU members are required to declare foreign currency on their person in excess of the equivalent of CFAF 1 million. They may carry up to the equivalent of CFAF 2 million a person in banknotes not issued by the BCEAO. Larger amounts may be exported in the form of traveler's checks, prepaid debit and payment cards, conventional debit and payment cards, or other means of payment. Foreign exchange allowances issued by authorized intermediaries in the form of traveler's checks or prepaid debit and payment cards must be based on the need to cover customary, personal travel expenses, if they exceed the equivalent of CFAF 2 million a person. The issuance of foreign currency to resident travelers is subject to the presentation of travel documents and a valid passport or national identification card.
On imports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Resident and nonresident travelers may freely import domestic currency from other WAEMU areas. However, resident individuals and legal entities other than the BCEAO and its banking and commercial correspondents outside the WAEMU are prohibited from receiving banknotes in domestic currency.
Foreign currency	No.	Residents and nonresident travelers may freely import CFA area banknotes denominated in foreign currencies. If such means of payment exceed the equivalent of CFAF 5 million, they must be declared to customs. Resident travelers are required to surrender foreign currency exceeding the equivalent of CFAF 500,000 to an authorized intermediary within eight days of their arrival in the national territory.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Held domestically	Yes.
Approval required	Yes.	Foreign exchange accounts in currencies other than the euro may be opened domestically with MOF authorization after non-objection from the BCEAO. The authorization specifies the operations that may be credited or debited on each such an account. These accounts are valid for a renewable term of up to one year. They cannot be credited with deposits of CFA banknotes or by debiting a CFA franc account. On expiration of the term set in the authorization, accounts are closed unless a new authorization is obtained.
Held abroad	Yes.
Approval required	Yes.	Individuals who are residents of the WAEMU and temporarily staying or traveling outside of the WAEMU may open bank accounts outside the WAEMU to deposit foreign currency legally exported and any income acquired outside of the WAEMU during their travel or temporary stay outside of the WAEMU. These individuals are required to repatriate balances on such accounts within 30 days of return to the WAEMU. In any circumstance other than the foregoing, opening of foreign accounts by WAEMU residents is subject to MOF authorization by after non-objection from the BCEAO. The MOF authorization specifies the operations that may be credited or debited on such accounts valid for up to one year. In the event of a failure to obtain a new MOF authorization, the accredited intermediary must request that the account be closed by the end of the term authorized and that any balance be repatriated to a WAEMU member country within eight days.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	No.
Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	No.

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Approval required	Yes.	Intermediaries authorized in the WAEMU are authorized to open accounts in euros for the benefit of nonresidents, subject to proof of their status and actual residence. Nonresident accounts denominated in foreign currency other than euros are subject to BCEAO authorization. Nonresident foreign currency accounts are valid for a renewable period of two years. In the event of a failure to obtain renewal (through a new BCEAO authorization for foreign exchange other than the euro), these accounts must be closed. The balances of these accounts may be freely transferred abroad after verification.
Domestic currency accounts	Yes.
Convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	Authorized intermediaries may open nonresident accounts in CFA francs and in euros, under their own responsibility, depending on the status and actual residence of the applicant. These accounts may be debited for spot purchases of foreign exchange.
Approval required	No.
Blocked accounts	No.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget	No.
Financing requirements for imports	Yes.
Minimum financing requirements	No.
Advance payment requirements	Yes.	Advance payments for imports require authorization, and importers may not acquire foreign exchange until the date of the payment specified in the contract.
Advance import deposits	No.
Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports	Yes.	Importers may purchase foreign exchange for import payments after establishing bank payment order accounts and submitting supporting documents, but not earlier than eight days before shipment if a documentary credit is opened, or on the payment due date if the products have already been imported.
Domiciliation requirements	Yes.	Import transactions from outside the CFA franc area exceeding CFAF 10 million must be made through an authorized bank.
Preshipment inspection	Yes.	Imports valued at CFAF 3 million or more are subject to inspection for verification of quality and value.
Letters of credit	No.
Import licenses used as exchange licenses	No.
Other	Yes.	Exchange authorization, invoices, and export-import cards are required.
Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.
Positive list	No.	Import licenses have been eliminated and replaced with pre-import declarations issued for all import operations valued at CFAF 5,00,000 or more.
Negative list	Yes.	Importation of ivory, fishing nets with mesh smaller than 3 square centimeters, asbestos, fireworks for entertainment, and explosive toys are prohibited. In addition, there is a temporary ban on importation of avian products and their derivatives originating in, or shipped from, countries affected by avian influenza.
Open general licenses	No.
Licenses with quotas	Yes.	A special import license, the autorisation spéciale d'importation (Special Import Authorization) issued by the Ministry of Trade, is required for imports of sugar (granulated and lump) from outside the ECOWAS and the WAEMU. The autorisation spéciale d'importation (Special Import Authorization) is granted for a minimum import quota of 2,000 metric tons.
Other nontariff measures	Yes.	A technical importation visa (certificat de conformité) is required for the following products: reinforcing steel, sheet metal, adhesives for cold vulcanization (dissolution), carbide, electrical batteries, polyethylene and polypropylene bags for packaging, mopeds, motorcycles with an engine capacity of less than 125 cubic centimeters, tires and inner tubes for bicycles, aerosol insecticides, mosquito-repellent coils, pesticides, bleach, cosmetic products and perfume, gas cylinders, pharmaceutical alcohol, butter and margarine, cooking salt, edible vegetable oils, food pastes, granulated sugar and sugar cubes, mayonnaise, mustard, seasoning cubes and flavoring, vinegar, wheat and cereal flour, yeast and additives for bread making, canned food, cookies, rice, beer, liquor, milk, tea, coffee, sodas, wine, and tobacco and tobacco products of any kind.

Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	The WAEMU CET consists of four tariff brackets: 0%, 5%, 10%, and 20%. Imports from countries other than WAEMU area countries are also subject to a 1% statistical tax and, a 0.8% community solidarity levy. A cyclical import tax (taxe conjoncturelle à l'importation) and a degressive protection tax (taxe dégressive de protection) may at certain times be charged on some products. Neither of these two taxes had been applied as at end-2018. Imports from non-ECOWAS members are subject to a 0.5% community levy (CL/ECOWAS).
Taxes collected through the exchange system	No.
State import monopoly	No.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Resident economic operators are required to collect and repatriate the entire amount of sales of goods abroad in the country of origin with the bank with which the transaction is domiciled within 30 days of the payment due date. The payment due date is specified in the trade agreement and normally falls within a period of 120 days after the goods are dispatched.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Export proceeds must be surrendered by ADs to the BCEAO within 30 days of the payment due date, which may not exceed 120 days after shipment of the goods. To cover its current foreign exchange needs, the domiciling bank may hold up to 20% of its export proceeds as owned foreign exchange resources. However, it must ensure that the total foreign exchange resources that cover its requirements do not exceed 5% of total customer demand deposits; otherwise, the surplus must be surrendered to the BCEAO.
Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	Proceeds must be surrendered to authorized banks within 30 days of the payment due date, which must not be more than 120 days after the shipment of the goods. Authorized intermediaries must then surrender the foreign exchange to the BCEAO by transfer through the bank of issue. Sales of foreign exchange by exporters to ADs other than the domiciling bank are permitted, provided the domiciling bank has documentation to verify domiciliation.
Financing requirements	No.
Documentation requirements	Yes.
Letters of credit	No.
Guarantees	No.
Domiciliation	Yes.	Export transactions of more than CFAF 10 million, except those between WAEMU countries, must be domiciled with an authorized intermediary bank.
Preshipment inspection	Yes.
Other	No.
Export licenses	Yes.	Exports of diamonds, gold, and all other precious metals are subject to authorization by the minister responsible for finance. Exports of ivory require special authorization by the Ministry of Foreign Trade. Exports of sesame are subject to the delivery of a certificate of origin and to the presentation of a phytosanitary certificate, verification notice, and certificate from an authorized laboratory. A visa system, called the Burkina Faso AGOA Visa, has been set up for exports of clothing and textiles to the United States under the AGOA preferential arrangement.

Without quotas	Yes.
With quotas	No.
Export taxes	Yes.
Collected through the exchange system	No.
Other export taxes	Yes.	Most exports are subject to a customs stamp tax of 6% and a statistical duty of 3%.

Payments for Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Controls on these transfers	Yes.	Payments and transfers for current transactions with WAEMU and non-WAEMU countries may be made freely through authorized intermediaries. Transfers exceeding CFAF 500,000 are subject to documentary requirements. Payments and receipts of foreign ships on stopovers in WAEMU countries or by WAEMU ships abroad are considered current transactions.
Trade-related payments	Yes.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Payments abroad relating to freight and insurance (including transfers of insurance not related to commercial transactions), unloading and warehousing costs, administrative costs, commissions, and customs duties and fees are permitted in general, subject to the presentation of supporting documentation to the authorized intermediary.
Investment-related payments	Yes.
Prior approval	Yes.	Payments for the depreciation of direct investments require approval by the minister of finance, because depreciation is not specifically mentioned in the regulations.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Outward transfers of proceeds from the liquidation of investments may be made by authorized banks, subject to presentation of supporting documents. Similarly, interest and dividends, shares and profits of corporations or partnerships, mortgage or real estate interests, rents and leases, operating profits of companies, pensions and annuities from life insurance contracts as well as any other periodic remuneration of a corporation are included in the current payments to foreign countries, which are executed on a voluntary basis by authorized intermediaries on presentation of supporting documents.
Payments for travel	Yes.

		form of traveler's checks, certified checks, or other means of payment. Larger amounts are permitted with documentation.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Resident travelers must present a travel document and a valid passport or a national identity card to an authorized intermediary bank or exchange bureau before foreign exchange will be issued.
Personal payments	Yes.
Prior approval	Yes.	Approval is required for payment of family maintenance expenses abroad.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Personal payments may be made through an authorized bank, subject to presentation of supporting documents. Payments abroad relating to pensions and benefits resulting from an employment contract, education costs, family maintenance, and alimony may be executed freely on presentation of documentation.
Foreign workers' wages	Yes.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Payments abroad related to wages, salaries, and honoraria; contributions and benefits; pensions and work-related activities; and service contracts are generally authorized on presentation of the appropriate documentation.
Credit card use abroad	Yes.	The use of credit cards is allowed when issued by specialized institutions which, where applicable, must report such transactions on a quarterly basis to the BCEAO.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	For travelers, allocations of foreign currency in the form of debit and payment card must be justified by requirements related to travel and personal expenses if they exceed the equivalent of CFAF 2 million.
Other payments	Yes.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	As a general rule, payments abroad in amounts greater than CFAF 500,000 are subject to the presentation of supporting documentation.

Proceeds from Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Proceeds from invisible transactions with non-WAEMU countries must be repatriated. Residents of the WAEMU zone are required to surrender to an authorized intermediary all revenues and income in foreign currency collected abroad or received from a nonresident within one month after the payment due date.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	ADs must immediately surrender residents of the WAEMU zone's proceeds from invisible transactions to the BCEAO. At the request of the BCEAO, ADs must sell to it, in exchange for currency that it issues, all their holdings in euros or other foreign currencies.
Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	Proceeds from invisible transactions with non-WAEMU countries must be surrendered to an AD within one month of the payment due date. Resident travelers must surrender to an authorized intermediary, within eight days of their arrival in Burkina Faso, foreign banknotes and other means of payment denominated in foreign currency worth more than the equivalent of CFAF 500,000.

Restrictions on use of funds	No.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions	Yes.	Capital transactions between WAEMU countries are unrestricted. Outward capital transfers require MOF authorization, except (1) amortization of debts and repayment of short-term loans to finance industrial and commercial operations, (2) payments required on foreign exchange derivatives transactions or raw material or commodity derivatives transactions, and (3) transfers of the proceeds of liquidated investments or the sale of foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone. Capital receipts from non-WAEMU countries are generally permitted.
Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Proceeds from the sale or liquidation of residents of the WAEMU zone's investments abroad must be repatriated within one month through a registered intermediary, if the resident does not have a reinvestment authorization.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Holdings exceeding the current needs of the credit institution must be surrendered to the BCEAO immediately. Credit institutions may hold net claims in foreign exchange with their banking correspondents outside the WAEMU to cover their current foreign exchange requirements in connection with customer transactions. In addition, ADs must surrender to the BCEAO, at its request, all BCEAO-issued currency and all or part of their assets in euros and in other foreign currencies.
Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	Proceeds from the sale or liquidation of WAEMU residents' investments abroad must be repatriated and surrendered within one month to an AD, if the resident does not have a reinvestment authorization. The surrender requirement applies to proceeds from all capital transactions.
Controls on capital and money market instruments	Yes.	RCPSFM authorization is required for the following operations: (1) the issuance or marketing of securities and real assets of foreign entities, (2) canvassing, and (3) publicity or advertising for investment abroad. Securities and mutual funds issued outside the WAEMU by a private or public entity that is not a resident of a member country may not be listed on a regional securities exchange. Soliciting the public of the WAEMU by nonresident entities is subject to authorization by the BCEAO in its capacity as the authority responsible for regulating the external financial relations of WAEMU countries. The Code of the Inter-African Conference on Insurance Markets (CIMA Code) requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.
On capital market securities	Yes.	The CIMA Code requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.
Shares or other securities of a participating nature	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	Purchases in the country by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are unrestricted. However, these purchases are subject to prior declaration to the minister of finance and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance of securities and the sale of corporate or foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to authorization from the RCPSFM, with authorization of the BCEAO acting in its capacity as the authority responsible for external financial relations. There are no controls on the sale of securities resulting from divestiture of an investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. Settlement of securities transactions by transfer abroad or by credit to a nonresident account requires submission of an exchange authorization to the MOF for approval, accompanied by supporting documentation.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	The purchase of foreign securities by residents of the WAEMU zone and the transfer abroad of funds for this purpose are subject to authorization by the minister responsible for finance. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may sell local corporate securities abroad. If these operations result in foreign control of resident entities, foreign investors are required to make a prior declaration to the MEF. The sale of securities to liquidate an investment abroad is subject to declaration to the MEF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes. Residents of the WAEMU zone may also issue securities abroad, unless the securities constitute a loan.
Bonds or other debt securities	Yes.	The regulations governing shares or other securities of a participating nature apply.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	These purchases are subject to declaration to the MOF for statistical purposes. There are no controls on the sale of securities resulting from the divestiture of investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. There is no minimum holding period.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance of securities and sale of corporate or foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to RCPSFM authorization. There are no controls on the sale of securities resulting from the divestiture of investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. Settlement of securities transactions by transfer abroad or by credit to a nonresident account requires an exchange authorization to be submitted to the minister responsible for finance for approval, accompanied by supporting documentation.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	The purchase of foreign securities by residents of the WAEMU zone and the transfer abroad of funds for this purpose are subject to MOF authorization and must be at least 75% financed with foreign borrowing. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries is authorized by the RCPSFM.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may sell local corporate securities abroad. If these operations result in foreign control of domestic establishments, foreign investors are required to make a prior declaration to the minister responsible for finance. The sale of securities to liquidate an investment abroad is subject to declaration to the MEF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes. The issuance by residents of the WAEMU zone to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone of securities constituting a loan must be made through an authorized bank and must be reported to the MEF for statistical purposes.

On money market instruments	Yes.	The regulations governing shares or other securities of a participating nature apply.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	These purchases are subject to prior declaration to the MEF for statistical purposes.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance and sale of money market instruments by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to authorization by the RCPSFM, with authorization of the BCEAO as the authority responsible for external financial relations. There are no controls on the sale of money market instruments resulting from the divestiture of investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. Settlement of money market instruments by transfer abroad or by credit to a nonresident account requires an exchange authorization to be submitted to the minister responsible for finance for approval, accompanied by supporting documentation.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	The purchase of foreign money market instruments by residents of the WAEMU zone and the transfer abroad of funds for this purpose are subject to authorization by the minister responsible for finance and must be at least 75% financed with foreign borrowing. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign money market instruments whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may sell local money market instruments abroad. The sale of money market instruments to liquidate an investment abroad is subject to declaration to the minister responsible for finance for statistical purposes. Residents of the WAEMU zone may sell or issue money market instruments abroad, unless the securities constitute a loan.
On collective investment securities	Yes.	The regulations governing shares or other securities of a participating nature apply.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	These purchases are subject to prior declaration to the minister responsible for finance for statistical purposes.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance of securities and the sale of corporate or foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to RCPSFM authorization with authorization of the BCEAO as the authority responsible for external financial relations. There are no controls on the sale of securities resulting from the divestiture of investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. Settlement of securities transactions by transfer abroad or by credit to a nonresident account requires an exchange authorization to be submitted to the minister responsible for finance for approval, accompanied by supporting documentation.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	The purchase of foreign securities by residents of the WAEMU zone and the transfer abroad of funds for this purpose are subject to authorization by the minister responsible for finance and must be at least 75% financed with foreign borrowing. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may sell local corporate securities abroad. If these operations result in foreign control of domestic establishments, foreign investors are required to make a prior declaration to the minister responsible for finance. The sale of securities to liquidate an investment abroad is subject to declaration to the minister responsible for finance for statistical purposes. Residents of the WAEMU zone may also issue securities abroad, unless the securities constitute a loan.

Controls on derivatives and other instruments	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may hedge risk using foreign exchange derivatives for the following commercial and financial operations: (1) imports and exports of goods and services; (2) foreign borrowing operations by a resident (drawings and repayments); and (3) negotiation of FDI in a resident enterprise. Foreign exchange derivatives can only relate to the purchase or sale, by a resident, of foreign exchange other than the euro or another currency from the Franc Zone.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may hedge risk using foreign exchange derivatives for the following commercial and financial operations: (1) imports and exports of goods and services; (2) foreign borrowing operations by a resident (drawings and repayments); and (3) negotiation of FDI in a resident enterprise. Foreign exchange derivatives can only relate to the purchase or sale, by a resident, of foreign exchange other than the euro or another currency from the Franc Zone. The use of exchange risk hedging derivatives on the domestic market is reserved exclusively for Union residents. Purchase of derivatives locally by nonresidents is not permitted.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Residents are authorized to carry out transactions on approved foreign exchange derivative instruments on foreign exchange derivatives markets with nonresident banks.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	These instruments are subject to general regulations that apply to securities and investments. Residents of the WAEMU zone may freely purchase abroad or from nonresidents of the WAEMU zone call or put options on primary commodities or securities transactions. Residents of the WAEMU zone may not purchase commodities or securities in foreign markets to be delivered in complying with a put option contract. Put options must be placed on assets that can be acquired locally by the resident seller for delivery abroad in execution of the contract. Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to purchase foreign currency purchase options on the foreign exchange derivatives market from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign credit institution.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to purchase foreign currency sell options on the foreign exchange derivatives market from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign (that is, nonresident of WAEMU) credit institution.
Controls on credit operations	Yes.	Borrowing by residents of the WAEMU zone from nonresidents of the WAEMU zone must be conducted through authorized intermediaries (whenever borrowed funds are made available for use in the country), unless otherwise indicated by the minister responsible for finance.
Commercial credits	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	There are no controls on credits related to exports of goods. The date on which payment falls due is specified in the contract (in principle not later than 120 days after the date of shipment).
To residents from nonresidents	No.	There are no controls, and repayments of commercial credits are generally conducted without prior authorization, subject to the presentation of documents attesting to the validity of the commercial operation or of the services rendered, as well as the payment due date, to the licensed intermediary bank responsible for handling the repayment.

By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Outward transfers necessary to service such facilities require an exchange authorization, subject to the approval of the minister responsible for finance and substantiated by documentation.
To residents from nonresidents	No.	There are no controls on these credits, but they must be reported for statistical purposes to the MOF and the BCEAO when granted and when repaid, except for the following credits: (1) mail overdrafts: CFA franc overdrafts for durations not to exceed the normal mail delivery times; (2) LCs available by acceptance, issued to exporters at the request of the authorized intermediaries' foreign correspondent banks; and (3) credit provided pursuant to a financial agreement between a WAEMU member country and a foreign government or pursuant to an interbank arrangement approved by the Directorate of External Finance. The necessary funds must be transferred from abroad through an authorized agent. There are no controls on repayment of loans, provided the authorized agent handling the settlement is furnished with documentation attesting to the validity of the transaction. Borrowing abroad is unrestricted.
Guarantees, sureties, and financial backup facilities	Yes.	The regulations governing financial credits apply.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	The granting of guarantees and sureties is subject to approval by the minister of finance. Transfers abroad of funds to service these facilities require the issuance of an exchange authorization, subject to approval by the minister of finance and the submission of supporting documents.
To residents from nonresidents	No.	These facilities may be granted freely, although the funds required for servicing them must be transferred abroad by an authorized bank. If, however, these transactions take place between a resident direct investment company and its parent company located abroad, they are considered direct investments and therefore require prior declaration to the MEF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Controls on direct investment	Yes.	Investment that implies control of a company or enterprise is considered direct investment. Mere participation is not considered direct investment unless it exceeds 10% of the capital of a company. All investment outside of WAEMU by residents of the WAEMU, including investment through foreign companies under the direct or indirect control of WAEMU residents and investment by foreign branches or subsidiaries of companies established in a WAEMU member country, requires MEF authorization.
Outward direct investment	Yes.	All investments abroad by residents of the WAEMU zone are subject to authorization by the minister responsible for finance, including investment through foreign companies under the direct or indirect control of residents of Burkina Faso and investment by foreign branches or subsidiaries of companies established in Burkina Faso. At least 75% of such investment must be financed by foreign loans. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM.
Inward direct investment	Yes.	FDI, including by resident companies that are directly or indirectly under foreign control and by branches or subsidiaries of foreign companies, must be reported to the minister responsible for finance for statistical purposes. A share is not considered a direct investment unless it exceeds 10% of the capital of a company.
Controls on liquidation of direct investment	No.	The liquidation of investments abroad must be reported to the MOF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes. Reinvestment of the liquidation proceeds is subject to authorization by the minister responsible for finance. If reinvestment is not authorized, the liquidation proceeds must be repatriated within one month through an authorized intermediary. The sale of foreign investments by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone is unrestricted but must be reported to the MOF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.

Controls on real estate transactions	Yes.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	These purchases require authorization by the minister of finance.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	Purchases for purposes other than direct investment in a business, branch, or company are permitted. These require declaration to the minister responsible for finance for statistical purposes.
Sale locally by nonresidents	No.	Sales by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone to residents of the WAEMU zone require the submission of supporting documentation to the authorized intermediary that handles the settlement and must be declared to the minister of finance and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Controls on personal capital transactions	Yes.	Personal capital transactions between residents of the WAEMU zone and nonresidents of the WAEMU zone must be made through the BCEAO, the postal service, or an authorized intermediary bank, unless authorization is obtained from the minister of finance.
Loans	Yes.	The regulations governing securities and investments apply.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	These transactions require authorization by the minister of finance. The individuals concerned may not engage in such operations as a professional occupation without first being licensed and included on the list of approved financial institutions.
To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	These transactions may be made freely but are subject to declaration to the MOF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes when disbursed and when repaid.
Gifts, endowments, inheritances, and legacies	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Inheritances and dowries are generally allowed. Gifts and endowments, however, are subject to authorization by the MOF and the BCEAO. These transactions must be conducted through an authorized intermediary and comply with the relevant AML and terrorism financing provisions.
To residents from nonresidents	No.	These transactions do not require authorization but are subject to declaration to the minister of finance and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Settlement of debts abroad by immigrants	Yes.	Immigrants with resident status must obtain approval from the minister responsible for finance to settle debts incurred abroad when they were nonresidents of the WAEMU zone.
Transfer of assets	Yes.
Transfer abroad by emigrants	Yes.	These operations require authorization by the minister of finance if the value exceeds CFAF 500,000 a person. There are no restrictions on transfers of amounts below this threshold.
Transfer into the country by immigrants	Yes.	Foreign accounts of nonresidents of the WAEMU zone (in foreign currencies or CFA francs) who become residents of the WAEMU zone must be closed. However, they may maintain abroad bank accounts opened and financial assets acquired while they were nonresidents of the WAEMU zone. New transfers to these accounts require approval by the minister responsible for finance.
Transfer of gambling and prize earnings	No.	These transfers are conducted freely through authorized intermediaries, subject to the presentation of supporting documents and compliance with the relevant provisions on combating money laundering and financing of terrorism.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	The Law on Money Laundering defines the legal framework relative to money laundering in Burkina Faso, to prevent the use of the WAEMU's economic, financial, and banking channels for laundering money or other illicitly obtained assets (Article 4). The Uniform Law on the Treatment of Dormant Accounts on the Books of Financial Agencies of the Member States of the WAMU by the Council of Ministers of the Union took effect September 28, 2012. Decision No. CM/UMOA/023/2012 set the deadline (December 31, 2013) for including this law in the domestic legislation of WAMU members. It has been incorporated into Burkina Faso national law.
Borrowing abroad	No.	Loans from abroad are unrestricted. For statistical purposes, these transactions must be declared to the minister responsible for finance and the BCEAO when granted and when repaid.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	Yes.	Banks and financial institutions are authorized to open accounts with their correspondent banks for settling transactions for their own account or the accounts of their customers. However, banks are not authorized to hold in these accounts amounts that exceed their current requirements. In accordance with Regulation No. 09/2010/CM/UEMOA on the External Financial Relations of the WAEMU Member States, to cover their foreign currency requirements, banks are authorized to hold the following in banking institutions located in non-WAEMU countries: (1) demand deposits that do not exceed the total amount of import payments domiciled by clients in their books, payable within a period of eight days and (2) demand deposits that do not exceed the balance of their open foreign accounts in foreign currencies other than euros and their open resident accounts in foreign currency. The total amount of these assets may not exceed 5% of their clients' outstanding demand deposits. Assets in excess of foreign currency requirements must be surrendered to the BCEAO.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	Yes.	Commercial lending is permitted. Financial credits are subject to authorization by the minister responsible for finance, following BCEAO approval.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	There are no explicit regulations regarding these transactions, but minister responsible for finance authorization and BCEAO approval are required.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	Yes.	These purchases require authorization by the minister responsible for finance if their issuance has not been authorized by the RCPSFM.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.
Reserve requirements	No.	A reserve requirement of 3% has been applicable to banks in the WAEMU zone since March 16, 2017. Demand deposits, other debit deposit accounts, and loan accounts are included in the calculation of required reserves. The following four elements are taken into account in calculating the required reserves to be established in the CB: (i) demand deposits; (ii) short-term loans; (iii) gross claims abroad, including customer deposits in foreign currency; (iv) medium- and long-term loans. Required reserves are therefore established on a standard, settlement, or securities account based on eligibility for calculation of reserves allocated by the MPC.
Liquid asset requirements	No.	In accordance with the prudential framework applicable to banks and financial institutions carrying out banking operations in the WAEMU, the minimum liquid asset requirement is 75%. A 50% transformation ratio is also required to ensure that banks continually have more stable financing sources to finance their long-term uses.
Interest rate controls	No.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

Credit controls	Yes.	Financial loans of any kind, CFA franc overdrafts, and, in general, advances to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to authorization by the minister responsible for finance, after BCEAO approval. These claims are included in the external position of banks and financial institutions, which is subject to special monitoring.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts held by nonresidents	Yes.	Banking regulations make no distinction among resident deposit accounts, nonresident deposit accounts, and foreign deposit accounts.
Reserve requirements	No.
Liquid asset requirements	No.
Interest rate controls	No.
Credit controls	Yes.	Overdrafts and advances granted to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone require authorization by the minister responsible for finance and BCEAO approval.
Investment regulations	Yes.	The regulations governing direct investment apply.
Abroad by banks	Yes.	All investments abroad by residents of the WAEMU zone are subject to MOF authorization. At least 75% of such investment must be financed by foreign loans. Authorization is not required for the purchase of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in the WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM.
In banks by nonresidents	Yes.	These transactions may, depending on their volume, be subject to authorization by the minister responsible for finance. Article 29 of the Banking Law stipulates that the investment of any person in a bank that would have the effect of changing the minority and/or the majority of voting rights requires authorization by the minister responsible for finance.
Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.	No prudential ratios apply. Because of the surrender requirement, banks are not allowed to maintain an open foreign exchange position. However, the BCEAO grants individual dispensations that allow banks to keep working balances in their correspondent accounts for the smooth completion of international payments, up to the equivalent of 5% of total customer demand deposits. To cover their foreign currency requirements, banks are authorized to hold the following in banking institutions in non-WAEMU countries: (1) demand deposits that do not exceed the total amount of import payments domiciled by clients in their books, payable within a period of eight days, and (2) demand deposits that do not exceed the balance of their open foreign accounts in foreign currencies other than euros and their open resident accounts in foreign currency.
On resident assets and liabilities	Yes.	No prudential ratios apply. Because of the surrender requirement, banks are not allowed to maintain an open foreign exchange position. However, the BCEAO grants individual dispensations that allow banks to keep working balances in their correspondent accounts for the smooth completion of international payments. To cover their foreign currency requirements, banks are authorized to hold the following in banking institutions in non-WAEMU countries: (1) demand deposits that do not exceed the total amount of import payments domiciled by clients in their books, payable within a period of eight days, and (2) demand deposits that do not exceed the balance of their open foreign accounts in foreign currencies other than euros and their open resident accounts in foreign currency.
On nonresident assets and liabilities	Yes.	No prudential ratios apply. Because of the surrender requirement, banks are not allowed to maintain an open foreign exchange position. However, the BCEAO grants individual dispensations that allow banks to keep working balances in their correspondent accounts for the smooth completion of international payments. To cover their

Provisions specific to institutional investors	Yes.
Insurance companies	Yes.	Controls are imposed by the CIMA Code.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	The CIMA Code allows insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest up to 50% of resources collected locally in other CIMA member countries.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	The CIMA Code allows insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest up to 50% of resources collected locally in other CIMA member countries.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	Yes.	According to the CIMA Code, a minimum of 50% of resources collected in a CIMA member country by insurance companies must be invested locally.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	Yes.	The CIMA Code specifies that liabilities in a given currency must be covered by assets denominated in the same currency.
Pension funds	Yes.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance, presentation, and floating of securities of any kind from foreign governments, local authorities, foreign companies, or international institutions are subject to authorization by the RCPSFM.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	With the exception of foreign securities issued or sold in WAEMU member countries with RCPSFM authorization, all investments abroad by residents of the WAEMU zone are subject to minister responsible for finance authorization and must be at least 75% financed with foreign borrowing.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	No.
Investment firms and collective investment funds	Yes.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance, presentation, and floating of securities of any kind from foreign governments, local authorities, foreign companies, or international institutions are subject to RCPSFM authorization.

Exchange Measures

Exchange measures imposed for security reasons
Other security restrictions	03/31/2023	The regional framework was revised, and a draft law was adopted by the Council of Ministers of the Union. The law contains new provisions on preventive measures applicable to all reporting entities. These cover mainly the following points: (1) the redefinition of the scope of application of the law by reducing the number of reporting entities to three categories established by the FATF, namely financial institutions, Designated Non-Financial Businesses and Professions, and Virtual Asset Service Providers; (2) the strengthening of the States' role in implementing targeted financial penalties by designating a national body responsible for managing frozen, seized, or confiscated criminal assets and their recovery; (3) the strengthening of preventive measures; (4) the strengthening of responsibilities that fall to the competent authorities in regulating and supervising financial institutions; (5) review of the definitions of politically exposed persons.

Exchange Arrangement

Official exchange rate	09/02/2022	Executive Order No. 2022-21 of September 2, 2022, authorizing the ratification of the Cooperation Agreement, signed on December 21, 2019, in Abidjan (Republic of Côte d'Ivoire) between the Governments of the Member States of the West African Monetary Union and the Government of the French Republic was adopted. Under the monetary reform, the obligation to centralize foreign exchange reserves with the French Treasury has ended, and France has withdrawn from the Governance Bodies of the Central Bank.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	Yes.	The IMF staff report for the Article IV Consultation with Burundi states that as of July 7, 2022, Burundi continues to maintain a MCP that is inconsistent with Article VIII, Section 3: The exchange rate used for government transactions (the official rate) may differ by more than 2% from market exchange rates, and there is no mechanism to prevent such a deviation. (Country Report No. 22/257).
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	Yes.	Burundi maintains restrictions on financial transactions and accounts of individuals and organizations associated with terrorism, pursuant to UNSC Resolution No. 1269 (1999) and the updated list of organizations associated with terrorism prepared by the U.S. Department of State.
Other security restrictions	No.	There are no other restrictions.

Official exchange rate	Yes.	The method for calculating the reference rate includes all bank transactions with customers on the previous day. To prevent further sharp fluctuations, bank operations whose exchange rate deviates from the defined band are systematically excluded from the calculations. For the BRB, the official exchange rate is used for government transactions, foreign exchange sales, and to adjust banks' net open positions. Effective May 4, 2023, the CB reintroduced the interbank foreign exchange market and used the rate obtained on the interbank foreign exchange market as a reference to calculate the official rate with a fluctuation margin not exceeding 2%. Further to the currency shortage, the exchange rate for official transactions may deviate from the market rate by more than 2%.

Foreign exchange market	Yes.	ADs are allowed to determine freely their foreign exchange commissions with their clients.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Banks and exchange bureaus are free to set traded market exchange rates, which they post for the clients. Banks can freely purchase and sell foreign exchange for trade and capital transactions. The BRB has set a fluctuation margin on foreign currency purchases and sales by commercial banks and exchange bureaus of ±2% of the reference rate, which it publishes each morning. The BRB licenses banks. Ten commercial banks operate on the spot exchange market. On February 7, 2020, measure was taken to withdraw the licenses of exchange bureaus. Effective October 7, 2022, the measure to withdraw the licenses of exchange bureaus was lifted. The BRB licenses exchange bureaus for an unlimited period. However, their current business activity is severely controlled. Eight (8) licensed exchange bureaus are in operation. They may engage in foreign currency note purchases and sales with the public but may not hold accounts abroad or make foreign exchange payments or transfers on behalf of their clients.

Interbank market	Yes.	Only commercial banks (14) are authorized by the CB to participate in the interbank foreign exchange market. There are no limits on commissions of market participants. Since the decline in foreign exchange reserves, 5 interbank transactions have been recorded on this market since its reintroduction on May 4, 2023, until end-June 2023, in addition to CB interventions. The BRB intervenes in the interbank foreign exchange market on its own initiative in accordance with market conditions. The market is open on all business days. The CB intervenes in the foreign exchange market mainly to finance the import of priority products such as petroleum products, drugs, and fertilizers. The CB's money market interventions take the form of tenders for the provision or absorption of liquidity, standing loan facilities, and special refinancing, among others. Effective May 4, 2023, the CB reintroduced the interbank foreign exchange market, where banks exchange foreign currency at freely negotiated rates. Previously, the BRB sets a fluctuation margin on foreign currency purchases and sales by commercial banks and exchange bureaus of ±1% of the reference rate it publishes each morning.

U.S. dollar
Euro	Yes.	The monetary policy framework is an exchange rate anchor vis-à-vis the euro. The Bank of Cabo Verde (BCV – Banco de Cabo Verde) collaborates with the government in defining the country's monetary and exchange rate policy, which aims to achieve and maintain price stability. However, the implementation of monetary and exchange rate policy is done autonomously by the BCV. The operational framework for monetary policy uses the interest rate as its operational target, exchange rate stability as an intermediate objective, and the maintenance of price stability as a final objective. The (semiannual) Monetary Policy Report and the monetary policy guidelines are analyzed/discussed (bimonthly) in the MPC and approved by the Board of Directors of the BCV.

Exchange tax	No.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	Commercial banks may buy and sell foreign currency. They may freely negotiate exchange rates and fees for purchases and sales of all foreign currency, except the euro, which must be traded at the official rate. Under the terms of Article 12 of Legislative Decree No. 3/2018 of June 22, 2018, foreign exchange trading in Cabo Verde is generally done only by financial institutions expressly authorized thereto by the legal and regulatory rules governing their activity, except in specific cases of international money orders (Article 13) and manual exchange (Article 14). On an exceptional basis, the Central Bank of Cabo Verde may authorize entities not referred to above to trade in foreign exchange and travelers' checks, provided they meet the requirements defined in an Official Notice (Aviso). The operations of the foreign exchange market are regulated through CB Technical Instruction No. 121/2005. There is a parallel foreign exchange market in Cabo Verde. The exchange rates practiced in this market have been close to the rates applied in the formal market.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	The regulation governing the spot foreign exchange market (BCV Technical Instruction No. 121/2005) dates from 2005. As of December 31, 2022, there were two foreign exchange bureaus operating in the country. Foreign exchange bureaus can buy and sell foreign banknotes and coins and traveler's checks and may also provide money transfer services to and from abroad (under the conditions specified in Aviso No. 3/2003). Foreign exchange bureaus may maintain accounts abroad, within the framework of the liberalization promoted by Legislative Decree No. 3/2018 of June 22, 2018. Licensed foreign exchange bureaus are authorized to conduct foreign exchange operations directly with the CB.

Operated by the central bank	Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	The BCV buys and sells escudos for euros at the announced exchange rate. There is no official bid-ask spread for euros. The BCV engages in sales and purchases of foreign currency with commercial banks and the government on demand. There are no restrictions on access to foreign currency.
Allocation	No.
Auction	No.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	Commercial banks may trade foreign currency with each other. All eight commercial banks participate in the interbank foreign exchange market, but there are virtually no interbank foreign exchange transactions. Entities authorized to trade in foreign exchange may freely negotiate the exchange rates and fees to be applied when trading in the quoted currencies, except the euro, which must be traded at the official rate because the Cabo Verde escudo is pegged to it.
Over the counter	Yes.	Banks are free to negotiate exchange rates and fees for purchases and sales of all foreign currencies, except the euro, which must be traded at the official rate.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	No.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	The regulation governing the forward foreign exchange market (BCV Technical Instruction No. 121/2005) dates from 2005. Only credit institutions are authorized to contract and engage in foreign exchange forward transactions, in Cabo Verde and abroad, for the purpose of hedging the foreign exchange risks inherent to commercial or financial transactions in foreign currency. The said institutions may enter into contracts with residents, with each other, and with nonresident credit institutions.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	No.	Most dealings in foreign exchange with the general public are conducted by eight commercial banks: (1) Banco Comercial do Atlântico, (2) Caixa Económica de Cabo Verde, (3) Banco Caboverdiano de Negócios, (4) Banco Interatlântico, (5) Banco Africano de Investimentos, (6) Ecobank, (7) Internacional Investment Bank de Cabo Verde, and (8) Banco de Fomento Internacional.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	No.

		restrictions against the use of foreign exchange among residents. Also, there are no restrictions against the use of foreign exchange between residents and nonresidents. Article 18 of Legislative Decree No. 3/2018 of June 22, 2018, provides that residents may reciprocally assume debts or grant credits denominated in foreign currency or in units of account used in international payments and clearing arrangements.
Payments arrangements	Yes.
Bilateral payments arrangements	Yes.
Operative	No.
Inoperative	Yes.	There are inoperative bilateral payment agreements with Cuba and Angola.
Regional arrangements	No.
Clearing agreements	No.
Barter agreements and open accounts	No.
Administration of control	Yes.	Foreign exchange transactions were fully liberalized, according to Legislative Decree No. 3/2018 of June 22, 2018. The BCV serves as the country's foreign exchange authority, pursuant to the terms of Article 25 of Legislative Decree No. 3/2018 of June 22, 2018. The June 2018 foreign exchange law fully liberalized foreign exchange transactions and economic and financial operations with entities abroad. This rendered irrelevant the prior authorization, prior verification process, and the special and prior authorization to which certain operations were previously subjected to. However, in exceptional circumstances and in consultation with the BCV, the government may impose temporary restrictions on economic, financial, and foreign exchange transactions undertaken by residents with nonresidents (Article 23 of Legislative Decree No. 3/2018 of June 22, 2018). Article 15 of Legislative Decree No. 3/2018 of June 22, 2018, provides that foreign exchange transactions must be conducted through an institution authorized to trade in foreign exchange, except in the cases identified in the decree.
Payments arrears	Yes.
Official	Yes.	External arrears are owed to Russia, for which rescheduling negotiations are under way. External arrears owed to Brazil were rescheduled and are being paid according to the new agreement.

Financing requirements for imports	No.
Minimum financing requirements	No.
Advance payment requirements	No.
Advance import deposits	No.
Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports	No.	Article 10 of Legislative Decree No. 3/2018 of June 22, 2018, provides that economic and financial transactions may be freely contracted with entities abroad, without prejudice to the provisions of Article 23. The only requirement is to provide statistical data and conserve their respective elements, pursuant to Aviso No. 6/2018 of August 27. Institutions authorized to trade in foreign exchange may, subject to their Due Diligence, the Know Your Customer principle, and the application of legislation of another nature (for example, within the scope of anti-money laundering and the financing of terrorism), request the documentation necessary to provide the service, irrespective of whether the transaction involves foreign exchange.
Domiciliation requirements	No.	Article 16 of Legislative Decree No. 3/2018 of June 22, 2018, provides that payments between residents and nonresidents to settle economic and financial transactions with entities abroad may be made directly through any means of payment denominated in escudos or in foreign currency. Article 20 of Legislative Decree No. 3/2018 of June 22, 2018, provides that accounts with nonresident institutions may be freely opened and operated.
Preshipment inspection	No.
Letters of credit	No.
Import licenses used as exchange licenses	No.
Other	No.
Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.	Import licensing was delegated to the Chambers of Commerce in 2000 through the protocols published in Official Bulletin (B.O.) No. 1, Series II of January 3, 2000. A series of subsequent trade legislation maintained the option to delegate powers through the signing of a protocol to enable the two Chambers of Commerce existing in Cabo Verde to issue import licenses on behalf of the government. Import licenses that are issued will be valid for one year and may be renewed for a further year.
Positive list	No.	Cabo Verde has not implemented the positive list of imported goods, so there are no import restrictions, except for goods whose importation is prohibited or subject to conditions.
Negative list	Yes.	The Report of the Working Group on the Accession of Cabo Verde to the WTO, published in the Supplement to B.O. No. 26 of June 29, 2009, contains a list of goods subject to international trade restrictions and a list of goods which may not be imported into Cabo Verde. Chapter III of the Customs Code defines prohibited goods as those whose importation or exportation is prohibited in Cabo Verde in any way or is subject to restrictions relating to quality, packaging, or special formalities. Similarly, goods whose importation or exportation is not accompanied by the appropriate specific document, legally required for this purpose, are also considered prohibited.

Open general licenses	Yes.	Import licenses are generally issued freely, with the exception of certain goods that are prohibited or restricted by law. For example, drugs are imported exclusively by the national pharmaceutical firm Empresa Nacional de Produtos Farmacêuticos – Decree-Law No. 53/79 of June 9, 1979. With the exception of imports channeled through the small packages regime, which are of a noncommercial nature with a value of up to CVEsc 100,000 and a weight not exceeding 150 kg, as well as donations and aid to the government/municipalities and nonprofit entities that are not required to submit import licenses, all other imports are subject to licensing and/or administrative authorizations (sanitary and phytosanitary certificates, authorization to import arms, munitions, etc.). Article 4 of Legislative Decree No. 68/2005 of October 2005 established specific products exempt of licensing: "The following must be exempt from licensing: (1) Imports of merchandise without commercial value as defined by order of the member of government responsible for foreign trade; (2) Active and passive processing operations, temporary imports, reimporting on an as-is basis, reexporting, and transit operations; (3) Merchandise imports subject to special duty-free, bonded warehouse, free warehouse, and special customs warehouse systems; (4) Industrialized merchandise earmarked for consumption in international congresses, fairs, exhibitions, and similar events; (5) Imports of merchandise earmarked to supply ships and aircraft, as provided in the relevant legislation; (6) Merchandise that is seized, abandoned, found at sea, discarded, or salvaged from wrecks, and sold at auction; and (7) Imports of merchandise without foreign exchange expenditure, owned by airlines or maritime navigation companies and intended for their exclusive use."
Licenses with quotas	No.
Other nontariff measures	Yes.	As per Article 5 of Legislative Decree No. 68/2005 of October 2005: "The following merchandise must be subject to non-automatic licensing: (1) Merchandise subject to health, phytosanitary, and safety inspections; (2) Merchandise subject to mandatory restrictions defined by law. Applications for the importing of merchandise referred above must be accompanied with a certificate of compliance issued by the competent authorities." Pursuant to Article 43 of Legislative Decree No. 4/2010 of June 3, 2010: (1) For purposes of this Code, all merchandise for which importing or exporting is prohibited in any way or that are subject to restrictions deriving from rules applicable to quality, packaging, or special formalities will be considered prohibited merchandise. (2) Merchandise for which importing or exporting is not accompanied with the appropriate specific document required by law for that purpose, and more specifically a permit, license, certificate, or similar document will also be considered to be prohibited.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	There are currently 13 tariff bands with a maximum rate of 55% and an unweighted average of 11%. Import duty has been reduced in accordance with the commitments made by Cabo Verde in connection with List CLXI List appended to the Protocol of Accession of Cabo Verde to the WTO, approved under Resolution No. 73/VII/2008 of June 19, 2008, as subsequently amended under Resolution No. 99/VII/2009 of May 11, 2009, covering reductions for information and communication technology and civil aviation products that began in 2010 and ended in 2018. The Customs Statistics Tax was established under Article 31 of Law No. 23/VIII/2012 of December 31, 2012. In the context of providing incentives for domestic industry and fighting the use and abuse of alcohol, tobacco, and sugar products, the import duty and excise duty rates for the products listed in Article 32 of Law No. 5/IX/2016, B.O. No. 73, Series I of December 30, 2016, were increased in 2017. The taxes are applicable to all imports from third-party countries. As a member of the ECOWAS, Cabo Verde applies the trade liberalization scheme under which originating products benefit from import duty exemptions.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	No.	No restrictions as reported in the latest IMF staff report as of December 31, 2022.
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	Yes.	Banks have been instructed to freeze transfers of capital and assets of certain individuals and funds and other financial assets of terrorists and organizations associated with terrorism to combat money laundering, pursuant to relevant UNSC resolutions.
Other security restrictions	No.

Exchange Arrangement

Currency	Yes.	The currency of Cambodia is the Cambodian riel.
Other legal tender	No.
Exchange rate structure
Unitary	Yes.	The exchange rate regime comprises two rates: the official rate and the market rate. The daily spread between the official and market rates is generally ±1%.

Crawling peg
Crawl-like arrangement	Yes.	The de jure exchange rate arrangement is a managed float. Given the high degree of financial dollarization, the National Bank of Cambodia (NBC) intervenes in the foreign exchange market to accommodate demand for riel and maintain exchange rate stability. The NBC publishes intervention data twice a year, in semiannual reports and annual reports of the NBC in Khmer language, which will be published on the NBC website with 1–2-month lag. There are also English versions of annual reports but published with a time lag of around 3–5 months. FX internventions (FXI) are also published in forms of announcement and Press Release on the website whenever the NBC intervenes in the foreign exchange market. Since March 2022, the exchange rate followed a depreciating trend within a 2% band against the US dollar, with one realignment in February 2023. Therefore, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified to “crawl-like” from “stabilized,” effective March 16, 2022.

Official exchange rate	Yes.	Effective August 2, 2022, the official exchange rate is the weighted average of the interbank foreign exchange market transactions completed by Banks and Microfinance Institutions (MFIs) on National Bank of Cambodia Platform (NBCP) in the previous working day. Previously, the official exchange rate was based on the average daily market rate of the previous day, which is adjusted by taking into account liquidity conditions in the market. The official rate is used for banks’ and financial institutions’ accounting, customs valuation purposes, and foreign exchange transactions with the government.

Foreign exchange market	Yes.	Commercial banks and money changers are free to set the exchange rate in transactions with their clients. The ADs are allowed to determine freely foreign exchange commissions with their clients.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	There is no formal spot exchange market. Commercial banks may buy and sell foreign exchange at their own rates. Money changers may also buy and sell banknotes and traveler's checks at their own rates. The NBC licenses commercial banks and other foreign exchange agents (money changers). Foreign exchange dealers may conduct foreign exchange business, maintain accounts abroad, and buy and sell banknotes and traveler's checks. There were 22 licensed money changers and 2,844 authorized money changers as of December 31, 2022. Licensed money changers can directly transact with the NBC, and they are able to make foreign currency payment and transfer on behalf of the clients.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.	The NBC intervenes in the foreign exchange market through purchases and sales of US dollars to maintain a stable exchange rate to achieve price stability. The NBC holds foreign exchange reserves in US dollars, euros, pounds sterling, Australian dollars, and other currencies in accordance with the guidelines of the Investment Committee. The NBC interacts with the market using three channels: (1) auction; (2) bilateral transaction with money changers and banks; and (3) direct transaction with the government. The current format of NBCs' interaction with market participants appears to be managing riel liquidity (demand for Cambodian riel (KHR) tax payment, etc.) and to limit volatility in exchange rate. On bilateral basis, the NBC uses the official quote.

Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	The NBC buys and/or sells US dollars and Cambodian riel (KHR) to manage the supply of foreign and the local currency to the market. The NBC also buys and sells US dollars and Cambodian riel directly to the government and public entity, except the Electricité Du Cambodge (EDU). The NBC sells Cambodian riels to market according to market conditions. Since 2012, the NBC has ceased to sell US dollars to market. However, the NBC sold USD during the pandemic given the depreciation pressures on local currency.
Allocation	No.
Auction	Yes.	Auction takes place occasionally, depending on the deviation of exchange rate from its normal trend. The NBC provides guidance on rates and announces amounts in advance. There is a minimum bid rate, but there is no limit on amounts. There are some penalties for those who do not settle on time. There are no restrictions on the use of currency obtained at auction, but the NBC requests information beforehand on the intended use of local currency purchased. Banks and licensed money changers may participate and are not required to submit information on the intended use of the foreign currency exchange on a transactional or an aggregate basis. Auction results are regularly disclosed to the public.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	The interbank foreign exchange market is still at an early stage of development, with the operation taking place on a retail customer basis. Banks conduct transactions among each other through NBCP. There is no limit on the bid-ask spread and commission fee. The number of banks participating in the interbank foreign exchange market as of December 31, 2022, is 38. The NBC grants licenses to banks, and foreign exchange is one of the businesses that they can operate under bank license. There are a few number of money changers who are the market makers. Licensed money changers are allowed to participate in the platform since 2021. They are allowed to make foreign exchange transactions directly with the CB. They can maintain accounts abroad and there is no limit on their purchase and sale of banknotes, but they cannot make foreign currency payments and transfers on behalf of their clients. There are 2 money changers have transactions in the interbank market in 2022.
Over the counter	Yes.	The informal interbank market may operate over the counter, and there are no brokers.
Brokerage	No.	Foreign exchange market does not operate based on a brokerage system.
Market making	Yes.	There is no exact year when the market-making activities emerged. There are a few money changers who are the market makers, yet the operations are not under control of the CB. The CB also proposes its own quotes to market participants through NBCP. Since 2021, all licensed money changers are allowed to participate in the NBCP where banks conduct transactions among each other. However, there are less than 10 money changers who joined the NBCP and there were few transactions took place.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Forward exchange market exists among commercial banks. The CB does not participate in the forward foreign exchange market. There is no exact year when the forward exchange market was formed.

Official cover of forward operations	No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	No.	The use of domestic currency is not restricted for payments and receipts between Cambodia and the rest of the world; however, such operations must be undertaken solely through authorized intermediaries.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	No.	Domestic currency can be used for settlement of international current or capital transactions.
For current transactions and payments	No.

Transactions in capital and money market instruments	No.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	No.
Credit operations	No.
Use of foreign exchange among residents	No.
Payments arrangements	Yes.
Bilateral payments arrangements	Yes.
Operative	Yes.	There are two bilateral payments arrangements: One is between the NBC and the State Bank of Vietnam since 2005, and the other is between the NBC and the Bank of Thailand since 2006. A MoU on cooperation between the NBC and the Bank of Thailand was agreed on using QR code payment system in local currencies, and a launch of cross-border funds transfer was done between NBC and Maybank in August 2021.
Inoperative	No.
Regional arrangements	No.
Clearing agreements	No.
Barter agreements and open accounts	No.
Administration of control	Yes.	The NBC is responsible for the management of the foreign exchange market. The NBC is authorized to license commercial banks and other agents to engage in foreign exchange transactions and to regulate current and capital transactions. In the event of a foreign exchange crisis, the NBC may issue regulations to be implemented for a maximum period of three months that impose certain temporary restrictions on the activity of authorized intermediaries, particularly on certain transactions specified in the law, on foreign exchange positions, and on loans in domestic currency extended to nonresidents.

Article XIV

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	No.	No restrictions as reported in the latest IMF staff report as of December 31, 2022.
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	Yes.	For security reasons, Cameroon supports UNSC Resolution No. 1373 to combat money laundering and terrorism financing (Regulation No. 01/03/CEMAC/UMAC/CM of April 4, 2003), UNSC Resolution No. 1267 (1999), restricts financial transactions, and freezes accounts if they relate to terrorists or organizations associated with terrorism pursuant to the updated list of organizations associated with terrorism drawn up by the US State Department.
Other security restrictions	Yes.

Exchange Arrangement

Currency	Yes.	The currency issued within the CEMAC, which is legal tender in Cameroon and all other member countries, is the CFA franc.

Conventional peg	Yes.	The exchange rate arrangement of the CAMU is a conventional peg. Cameroon participates in the CAMU and has no separate legal tender. The Monetary Cooperation Agreement (MCA) between CEMAC member countries and France is based on three principles: (1) a common CB; (2) fixed parity with the euro; and (3) an unlimited convertibility guarantee. Article 16 empowers the finance ministers of signatory countries (Joint Monetary Committee) to amend the MCA. Article 17 permits signatories to renounce the agreement. Article 18 specifies that the expulsion of a member country from the BEAC automatically results in that country's renunciation of the MCA.

Official exchange rate	Yes.	The CFA franc is officially pegged to the euro, the intervention currency, at a fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 per euro. The exchange rate is fixed by Article 12 of the MCA of November 23, 1972, between the BEAC and France, which states that the par value may be modified following consultation among the signatory countries (BEAC members and France), taking into account the demands of the economic and financial situation of the member countries. Exchange transactions in euros between the BEAC and commercial banks are made at this rate. Buying and selling rates for certain other foreign currencies are also listed officially based on the fixed rate for the euro and the rates for these foreign currencies prevailing in the Paris foreign exchange market. The official rate is used for accounting and valuation.

Exchange tax	Yes.	Transfers of funds with the rest of the world are subject to transfer fees determined freely by the market but not exceeding 1%, excluding any other special tax. Licensed intermediaries may effect transfers with the rest of the world through the BEAC. Within the CEMAC, transfers of funds are subject to transfer fees determined freely by the market and not exceeding 0.25%, excluding the VAT and any other special tax.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Licensing of exchange bureaus is the responsibility of the MOFs of the CEMAC member countries, after the consent of the CB. Their operations are limited to OTC transactions. Licensed intermediaries, who set their own exchange rates with their customers for currencies other than the euro, may freely conduct exchange transactions with their customers. Licensed intermediaries consisted of 25 exchange bureaus and 19 banks, as of December 31, 2021. The BEAC's OTC exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.	The BEAC's OTC exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries.
Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	Within the limits of available stocks, the BEAC's OTC exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries.

Allocation	No.
Auction	No.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	There are no restrictions on interbank foreign exchange transactions within the CEMAC. Exchange transactions are OTC transactions. The BEAC does not intervene in exchange transactions within the CEMAC. These transactions are freely conducted by operators licensed by the MOF with the approval of the Central African Banking Commission (COBAC). A fee of no more than 3% for CFA franc area notes and 5% for other currencies, not including the VAT and any other specific tax, is collected by licensed intermediaries on transactions in foreign banknotes and traveler's checks. This fee covers all charges on OTC transactions and the intermediation margin. All the 14 banks are allowed to participate in the interbank market. In principle, all licensed banks participate in the interbank market, but at different levels.
Over the counter	Yes.	Foreign exchange transactions are conducted on an OTC basis.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	No.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	There is no forward foreign exchange market in the CEMAC. Licensed intermediaries may enter into forward exchange contracts on presentation of supporting documentation (invoices, debt repayment schedules, or other foreign-currency-denominated debt instruments) and must report such activities to the BEAC. They are required to adhere to the limits of foreign holdings allowed by the Banking Commission.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	No.	Within the CEMAC, the CFA franc is used freely for payments and receipts relating to current and capital transactions and payments. Settlements with all countries other than CEMAC members must be made through correspondent banks in one of the currencies of the two parties or in any other currency agreed on by the two parties to the transaction.
For current transactions and payments	No.
For capital transactions	No.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	No.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	No.
Credit operations	No.
Use of foreign exchange among residents	Yes.	The monetary unit is the CFA franc, which is the sole official currency and legal tender in all CEMAC member countries.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

		Consequently, transactions among residents must be settled in domestic currency. However, the Central African Republic adopted a law on April 22, 2022, which governs cryptocurrency transactions in the country and considers Bitcoin as the reference currency.
Payments arrangements	Yes.
Bilateral payments arrangements	No.
Operative	No.
Inoperative	No.
Regional arrangements	Yes.	An operations account links all the countries with the French Treasury. All purchases and sales of foreign currencies and euros in exchange for CFA francs are ultimately settled by a debit or credit to the operations account. Governments may maintain foreign currency deposits related to oil reserves at commercial banks and use them to meet their external debt service obligations. Exchange regulations in the CEMAC member countries are harmonized.
Clearing agreements	No.
Barter agreements and open accounts	No.	There is no formal clearing agreement between any CEMAC country and other countries. Nor are there any regulatory provisions governing this mechanism. In practice, however, some countries may receive production or capital goods from abroad in exchange for financial flows.
Administration of control	Yes.	Administration of the foreign exchange regulations is the responsibility of the CB, which may delegate all or a portion of their authority to the MOF, the Banking Commission of Central Africa (COBAC), and licensed intermediaries. For example, authority is delegated to licensed intermediaries to carry out transactions with the rest of the world. They must verify the validity of transactions, collect statistics, and report these activities to the monetary authorities. However, certain types of transactions may not be delegated. The BEAC supervises the exchange regulations; evaluates foreign exchange hedging operations; reviews requests for approval of opening of foreign exchange accounts by some resident legal entities; and monitors the repatriation of export proceeds. The COBAC ensures that licensed intermediaries comply with certain provisions of these regulations, especially to prevent weakening of the CEMAC banking system.
Payments arrears	No.	Licensed intermediaries may freely execute their customers' payment orders. The related transfers may, at their request, be made through the BEAC. When banks execute payment order requests through their liquidity buffer, these requests do not come back to the BEAC, but are checked during on-site or off-site inspections. In this context, the MCA with France serves to guarantee the convertibility of the CFA franc. No payment arrears are allowed on the grounds that insufficient foreign exchange is available.
Official	No.
Private	No.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	No.	CEMAC residents are free to hold, purchase, and sell gold in any form within the CEMAC.
On external trade	Yes.	Except in the case of manufactured articles containing small quantities of gold, CEMAC gold imports and exports are subject to approval by the appropriate authorities. The national treasuries and the BEAC are exempt from this requirement.

Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.	Residents and nonresidents traveling from one country to another within the CEMAC may take with them an unlimited amount of CEMAC banknotes and coins.
On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	CFA francs issued by the BEAC may not be exported to countries outside the CEMAC. However, departing resident travelers may have in their possession up to CFAF 5 million. During their trips outside the CEMAC, travelers must use payment instruments other than BEAC banknotes (foreign currency, traveler's checks, bank drafts, transfers, etc.).
Foreign currency	Yes.	Resident and nonresident travelers crossing CEMAC borders must, on exit, declare any foreign currency, securities, or instruments valued at more than CFAF 5 million to the customs authorities. Nonresident travelers leaving the CEMAC may take with them foreign currency valued at up to the amount they declared on entering the CEMAC. If they made no declaration on entry or if they are carrying sums exceeding those they brought into the CEMAC, they must explain the source of the amount in excess of CFAF 5 million. Supporting documents include pay slips and work permits (wage income), student cards (parental assistance for students and trainees), and notarized instruments (donations), among others.
On imports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	CFA francs issued by the BEAC may not be imported from countries outside the CEMAC. However, arriving resident travelers may have in their possession up to CFAF 5 million.
Foreign currency	No.	Resident and nonresident travelers crossing CEMAC borders must, on entry, declare foreign currency, securities, or instruments valued at more than CFAF 5 million to the customs authorities.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Held domestically	Yes.	Residents may not open foreign exchange accounts in local banks. However, the BEAC may allow certain resident legal entities to open foreign exchange accounts. These accounts may not be credited with CFA francs or with debits from CFA franc accounts.
Approval required	Yes.	The BEAC may allow resident legal entities to open foreign exchange accounts. These accounts may not be credited with CFA francs or with debits from CFA franc accounts. The authorization to open bank accounts in foreign currency is granted by the BEAC. Generally, the BEAC's approval is given when the entity in question cannot easily carry out all its operations with accounts in CFA francs only or when a financial arrangement following an external financial contribution requires the opening of foreign currency accounts.
Held abroad	Yes.	Resident legal entities, except credit institutions, are prohibited from opening foreign currency bank accounts outside the CEMAC in accordance with Regulation No. 02/18/CEMAC/UMAC/CM of December 21, 2018. However, the BEAC may allow a resident legal entity to open a foreign currency account outside the CEMAC in accordance with the terms and conditions set out in a BEAC directive on June 10, 2019. In general, when resident entities borrow abroad and the lenders require foreign currency accounts to be established, these are authorized by the BEAC. In addition, companies in the extractive sector benefit from a special provision allowing them to hold foreign currency accounts abroad as part of their ordinary operations.

Approval required	Yes.	The BEAC may allow a resident legal entity to open a foreign currency account outside the CEMAC in accordance with the terms and conditions set out in a BEAC directive issued in June 2019.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	Yes.	Accounts in domestic currency held abroad are permitted.
Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	No.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	There are no restrictions on the opening of nonresident foreign exchange accounts within the CEMAC. Licensed intermediaries may open such accounts for any nonresident, on request, provided they inform the monetary authorities. Such accounts may not be overdrawn. On account closure (for example, for loss of nonresident status) the account balance must be transferred to a resident account in CFAF.
Approval required	No.
Domestic currency accounts	Yes.	There are no restrictions on the opening of nonresident CFA franc accounts within the CEMAC. Licensed intermediaries may open such accounts for nonresidents, on request, provided they inform the monetary authorities. Such accounts may not be overdrawn.
Convertible into foreign currency	No.
Approval required	No.
Blocked accounts	No.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget	No.	The exchange regulations do not limit access to foreign exchange. Payments for imports must be made regularly through licensed intermediaries.
Financing requirements for imports	No.	Economic agents may freely enter into commercial contracts with their partners abroad. These contracts are executed through the banking system, subject to compliance with the exchange regulations.
Minimum financing requirements	No.	There are no financing requirements.
Advance payment requirements	No.
Advance import deposits	No.
Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports	Yes.	For import payments of less than CFAF 100 million, the licensed intermediary must obtain a pro forma or original invoice, a bill of lading, or the commercial contract, along with the most recent tax receipt or a professional license. Payments of more than CFAF 100 million must be settled through a licensed intermediary, which must check the supporting documents.
Domiciliation requirements	Yes.	Imports valued at more than CFAF 5 million must be domiciled with a resident licensed intermediary.
Preshipment inspection	Yes.	There are no specific provisions for inspections at the CEMAC level. The member countries may freely apply their own regulations in this regard. In Cameroon, imports with an f.o.b. value exceeding the equivalent of CFAF 2 million are subject to inspection by the Société Générale de Surveillance.

Letters of credit	No.	The use of LCs by economic agents for the settlement of transactions is allowed but optional.
Import licenses used as exchange licenses	No.	Import licenses are not used in the CEMAC countries to restrict the availability of foreign exchange for legitimate trade, as defined in the Compilation Guide. When such licenses exist, they are used for trade policy purposes.
Other	Yes.	For import payments of less than CFAF 100 million, the licensed intermediary must obtain a pro forma or original invoice, a bill of lading, or the commercial contract, along with the most recent tax receipt or a professional license (registration number, professional ID card, extract from the commercial registry, or tax clearance). Payments of more than CFAF 100 million must be settled through a licensed intermediary, which must check the supporting documents. Legal entities and certified professionals can no longer use annual estimates of imports and must produce all supporting documents to carry out transactions.
Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.	In general, CEMAC countries no longer use quantitative restrictions as a means of protecting local production. Merchandise originating from all countries may be freely imported, with the exception of gold, to which special regulations apply. In Cameroon, importers are required to file an import declaration with the Société Générale de Surveillance when the value of the imported goods exceeds the equivalent of CFAF 5 million. The import of certain goods on the list issued by the Ministry of Industrial and Commercial Development (MINDIC) each year requires licenses.
Positive list	No.
Negative list	Yes.	Imports of some products may be prohibited, restricted, or require national authorization for humanitarian, security, or health reasons.
Open general licenses	Yes.	There is no system of OGLs at the CEMAC level. However, in Cameroon this system applies mainly to long-term supply contracts. In addition, imports are subject to declaration.
Licenses with quotas	Yes.	In Cameroon, quotas apply to container imports.
Other nontariff measures	No.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	The CEMAC CET applies to imports from non-CEMAC countries, at four rates: 5% for staple goods, 10% for raw materials and capital goods, 20% for intermediate goods, and 30% for consumer goods. The taxes are imposed by the national customs administration in CFA francs at the merchandise point of entry.
Taxes collected through the exchange system	Yes.	Licensed intermediaries are responsible for withholding all taxes and related fees established by law and surrendering them to the monetary authority.
State import monopoly	No.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Export-related transactions must be reported to the appropriate administrative authorities, and all those exceeding CFAF 5 million must be domiciled at a licensed CEMAC bank. Export proceeds originating in non-CEMAC countries must be collected and repatriated immediately, through the domiciling bank, with the BEAC acting as intermediary.
Surrender requirements	Yes.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Export proceeds collected in foreign currencies must be surrendered to the BEAC within 3 days of collection.
Surrender to authorized dealers	No.
Financing requirements	No.	Economic agents and their partners abroad may enter freely into commercial contracts, which are executed through the banking system, subject to compliance with the exchange regulations. There are no financing requirements.
Documentation requirements	Yes.	Transactions related to exports to non-CEMAC countries valued at more than CFAF 5 million must be domiciled with a local licensed bank. Each domiciliation file must contain an export contract, a foreign exchange declaration under which the exporter agrees to repatriate all export earnings immediately after collection, and a customs export certificate duly signed by a customs officer.
Letters of credit	No.	The use of LCs by economic agents for the settlement of transactions is allowed but optional.
Guarantees	No.	No guarantees are required. However, export companies applying for VAT refund should submit proof of repatriation of export earnings signed by the MOF.
Domiciliation	Yes.	Transactions related to exports to non-CEMAC countries valued at more than CFAF 5 million must be domiciled with a local licensed bank.
Preshipment inspection	Yes.	There are no specific provisions for inspections at the CEMAC level. The member countries may freely apply their own regulations in this regard. In Cameroon, exports, whatever their destination, are subject to Société Générale de Surveillance inspection.
Other	Yes.	In Cameroon, a health certificate is required prior to shipment for exports of fresh foods (such as fruits and vegetables).
Export licenses	No.
Without quotas	No.
With quotas	No.
Export taxes	Yes.	Export taxes established by the budget laws are levied by the Customs Directorate or via licensed intermediaries.
Collected through the exchange system	Yes.	Licensed intermediaries are responsible for withholding all taxes and fees established in the law and surrendering them to the monetary authority.
Other export taxes	Yes.	In Cameroon, a tax of 17.5% is levied on exports of lumber; the rate applicable to exports of semi-worked wood is 12.5%.

Payments for Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Controls on these transfers	Yes.
Trade-related payments	Yes.	There are no exchange restrictions on service-related transactions. Payments for such transactions are subject to the same requirements as the underlying commercial transactions.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	All service-related expenditures must be declared, and amounts exceeding CFAF 5 million must also be domiciled with a resident licensed intermediary. Supporting documents must be provided, and amounts exceeding CFAF 100 million must be declared to BEAC and the MOF.
Investment-related payments	Yes.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	There are no restrictions on transfers of capital income outside the CEMAC in the form of profits, dividends, interest, royalties, etc., payable to nonresidents, provided the underlying transaction was authorized or is not subject to authorization. Supporting documents on the decision to distribute income (profits and dividends), the repayment schedule, and the debt security involved (loans contracted and granted) must be provided. Transactions in excess of CFAF 5 million must be domiciled with CEMAC credit institutions. Other current transactions, as well as financial and capital operations in excess of CFAF 100 million, must be declared to BEAC and the MOF.
Payments for travel	Yes.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Indicative limits are established for OTC foreign exchange allocations to residents traveling outside the CEMAC. A single indicative threshold of CFAF 5 million is set for all travels. However, all substantiated requests must be granted, regardless of the amount. Licensed intermediaries must serve their customers' foreign currency needs, to the extent that funds are available to them, and check supporting documentation, including, as applicable, a valid travel document and ticket, a mission order, a health evacuation authorization, or a certificate of registration at a school or university, and report to the appropriate authorities.
Personal payments	Yes.	Transfers are unrestricted, on submission of supporting documentation.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	A single indicative limit of CFAF 5 million is established for OTC foreign exchange allocations to residents traveling outside the CEMAC. Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	The use of credit cards is considered equivalent to a transfer and is not subject to specific regulations in the context of invisible transactions and current transfers. Residents may use credit cards within the CEMAC and abroad.
Other payments	Yes.	These are treated the same as trade-related payments.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	All service-related expenditures must be declared, and amounts exceeding CFAF 5 million must also be domiciled with a resident licensed intermediary. Supporting documents must be provided. Amounts exceeding CFAF 100 million must be declared to BEAC and the MOF.

Proceeds from Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Amounts owed by nonresidents for services and all income from foreign assets earned outside the CEMAC must be collected through a licensed bank and repatriated immediately.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Amounts collected in foreign currency must be surrendered to the BEAC within 3 days of receipt.
Surrender to authorized dealers	No.
Restrictions on use of funds	No.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions	Yes.	The exchange regulations, including the section on capital flows within the CEMAC, do not apply to transactions between CEMAC member countries. There are no restrictions on most capital flows between CEMAC and non-CEMAC countries, provided they comply with the laws and regulations prohibiting drug financing and trafficking. Certain loans, direct investments, and the issuance, advertisement, and sale of foreign securities within the CEMAC are subject to administrative controls and require approval from the appropriate authorities. Controls on these transactions are applied indiscriminately to countries in the CFA franc area, other than CEMAC member countries, and all non-CFA franc area countries. Moreover, Article 61 of the General Regulations of the Central African Financial Market Supervisory Commission (COSUMAF), which went into effect January 15, 2009, specifies that "when a nonresident legal entity plans a public offering on the Central African regional financial market, it must prepare a disclosure document and submit it to COSUMAF for approval prior to dissemination. The prior approval of the CB must also be obtained." The article also states that "the issuer must appoint a correspondent (securities dealer) established in a CEMAC member state, where it elects domicile. This correspondent must be responsible for: (1) receiving correspondence from COSUMAF and (2) forwarding to COSUMAF all documents and information required under the laws and regulations or requested by COSUMAF."

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	In the context of the centralization of foreign exchange reserves, foreign currency collected from capital transactions must be repatriated, immediately after collection.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Amounts collected in foreign currencies must be surrendered to the BEAC no later than 3 days after receipt.
Surrender to authorized dealers	No.
Controls on capital and money market instruments	Yes.
On capital market securities	Yes.	The issuance, advertisement, and sale of foreign securities (shares and bonds issued by foreign enterprises) whose value exceeds CFAF 50 million are subject to CB approval. Under CEMAC exchange regulations, transactions in capital market securities are treated in the same way as simple borrowing and lending operations, as opposed to direct investments, when the shares or equity held by the individual or legal entity represent less than 10% of the enterprise's total equity. Borrowing and lending are not regulated by type of instrument or maturity.
Shares or other securities of a participating nature	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Banks may verify and make payment for purchases of securities by nonresidents. Transactions must be reported 30 days before the transaction when the transaction is less than CFAF 20 million. Above this amount, the transaction is subject to prior CB approval. There is no minimum (or maximum) holding period for securities.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance, advertisement, and sale of securities within the CEMAC are subject to CB approval when the amount involved exceeds CFAF 50 million. There is no minimum (or maximum) holding period for securities.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	Banks may verify and make payment for purchases of securities abroad by residents. Transactions must be declared 30 days before the transaction when the amount is less than CFAF 20 million. Above this amount, it requires prior CB approval.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	Banks may verify and make payment abroad for the sale or issuance of securities by residents. Transactions must be reported within 30 days. Prior approval by the Banking Commission is required on all occasions.
Bonds or other debt securities	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Banks may verify and make payment for purchases of securities by nonresidents. Transactions must be reported within 30 days.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance, advertisement, and sale of securities within the CEMAC are subject to CB approval when the amount involved exceeds CFAF 50 million.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	Banks may verify and make payment for purchases of securities by residents. Transactions must be declared 30 days before when the transaction is no more than CFAF 20 million. Above this amount, prior CB approval is required.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	Banks may verify and make payment abroad for the sale or issuance of securities by residents. Transactions must be reported within 30 days.
On money market instruments	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Banks may verify and make payment for purchases of securities by nonresidents. Transactions must be declared 30 days before when the transaction is less than CFAF 20 million. Above that amount, prior

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance, advertisement, and sale of money market instruments within the CEMAC are subject to CB approval when the amount involved exceeds CFAF 50 million.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	Banks may verify and make payment abroad for purchases of money market instruments by residents. Transactions must be declared to the CB 30 days before if the transaction is less than CFAF 20 million. Above that amount, prior CB approval is required.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	Banks may verify and make payment abroad for the sale or issuance of securities by residents. Transactions must be declared to the CB 30 days before if the transaction is less than CFAF 20 million. Above this amount, the prior CB approval is required.
On collective investment securities	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Banks may verify and make payment for purchases of securities by nonresidents. Transactions must be reported within 30 days.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance, advertisement, and sale of securities within the CEMAC are subject to CB approval when the amount involved exceeds CFAF 50 million. Transactions must be reported to the BEAC within 30 days.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	Banks may verify and make payment for purchases of securities abroad by residents. Transactions must be declared to the CB 30 days before when the transaction is less than CFAF 20 million. Above that amount, prior CB approval is required. Moreover, the provisions of Article 255 of the COSUMAF General Regulations specify that "the regulations governing the management of a collective investment fund and the articles of incorporation of an open-ended investment company may, subject to COSUMAF prior approval, allow purchases and sales of securities on markets outside the CEMAC."
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	Banks may verify and make payment abroad for the sale or issuance of securities by residents. Transactions must be reported within 30 days. Moreover, the provisions of Article 255 of the COSUMAF General Regulations specify that "the regulations governing the management of a collective investment fund and the articles of incorporation of an open-ended investment company may, subject to COSUMAF prior approval, allow purchases and sales of securities on markets outside the CEMAC."
Controls on derivatives and other instruments	No.	These instruments are not regulated.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	There is no derivatives market in the CEMAC.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	No.	There is no derivatives market in the CEMAC.
Purchase abroad by residents	No.	Licensed banks are free to deal in derivatives, subject to compliance with the prudential rules issued by the Banking Commission, which is responsible for supervision of the banking system.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	There is no derivatives market in the CEMAC.
Controls on credit operations	Yes.	There are no specific regulations on borrowing and lending by instrument type or by maturity.
Commercial credits	Yes.	Borrowing directly related to the financing of commercial transactions and borrowing and lending contracted or granted by resident licensed banks are unrestricted and must be reported to the appropriate MOF and BEAC departments within 30 days of each transaction.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Banks may verify and then execute commercial credits granted to nonresidents. The repayment of borrowing and lending subject to such approval must also be reported within 30 days of the transaction. Supporting documents for such borrowing and lending include the repayment schedule and a copy of the debt security.

To residents from nonresidents	No.	Only banks are authorized to verify and then execute commercial credits received by residents, which they must declare to the appropriate MOF and BEAC departments within 30 days of each transaction.
Financial credits	Yes.	Loans contracted or granted by resident licensed banks and loans constituting FDI, which are already being authorized, are unrestricted and must be reported to the appropriate MOF and BEAC departments within 30 days of each transaction. Banks may verify and execute borrowing and lending transactions for their customers, as well as their repayment. The repayment of borrowing and lending subject to such approval must also be reported within 30 days of the transaction. Supporting documents for such borrowing and lending include the repayment schedule and a copy of the debt security.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Loans contracted or granted by resident licensed banks and loans constituting FDI, which are already being authorized, are unrestricted and must be reported to the appropriate MOF and BEAC departments within 30 days of each transaction. Banks may verify and execute borrowing and lending transactions for their customers, as well as their repayment. The repayment of borrowing and lending subject to such approval must also be reported within 30 days of the transaction. Supporting documents for such borrowing and lending include the repayment schedule and a copy of the debt security.

In banks by nonresidents	No.
Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.	The monitoring and control of the foreign exchange positions of local banks are described in COBAC Regulation No. R-2003/02 on the Supervision of Foreign Exchange Positions.
On resident assets and liabilities	Yes.	The monitoring and control of the foreign exchange positions of local banks are described in COBAC Regulation No. R-2003/02 on the Supervision of Foreign Exchange Positions. This regulation sets out two requirements: The net open, short or long, weighted-foreign exchange positions in each currency may not exceed 15% of a credit institution's own funds; the sum of the net short weighted positions or the sum of the net long weighted positions, whichever is the greater, may not exceed 45% of a credit institution's own funds.
On nonresident assets and liabilities	No.
Provisions specific to institutional investors	Yes.	In the exchange regulations, the applicable provisions are the same as those for borrowing and lending by the private sector.
Insurance companies	Yes.	Insurance companies' capital transactions must be reported within 30 days to the MOF and the BEAC. Transactions exceeding CFAF 100 million are subject to approval by the appropriate authorities. The business and accounting regulations for the insurance sector are based on the Code of the Inter-African Conference on Insurance Markets (CIMA Code) of the CFA franc area member countries.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	No.	No restrictions as reported in the latest IMF staff report as of December 31, 2022.
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	Yes.	Canada imposes sanctions, which may include exchange restrictions and restrictions on payments and transfers for current international transactions, import and export prohibitions, and sectoral prohibitions, for the preservation of national or international security against the following: (1) under the Special Economic Measures Act (SEMA): the Democratic People's Republic of Korea (DPRK), the Islamic Republic of Iran, Myanmar, Nicaragua, Russia, South Sudan, Syria, Ukraine, Venezuela, and Zimbabwe; (2) under the UN Act (UN Act), to implement UNSC decisions, pursuant to Articles 25 and 103 of the Charter of the UN, with respect to Al-Qaida and the Taliban, the Central African Republic, the Democratic Republic of the Congo, Iran, Iraq, DPRK, Lebanon, Libya, Mali, Somalia, South Sudan, Sudan, and Yemen. Sanctions under the UN Act also affect certain individuals and entities in connection with terrorist activities under the Regulations Implementing the UNs Resolutions on the Suppression of Terrorism; and (3) on June 20, 2018, the Justice for Victims of Corrupt Foreign Officials Act (Sergei Magnitsky Law) (S.C. 2017, c. 21) was established and authorizes the government to place controls on the movement of currency to individuals suspected of contributing to acts of significant corruption and/or gross human rights violations. Foreign nationals from Lebanon, Myanmar, Russia, Saudi Arabia, South Sudan, and Venezuela are currently listed pursuant to this Act. Canada may also implement exchange restrictions and restrictions on payments and transfers for current international transactions under other mechanisms, including the Criminal Officials Act, against specific individuals, groups, and entities but not against entire jurisdictions or economic sectors in Tunisia and Ukraine. The Regulations Amending the Justice for Victims of Corrupt Foreign Officials Regulations (SOR/2018-259) have amended the Justice for Victims of Corrupt Foreign Officials Regulations (SOR/2017-233) to include 17 foreign nationals from Saudi Arabia, who, in the opinion of the Governor in Council, are responsible for or complicit in gross violations of internationally recognized human rights, particularly the torture and extrajudicial killing of Saudi journalist Jamal Khashoggi. These individuals were listed pursuant to the Justice for Victims of Corrupt Foreign Officials Act (S.C. 2017, c. 21).
Other security restrictions	Yes.	Canada may also implement exchange restrictions and restrictions on payments and transfers for current international transactions under other mechanisms, including the Criminal Code and the Freezing Assets of Corrupt Foreign Officials Act, against specific individuals, groups, and entities but not against entire jurisdictions or economic sectors in Egypt, Tunisia, and Ukraine. Canada imposes sanctions, which may include exchange restrictions and restrictions on payments and transfers for current international transactions, import and export prohibitions, and sectoral prohibitions, for the preservation of national or international security against the following under the SEMA: Belarus, Haiti (effective November 3, 2022), Moldova (effective May 30, 2023), the People's Republic of China, and Sri Lanka (effective January 6, 2023).

Free floating	Yes.	The de jure and de facto exchange rate arrangements are classified as free floating, with the exchange rate of the Canadian dollar determined by supply and demand. However, under an intervention policy established by the government in close consultation with the Bank of Canada (BOC), the BOC may intervene in the foreign exchange market on behalf of the government. The current policy is to intervene on a discretionary, rather than systematic, basis and only in exceptional circumstances. The last time the BOC intervened was as part of the concerted intervention with authorities in Europe, Japan, the United Kingdom, and the United States to counter an excessively strong yen following the March 2011 earthquake in Japan. Previously, the BOC intervened in September 1998 to influence movements in the Canadian dollar. Interventions are announced on the BOC's website, and the amount of intervention is published in the government's monthly official press release on international reserves.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

		The amount of any BOC intervention in foreign currency markets is published in the monthly release of the government's official international reserves. This release is generally published three business days after month end.
Official exchange rate	Yes.	The BOC publishes on its website the exchange rate for 26 currencies vis-à-vis the Canadian dollar. The foreign exchange rates are published once a day, at 16:30 ET (Eastern Time), in the form of a single indicative rate for each currency pair that is based on an average of rates observed during the business day. They may differ from the rates of financial institutions and other market sources. The BOC exchange rates are released for informational purposes only and are not intended to be used as the benchmark rate for executing foreign exchange trades. The BOC does not guarantee the accuracy or completeness of these rates.

Government and Central Bank	Yes.	The inflation target is set jointly by the BOC and the federal government. The BOC and the government have renewed the inflation-control target framework seven times since its adoption in 1991—most recently on December 13, 2021, for five years, effective January 1, 2022. The target aims to keep the total CPI inflation at the 2% midpoint of a medium-term target range of 1%–3%. The BOC raises or lowers its policy interest rate to achieve the target, typically within six to eight quarters—the time usually needed for policy action to work its way through the economy and have its full effect on inflation. Decisions are made on a consensus basis.

Target measure	Yes.
CPI	Yes.	The inflation target is expressed as the year-over-year (y-o-y) increase in the total CPI. The bank also monitors a set of "core" inflation measures. The BOC's preferred core inflation measures are CPI-trim and CPI-median. CPI-trim (trimmed mean): a measure of core inflation that excludes CPI components whose rates of change in a given month are located in the tails of the distribution of price changes. CPI-median (weighted median): a measure of core inflation corresponding to the price change located at the 50th percentile (in terms of CPI basket weights) of the distribution of price changes in a given month. CPI-common was dropped as a preferred measure effective October 26, 2022. CPI is published by Statistics Canada.

Policy rate	Yes.	The BOC raises or lowers its policy interest rate (overnight rate) to achieve the inflation target, typically within six to eight quarters—the time usually needed for policy action to work its way through the economy and have its full effect on inflation.
Target corridor band	Yes.	The BOC operates a system to make sure that trading in the overnight market stays within the operating band. Before 2020, the band was generally one-half of a percentage point wide and had the target for the overnight rate at its center. For example, if the target rate is 2.50%, the operating band would be 2.25% to 2.75%. The upper band (2.75%) is the bank rate – the interest rate that the Bank charges on one-day loans to the large value transfer system. The lower bound of the band (2.25%) is the deposit rate – the interest rate that the Bank pays on any surplus funds that participating institutions leave on deposit at the Bank overnight. The range is one-quarter of a percentage point wide, with the deposit rate equal to the target rate.

Negative list	Yes.	Import permits are required (under various laws) for a broad range of items, including certain endangered species of flora and fauna, natural gas, material and equipment for the production or use of nuclear energy, and certain internationally controlled drugs. Under Canada's Export and Import Permits Act, import permits are also required for products that are included on the Import Control List, including certain small arms, large-caliber armaments or weapons, military products, chemicals, and a number of other textiles and apparel, agricultural, and metal products. In addition, Health Canada does not permit the process of importing of unregistered drugs. Imports of used motor vehicles (less than 15 years old) are generally prohibited for reasons of safety and environmental standards. Exceptions are generally available for vehicles imported from the United States and Mexico. Some regulations on Canadian economic sanctions include import restrictions. Imports prohibited under UN Act regulations require a certificate from the Minister of Foreign Affairs and, if required by the regulation in question, approval from the UNSC. Imports prohibited under SEMA regulations require a permit from the Minister of Foreign Affairs under the related Permit Authorization Order.
Open general licenses	Yes.
Licenses with quotas	No.
Other nontariff measures	Yes.	Measures consistent with international trade obligations are in effect. Measures are imposed, taking into consideration competition policy factors and other economic costs, as appropriate.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	On average, import tariffs are low. Canada's trade-weighted average tariff rate for all goods, including agricultural goods, has been less than 1% since 1998, largely as a result of duty-free access for imports from the US under preferential trade terms. Canada actively seeks to liberalize trade through bilateral and regional FTAs and currently has FTAs in place with its North American trade partners (Canada–US–Mexico Agreement), the EU, the UK, the Asia-Pacific region (Comprehensive and Progressive Agreement for Trans-Pacific Partnership (CPTPP) currently implemented between Canada, Australia, Japan, Mexico, New Zealand, Singapore, Vietnam, and Peru), South Korea, Chile, Colombia, Costa Rica, Honduras, Panama, the EFTA countries, Ukraine, Israel, and Jordan. Canada is also engaged in ongoing negotiations with the MERCOSUR trade bloc (Argentina, Brazil, Paraguay, and Uruguay), the UK's accession to the CPTPP, and negotiations recently launched with Indonesia. Canada maintains three unilateral tariff preference programs (General Preferential Tariff, Least Developed Country Tariff, and Commonwealth Caribbean Countries Tariff) providing additional preferential access for most goods from developing countries. Canada also continues to unilaterally reduce its MFN tariffs applicable to all members of the WTO. Since 2009, Canada has eliminated more than 2,470 MFN tariffs, including on both imported machinery and equipment and industrial manufacturing inputs (making Canada a tariff-free zone for industrial manufacturers), and a broad range of goods used as agri-food processing ingredients. The highest MFN tariffs apply to a limited number of over-quota, supply-managed agricultural goods (dairy, poultry, and eggs). Canada's other sectors with higher-than-average MFN tariffs include textile products and apparel, footwear, and ships. In 2020, Canada implemented two unscheduled temporary changes to its tariff regime in response to the COVID-19 pandemic. The Goods for Emergency Use Remission Order expired effective May 7, 2022. Previously, imported goods for emergency medical use by public health bodies (for example, hospitals) and first responders were eligible for relief from tariffs and sales taxes. Relief extended to emergency goods imported for use at public and private care residences, such as seniors' residences, retirement homes, nursing homes, and shelters. The Certain Goods Remission Order (COVID-19) expired effective April 7, 2022. Previously, imports of certain medical supplies, including personal protective equipment, were eligible for tariff relief. These include diagnostic test kits, face and eye protection, gloves, protective garments, disinfectants/sterilization products, medical devices, thermometers, wipes, and medical consumables. Relief was available to all importers such as businesses, distributors, and individual Canadians.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

This list includes all items identified in the various international export control regimes in which Canada participates. In addition, certain items are controlled to ensure the orderly export marketing of certain products subject to import limitations by other countries, to implement bilateral agreements, to ensure adequate supply and distribution, and for nonproliferation purposes (that is, chemical, biological, and nuclear weapons and their delivery systems). The Automatic Firearms

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

		Country Control List is a positive list of destinations to which Canadians may apply for permits to export prohibited firearms, weapons, or devices (as defined in the Criminal Code). The export of these prohibited items to countries that are not listed on the Automatic Firearms Country Control List is not allowed. The Area Control List includes countries to which the exports of all items are controlled. At present, only North Korea is on this list. Permits are required for the process of exporting of controlled goods and technologies to all countries except, in most cases, the United States, as well as for the export of all items destined for countries on the Area Control List. Acts and Regulations on Canadian economic sanctions contain export restrictions, excluding the Freezing Assets of Corrupt Foreign Officials Act. Exports prohibited under UN Act regulations require a certificate from the Minister of Foreign Affairs and, if required by the regulation in question, approval from the UNSC. Exports prohibited under SEMA regulations require a permit from the Minister of Foreign Affairs under the related Permit Authorization Order.

The Special Economic Measures (Ukraine) Regulations (SOR/2014-60) prohibit persons in Canada and Canadians abroad from making an investment in the Crimea region of Ukraine that involves a dealing in any property located in the Crimea region of Ukraine that is held by or on behalf of the Crimea region of Ukraine or a person in the Crimea region of Ukraine. SOR/2014-60 was amended June 29, 2015, to prohibit persons in Canada and Canadians abroad from making an investment in the Crimea region of Ukraine that involves a dealing in any property located in the Crimea region of Ukraine. Effective February 24, 2022, these Regulations were amended to prohibit persons in Canada and Canadians abroad from making an investment that involves a dealing in any property located in the Donetsk People's Republic and/or Luhansk People's Republic regions of Ukraine that is owned, held, or controlled by the Donetsk People's Republic and/or Luhansk People's Republic regions of Ukraine or a person in the Donetsk People's Republic and/or Luhansk People's Republic regions of Ukraine, or a person acting on behalf of or at the direction of the Donetsk People's Republic and/or Luhansk People's Republic regions of Ukraine or a person in the Donetsk People's Republic and/or Luhansk People's Republic regions of Ukraine. The Minister of Foreign Affairs may exempt any prohibited action by the issuance of a permit under the Special Economic Measures (Ukraine) Permit Authorization Order. In addition to the limitations on debt and equity financing, the Special Economic Measures (Russia) Regulations (SOR/2014-58) place limitations on the provision of financial services associated with property and oil exploration. The Special Economic Measures (Iran) Regulations (SOR/2010-165) were amended February 5, 2016. Persons in Canada and Canadians abroad are prohibited from dealing in property, entering into transactions, or providing financial or related services to persons listed in Schedule 1 of the Regulations or to a person acting for the benefit of a listed person. The broad prohibition against financial services was lifted following the February 5, 2016, amendments. The Minister of Foreign Affairs may exempt any prohibited action by the issuance of a permit under the Special Economic Measures (Iran) Permit Authorization Order. The Special Economic Measures (Syria) Regulations (SOR/2011-114) prohibit persons in Canada and Canadians abroad from investing in Syria if the investment involves property, wherever located, held by or on behalf of Syria, a person in Syria, or a Syrian who does not ordinarily reside in Canada. Persons in Canada and Canadians abroad are also prohibited from providing or acquiring financial or other related services to, from, or for the benefit of or at the direction or order of Syria or any person in Syria for the purpose of such an investment. The Minister of Foreign Affairs may exempt any prohibited action by the issuance of a permit under the Special Economic Measures (Syria) Permit Authorization Order. The Special Economic Measures (DPRK) Regulations (SOR/2011-167) prohibit persons in Canada and Canadians abroad from investing in any entity in the DPRK that involves dealing in property, wherever located, held by or on behalf of the DPRK, any person in the DPRK, or a DPRK national who does not ordinarily reside in Canada. The regulations also prohibit the provision or acquisition of financial services—including those that are intended to facilitate an investment in any entity—to, from, or for the benefit of or at the direction or order of the DPRK or persons in the DPRK. Provision of such financial services requires a permit from the Minister of Foreign Affairs under the Special Economic Measures (DPRK) Permit Authorization Order.

Inward direct investment	Yes.	There are controls on direct investment by nonresidents in (1) activities related to Canada's cultural heritage and national identity, in particular (a) publication, distribution, and sale of books, magazines, periodicals, and newspapers in print or machine readable form, but not including solely printing or typesetting any of the above; (b) production, distribution, sale, and exhibition of film and video recordings; (c) production, distribution, sale, and exhibition of audio and video music recordings; (d) publication, distribution, and sale of music in print or machine readable form; and (e) radio communication intended for direct reception by the general public; radio, television, and cable broadcasting companies; and satellite programming and broadcast network services; (2) air transport—foreign ownership of Canadian common carriers is limited to 49% and no more than 25% of the voting interests can be owned directly or indirectly by any single non-Canadian and no more than 25% of the voting interests can be owned by one or more non-Canadians authorized to provide air services in any jurisdiction, and only Canadians (as defined in the Canada Transportation Act) may register an aircraft as Canadian and obtain an operator certificate for the following commercial air services: (a) domestic air services; (b) scheduled international air services reserved for Canadian carriers under air services agreements; (c) nonscheduled international air services reserved for Canadian carriers under the Canada Transportation Act; and (d) specialty air services; (3) maritime transport; (4) telecommunications—foreign investment in a facilities-based telecommunications service supplier is restricted to 20% direct investment and 33.3% indirect investment. Restrictions do not apply to satellite and sub-sea facilities and do not apply to providers with less than a 10% revenue share of the telecommunications market; (5) uranium—51% minimum Canadian ownership requirement in individual uranium mining properties at the first stage of production unless the project is controlled by Canadian nationals, as defined in the Investment Canada Act (ICA); the Cabinet may grant exemptions if Canadian partners cannot be found; and (6) fish harvesting. Under the ICA, significant acquisitions of control of Canadian businesses by non-Canadian investors are subject to net benefit review. The thresholds for direct acquisitions of control by WTO members and trade agreement partners are adjusted annually by a formula to reflect changes in nominal GDP. The new thresholds become effective January first of each year. Effective January 1, 2023, the review thresholds are: Can$1.287 billion (previously, effective January 1, 2022, increased to Can$1.141 billion from Can$1.043 billion) in enterprise value for private sector WTO investments, Can$1.931 billion (previously, effective January 1, 2022, increased to Can$1.711 billion from Can$1.565 billion) in enterprise value for private sector trade agreement investments, and Can$512 million (previously, effective January 1, 2022, increased to Can$454 million from Can$415 million) for state-owned enterprise (SOE) WTO investments. The trade agreements that offer this private sector trade agreement investment threshold are: the Canada-United Kingdom Trade Continuity Agreement, the CPTPP, Canada-EU Comprehensive Economic and Trade Agreement, Canada-United States-Mexico Agreement, Canada-Chile FTA, Canada-Peru FTA, Canada-Colombia FTA, Canada-Panama FTA, Canada-Honduras FTA, Canada-Korea FTA. The review threshold for non-WTO investments is Can$5 million for direct acquisitions and Can$50 million for indirect acquisitions. For all non-Canadian investors, acquisitions of Canadian cultural businesses are also reviewable at these thresholds (that is, Can$5 million and Can$50 million), except for (1) (e) of the paragraph above, for which non-cultural business thresholds apply. Under the guidelines on the acquisition of control of major investments in Canada by SOEs, the governance and commercial orientation of SOEs are examined as part of the net benefit review of those investments. In addition, in December 2012, the government issued a policy that SOE applications for the control of a Canadian oil-sands business will be approved only in an "exceptional circumstance." An SOE includes entities influenced directly or indirectly by a foreign government. A direct acquisition occurs when a non-Canadian directly acquires a Canadian business. An indirect acquisition occurs when a non-Canadian acquires a business outside Canada and that business has a subsidiary in Canada. Decisions to allow an investment are based on "likely net benefit" to Canada. The net benefit factors are set out in Section 20 of the ICA. Decisions regarding investments by non-Canadians into non-cultural industries are made by the Minister of Innovation, Science and Industry. The Minister of Canadian Heritage makes decisions on investments related to cultural businesses. A list of cultural businesses is given in Schedule IV of the Investment Canada Regulations. Ministers have 45 days to make a decision on a reviewable investment. The review period may be extended by 30 days, and beyond only with the agreement of the Minister and the investor. Investments by non-Canadians in the cultural sector (below threshold value acquisitions and establishments of new Canadian businesses) that are only subject to a notification under the Act may be subject to a review if the Governor General in Council orders it, based on the belief that it is in the public interest to do so and the investment is related to Canada's national identity and cultural heritage. On April 18, 2020, the government issued a Policy Statement on Foreign Investment Review and COVID-19, which states that the government will apply enhanced scrutiny to investments in businesses related to public health or supply of critical goods and services, as well as by state-owned investors or private investors assessed as being closely tied to the state. Foreign investments of any size are reviewable for national security. Guidelines on the National Security Review of Investments of March 2021, supportive of continued transparency in the review process, address national security concerns relating to investments involving potentially sensitive technologies, sensitive personal data, and the security of critical mineral supply chains. The Regulations implementing the UN Resolutions on Iran (SOR/2007-44) prohibit financial or related services or the facilitation of any transaction related to uranium mining in Canada, or to the production or the use of nuclear materials and technologies listed in Information Circular INFCIRC/254/Rev. Effective March 8, 2022, the government issued a Policy Statement on Foreign Investment Review and the Ukraine Crisis, indicating that investments with ties to Russia will support a finding by the Minister that there are reasonable grounds to believe that the investments could be injurious to Canada's national security, and that acquisitions of control by Russian investors will be found to be of net benefit to Canada on an exceptional basis only. Effective August 2, 2022, a voluntary filing mechanism is available to allow certain non-Canadian investors (for example, minority investors) to get certainty under the ICA, as well as to extend the time for national security review for these investments absent a filing. Effective October 28, 2022, the government issued a Policy Regarding Foreign Investments from SOEs in Critical Minerals under the ICA. This statement indicates that significant transactions by foreign SOEs in Canada's critical minerals sectors will only be approved as of likely net benefit on an exceptional basis. In addition, if a foreign state-owned company participates in these types of transactions, it could constitute reasonable grounds to believe that the investment could be injurious to Canada's national security, regardless of the value of the transaction.

Purchase abroad by residents	No.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Various provinces have additional levies on the purchase of residential property by nonresidents. British Columbia imposes an additional property transfer tax for foreign entities and taxable trustees on the purchase of residential property in metropolitan Vancouver. Effective February 21, 2022,

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

		British Columbia increased it to 20% from 15% and expanded the coverage area to also include the Fraser Valley, Capital, Nanaimo, and Central Okanagan Regional Districts. Ontario has, effective October 25, 2022, a 25% (previously, effective March 30, 2022, it was increased to 20% from 15%) nonresident speculation tax (NRST) on the purchase or acquisition of an interest in residential property located in, effective March 30, 2022, the entire province (previously in the Greater Golden Horseshoe area) by individuals who are not citizens or permanent residents of Canada or by foreign corporations ("foreign entities") and taxable trustees. The NRST applies to the transfer of land which contains at least one and not more than six single-family residences. Examples of land containing one single-family residence include land containing a detached house, a semi-detached house, a town house, or a condominium unit. In a situation involving the purchase of multiple condominium units, each unit would be considered land containing one single-family residence. Examples of land containing more than one single-family residence that are subject to the tax include land containing duplexes, triplexes, fourplexes, fiveplexes, and sixplexes. The NRST does not apply to other types of land such as land containing multi-residential rental apartment buildings with more than six units, agricultural land, commercial land, or industrial land. The NRST applies on the value of the consideration for the residential property. If the land transferred includes both residential property and another type of property, the NRST applies on the portion of the value of the consideration attributable to the residential property. For example, if the purchase price of the transaction is $1,000,000 and contains one single-family residence with a value of the consideration of $400,000, and commercial land with a value of the consideration of $600,000, the 15% NRST would apply to only the $400,000 portion. Effective April 1, 2022, Nova Scotia imposed a 5% nonresident deed transfer tax on the purchase of residential property in the province. The Regulations Implementing the UN Resolutions on the DPRK prohibit any person in Canada or any Canadian outside Canada to knowingly sell or lease or otherwise make available real property to the DPRK, to a national or to any person acting on behalf or at the direction of the DPRK or a national. Effective January 1, 2023, the Prohibition on the Purchase of Residential Property by Non-Canadians Act is in force. The Act prohibits people who are neither Canadian citizens nor permanent residents of Canada from purchasing residential property, directly or indirectly, in Canada for a period of two years. The Act and its associated Regulations establish specific exceptions, definitions, and clarifications necessary to fully implement the Act. Exceptions are provided for certain classes of persons, including certain temporary residents working and studying in Canada, refugees and refugee claimants, foreign nationals fleeing international crises, and foreign nationals accredited as members of foreign missions in Canada. Exceptions are also provided for certain types of property and purchase situations, including residential property located outside of a Census Metropolitan Area or Census Agglomeration, residential property purchased for the purpose of development, residential property containing four or more dwelling units, and residential property acquired by way of a divorce, separation, gift, or death. The Act is subject to automatic repeal on January 1, 2025.

Controls on stablecoins	No.	Stablecoins are considered in Canadian law to be a security and/or a derivative in most Canadian jurisdictions. The regulation of securities is done at the provincial/territorial level, and as such each province can define stablecoins differently in their legal framework. However, the Canadian Securities Administrators (CSA), the umbrella organization of Canada's provincial and territorial securities regulators, considers these assets to be sufficiently alike to fall within their jurisdictions.

Domestic exchanges	Yes.	Securities regime applies to transactions on crypto trading platforms. If either entity involved in the transaction is a reporting entity, there is a requirement to submit a Large Virtual Currency Transaction Report, if $10,000 or more in equivalent value is transacted within a 24 hour period or if the person or entity established that there are reasonable grounds to suspect that the transaction or attempted transaction is related to the commission of a money laundering offence or a terrorist activity financing offence. As of June 1, 2020, all entities that are in the business of dealing in virtual assets are required to register with the Financial Transactions and Reports Analysis Centre of Canada (FINTRAC) as a Money Service Business, and conduct all of the relevant Know-Your-Customer, determinations of Politically Exposed Persons, volume and suspicious transaction reporting requirements, and customer due diligence procedures as defined within the PCMLTFA and PCMLTFRR. These procedures must be applied to those who wish to create an account with a domestic or international crypto exchange or crypto trading platform. Effective August 12, 2022, the CSA announced that it expects unregistered crypto trading platforms (CTPs) operating in Canada to commit to a "pre-registration undertaking" (PRU) while they pursue registration, which includes terms and conditions consistent with requirements currently applicable to registered CTPs. On February 22, 2023, the CSA followed up on this announcement by issuing a statement clarifying that if non-registered CTPs do not pre-register or cease operating by a deadline to be issued shortly, the CSA will consider all applicable regulatory options to bring the platform into compliance with securities law, including enforcement action. This would include both CTPs operating within Canada and foreign CTPs that are accessible by Canadians. On February 5, 2023, the CSA provided further clarity and guidance to crypto asset trading platforms about its interim approach to the trading of value-referenced crypto assets (VRCAs). Effective February 22, 2023, CSA set out the view that "VRCAs" may be securities and/or derivatives, and fiat-backed crypto assets would generally be securities and/or derivatives. The CSA defines a VRCA as a crypto asset that is designed to maintain a stable value over time by referencing the value of a fiat currency or any other value or right, or combination thereof. On October 5, 2023, the CSA released guidance providing further clarity to crypto asset trading platforms about its interim approach to the trading of value-referenced crypto assets.

Imports and Import Payments

Import taxes and/or tariffs

04/07/2022 — The COVID-19-related Certain Goods Remission Order (COVID-19) expired. Previously, imports of certain medical supplies, including personal protective equipment, were eligible for tariff relief. These include diagnostic test kits, face and eye protection, gloves, protective garments, disinfectants/sterilization products, medical devices, thermometers, wipes, and medical consumables. Relief was available to all importers such as businesses, distributors, and individual Canadians.

05/07/2022 — The COVID-19-related Goods for Emergency Use Remission Order expired. Previously, imported goods for emergency medical use by public health bodies (for example, hospitals) and first responders were eligible for relief from tariffs and sales taxes. Relief extended to emergency goods imported for use at public and private care residences, such as seniors' residences, retirement homes, nursing homes, and shelters.

		Russian investors will be found to be of net benefit to Canada on an exceptional basis only.
	08/02/2022	A voluntary filing mechanism is available to allow certain non-Canadian investors (for example, minority investors) to get certainty under the Investment Canada Act, as well as to extend the time for national security review for these investments absent a filing.
	10/28/2022	The government issued a Policy Regarding Foreign Investments from State-Owned Enterprises (SOEs) in Critical Minerals under the Investment Canada Act. This statement indicates that significant transactions by foreign SOEs in Canada's critical minerals sectors will only be approved as of likely net benefit on an exceptional basis. In addition, if a foreign state-owned company participates in these types of transactions, it could constitute reasonable grounds to believe that the investment could be injurious to Canada's national security, regardless of the value of the transaction.
	01/01/2023	The review thresholds for direct acquisition of control are: Can$1.287 billion (previously Can$1.141 billion) in enterprise value for private sector WTO investments, Can$1.931 billion (previously Can$1.711 billion) in enterprise value for private sector trade agreement investments, and Can$512 million (previously Can$454 million) for state-owned enterprise WTO investments.

Official exchange rate	Yes.	The CFA franc is officially pegged to the euro, the intervention currency, at a fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 per euro. The exchange rate is fixed by Article 12 of the MCA of November 23, 1972, between the BEAC and France, which states that the par value may be modified following consultation among the signatory countries (BEAC members and France), taking into account the demands of the economic and financial situation of the member countries. Exchange transactions in euros between the BEAC and commercial banks are made at this rate. Buying and selling rates for certain other foreign currencies are also listed officially based on the fixed rate for the euro and the rates for these foreign currencies prevailing in the Paris foreign exchange market. The official rate is used for accounting and valuation.

Exchange tax	Yes.	Transfers of funds with the rest of the world are subject to transfer fees determined freely by the market but not exceeding 1%, excluding any other special tax. Licensed intermediaries may effect transfers with the rest of the world through the BEAC. Within the CEMAC, transfers of funds are subject to transfer fees determined freely by the market and not exceeding 0.25%, excluding the VAT and any other special tax.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Licensing of exchange bureaus is the responsibility of the MOFs of the CEMAC member countries. Their operations are limited to OTC transactions. Licensed intermediaries, who set their own exchange rates with their customers for currencies other than the euro, may freely conduct foreign exchange transactions with their customers. The BEAC's OTC foreign exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.	The BEAC's OTC exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries.
Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	Within the limits of available stocks, the BEAC's OTC exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries.
Allocation	No.
Auction	No.

Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	There are no restrictions on interbank foreign exchange transactions within the CEMAC. Exchange transactions are OTC transactions. The BEAC does not intervene in exchange transactions within the CEMAC. These transactions are freely conducted by operators licensed by the MOF with the approval of the Central African Banking Commission (COBAC). A fee of no more than 3% for CFA franc area notes and 5% for other currencies, not including the VAT and any other specific tax, is collected by licensed intermediaries on transactions in foreign banknotes and traveler's checks. This fee covers all charges on OTC transactions and the intermediation margin.
Over the counter	Yes.	Foreign exchange transactions are conducted on an OTC basis.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	No.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	There is no forward foreign exchange market in the CEMAC. Licensed intermediaries may enter into forward exchange contracts up to a limit of CFAF 100 million on presentation of supporting documentation (invoices, debt repayment schedules, or other foreign-currency-denominated debt instruments) and must report such activities to the BEAC. For amounts over CFAF 100 million, requests for forward exchange contracts must be made to the BEAC so that their purpose may be verified.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	No.	Within the CEMAC, the CFA franc is used freely for payments and receipts relating to current and capital transactions and payments. Settlements with all countries other than CEMAC members must be made through correspondent banks in one of the currencies of the two parties or in any other currency agreed on by the two parties to the transaction.
For current transactions and payments	No.
For capital transactions	No.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	No.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	No.
Credit operations	No.
Use of foreign exchange among residents	Yes.	The monetary unit is the CFA franc, which is the sole official currency and legal tender in all CEMAC member countries. Consequently, transactions among residents must be settled in domestic currency. However, effective April 22, 2022, the CAR adopted a law which governs cryptocurrency transactions in the country and considers Bitcoin as the reference currency.
Payments arrangements	Yes.
Bilateral payments arrangements	No.
Operative	No.

Inoperative	No.
Regional arrangements	Yes.	An operation's account links all the countries with the French Treasury. All purchases and sales of foreign currencies and euros in exchange for CFA francs are ultimately settled by a debit or credit to the operations account. Governments may maintain foreign currency deposits related to oil reserves at commercial banks and use them to meet their external debt service obligations. Exchange regulations in the CEMAC member countries are harmonized.
Clearing agreements	No.
Barter agreements and open accounts	No.	There is no formal clearing agreement between any CEMAC country and other countries. Nor are there any regulatory provisions governing this mechanism. In practice, however, some countries may receive production or capital goods from abroad in exchange for financial flows.
Administration of control	Yes.	Administration of the foreign exchange regulations is the responsibility of the MOFs of the CEMAC countries, which may delegate all or a portion of their authority to the BEAC, the COBAC, and licensed intermediaries. For example, authority is delegated to licensed intermediaries to carry out transactions with the rest of the world. They must verify the validity of transactions, collect statistics, and report these activities to the monetary authorities. However, certain types of transactions may not be delegated. The BEAC supervises the exchange regulations; evaluates foreign exchange hedging operations; reviews requests for approval of opening of foreign exchange accounts by some resident legal entities; and monitors the repatriation of export proceeds. The COBAC ensures that licensed intermediaries comply with certain provisions of these regulations, especially to prevent weakening of the CEMAC banking system.
Payments arrears	No.	Licensed intermediaries may freely execute their customers' payment orders. The related transfers may, at their request, be made through the BEAC. When banks execute payment order requests through their liquidity buffer, these requests do not come back to the BEAC but are checked during on-site or off-site inspections. In this context, the MCA with France serves to guarantee the convertibility of the CFA franc. No payment arrears are allowed on the grounds that insufficient foreign exchange is available.
Official	No.
Private	No.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	Yes.	CEMAC residents are free to hold, purchase, and sell gold in any form within the CEMAC.
On external trade	Yes.	Except in the case of manufactured articles containing small quantities of gold, CEMAC gold imports and exports are subject to approval by the appropriate authorities. The national treasuries and the BEAC are exempt from this requirement.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.	Residents and nonresidents traveling from one country to another within the CEMAC may take with them an unlimited amount of CEMAC banknotes and coins.
On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	CFA francs issued by the BEAC may not be exported to countries outside the CEMAC. However, departing resident travelers may have in their possession up to CFAF 5 million. During their trips outside the CEMAC, travelers must use payment instruments other than BEAC banknotes (foreign currency, traveler's checks, bank drafts, transfers, etc.).

Foreign currency	Yes.	Resident and nonresident travelers crossing CEMAC borders must, on exit, declare any foreign currency, securities, or instruments valued at more than CFAF 5 million to the customs authorities. Nonresident travelers leaving the CEMAC may take with them foreign currency valued at up to the amount they declared on entering the CEMAC. If they made no declaration on entry or if they are carrying sums exceeding those they brought into the CEMAC, they must explain the source of the amount in excess of CFAF 1 million. Supporting documents include pay slips and work permits (wage income), student cards (parental assistance for students and trainees), and notarized instruments (donations), among others.
On imports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	CFA francs issued by the BEAC may not be imported from countries outside the CEMAC. However, arriving resident travelers may have in their possession up to CFAF 5 million.
Foreign currency	No.	Resident and nonresident travelers crossing CEMAC borders must, on entry, declare foreign currency, securities, or instruments valued at more than CFAF 5 million to the customs authorities.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Held domestically	Yes.	Residents may not open foreign exchange accounts in local banks. However, the BEAC may allow certain resident legal entities to open foreign exchange accounts. These accounts may not be credited with CFA francs or with debits from CFA franc accounts.
Approval required	Yes.	The BEAC may allow resident legal entities to open foreign exchange accounts. These accounts may not be credited with CFA francs or with debits from CFA franc accounts. The authorization to open bank accounts in foreign currency is granted by the BEAC. Generally, the BEAC's approval is given when the entity in question cannot easily carry out all its operations with accounts in CFA francs only or when a financial arrangement following an external financial contribution requires the opening of foreign currency accounts.
Held abroad	Yes.	Resident legal entities, except credit institutions, are prohibited from opening foreign currency bank accounts outside the CEMAC in accordance with Regulation No. 02/18/CEMAC/UMAC/CM of December 21, 2018. However, the BEAC may allow a resident legal entity to open a foreign currency account outside the CEMAC in accordance with the terms and conditions set out in a BEAC directive on June 10, 2019. Generally, the BEAC's approval is given when the entity in question cannot easily carry out all its operations with accounts in CFA francs only or when a financial arrangement following an external financial contribution requires the opening of foreign currency accounts.
Approval required	Yes.	The BEAC may allow a resident legal entity to open a foreign currency account outside the CEMAC in accordance with the terms and conditions set out in a BEAC directive in June 2019.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	Yes.	Accounts in domestic currency held abroad are permitted. Previously, these accounts were not permitted except within the CEMAC.
Accounts in domestic currency	No.

convertible into foreign currency

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	There are no restrictions on the opening of nonresident foreign exchange accounts within the CEMAC. Licensed intermediaries may open such accounts for any nonresident, on request, provided they inform the monetary authorities. Such accounts may not be overdrawn. On account closure (for example, for loss of nonresident status), the account balance must be transferred to a resident account in CFAF.
Approval required	No.
Domestic currency accounts	Yes.	There are no restrictions on the opening of nonresident CFA franc accounts within the CEMAC. Licensed intermediaries may open such accounts for nonresidents, on request, provided they inform the monetary authorities. Such accounts may not be overdrawn.
Convertible into foreign currency	No.
Approval required	No.
Blocked accounts	No.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget	No.	The exchange regulations do not limit access to foreign exchange. Payments for imports must be made regularly through licensed intermediaries.
Financing requirements for imports	No.	Economic agents may freely enter into commercial contracts with their partners abroad. These contracts are executed through the banking system, subject to compliance with the exchange regulations.
Minimum financing requirements	No.	There are no financing requirements.
Advance payment requirements	No.
Advance import deposits	No.
Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports	Yes.	For import payments of less than CFAF 100 million, the licensed intermediary must obtain a pro forma or original invoice, a bill of lading, or the commercial contract, along with the most recent tax receipt or a professional license. Payments of more than CFAF 100 million must be settled through a licensed intermediary, which must check the supporting documents. Legally registered legal entities and declared or certified professionals may be exempt from the requirement to produce supporting documents, provided they submit an annual estimate of imports corroborated by a business forecast.
Domiciliation requirements	Yes.	Imports valued at more than CFAF 5 million must be domiciled with a resident licensed intermediary.
Preshipment inspection	Yes.	There are no specific provisions for inspections at the CEMAC level. The member countries may freely apply their own regulations in this regard. In the CAR, imports exceeding CFAF 1 million or the equivalent are subject to mandatory preshipment inspection.
Letters of credit	No.	The use of LCs by economic agents for the settlement of transactions is allowed but optional.
Import licenses used as exchange licenses	No.	Import licenses are not used in the CEMAC countries to restrict the availability of foreign exchange for legitimate trade, as defined in the Compilation Guide. When such licenses exist, they are used for trade policy purposes.

Other	Yes.	For import payments of less than CFAF 100 million, the licensed intermediary must obtain a pro forma or original invoice, a bill of lading, or the commercial contract, along with the most recent tax receipt or a professional license (registration number, professional ID card, extract from the commercial registry, or tax clearance). Payments of more than CFAF 100 million must be settled through a licensed intermediary, which must check the supporting documents. Legal entities and certified professionals can no longer use annual estimates of imports and must produce all supporting documents to carry out transactions.
Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.	In general, CEMAC countries no longer use quantitative restrictions as a means of protecting local production. Merchandise originating from all countries may be freely imported, with the exception of gold, to which special regulations apply.
Positive list	No.
Negative list	Yes.	Imports of some products may be prohibited, restricted, or require national authorization for humanitarian, security, or health reasons.
Open general licenses	No.	There is no system of OGLs at the CEMAC level.
Licenses with quotas	No.
Other nontariff measures	No.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	The CEMAC CET applies to imports from non-CEMAC countries, at four rates: 5% for staple goods, 10% for raw materials and capital goods, 20% for intermediate goods, and 30% for consumer goods. The taxes are imposed by the national customs administration in CFA francs at the merchandise point of entry.
Taxes collected through the exchange system	Yes.	Licensed intermediaries are responsible for withholding all taxes and related fees established by law and surrendering them to the monetary authority.
State import monopoly	No.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Export-related transactions must be reported to the appropriate administrative authorities, and all those exceeding CFAF 5 million must be domiciled at a licensed CEMAC bank. Export proceeds originating in non-CEMAC countries must be collected and repatriated immediately, through the domiciling bank, with the BEAC acting as intermediary.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Export proceeds collected in foreign currencies must be surrendered to the BEAC within 3 days of collection.
Surrender to authorized dealers	No.
Financing requirements	No.	Economic agents and their partners abroad may enter freely into commercial contracts, which are executed through the banking system, subject to compliance with the exchange regulations. There are no financing requirements.
Documentation requirements	Yes.	Transactions related to exports to non-CEMAC countries valued at more than CFAF 5 million must be domiciled with a local licensed bank. Each domiciliation file must contain an export contract, a foreign exchange declaration under which the exporter agrees to repatriate all export earnings within a month of the payment due date, and a customs export certificate duly signed by a customs officer.

Other export taxes	Yes.

Payments for Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Controls on these transfers	Yes.
Trade-related payments	Yes.	There are no exchange restrictions on service-related transactions. Payments for such transactions are subject to the same requirements as the underlying commercial transactions.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	All service-related expenditures must be declared, and amounts exceeding CFAF 5 million must also be domiciled with a resident licensed intermediary. Supporting documents must be provided, and amounts exceeding CFAF 100 million must be declared to BEAC and the MOF. Licensed intermediaries must obtain a pro forma invoice or other supporting documents for payments for service-related expenditures under CFAF 10 million.
Investment-related payments	Yes.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	There are no restrictions on transfers of capital income outside the CEMAC in the form of profits, dividends, interest, royalties, etc., payable to nonresidents, provided the underlying transaction was authorized or is not subject to authorization. Supporting documents on the decision to distribute income (profits and dividends), the repayment schedule, and the debt security involved (loans contracted and granted) must be provided. Transactions in excess of CFAF 5 million must be domiciled with CEMAC credit institutions. Other current transactions, as well as financial and capital operations in excess of CFAF 100 million, must be declared to BEAC and the MOF.

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Amounts owed by nonresidents for services and all income from foreign assets earned outside the CEMAC must be collected through a licensed bank and repatriated immediately.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Amounts collected in foreign currency must be surrendered to the BEAC within 3 days of receipt.
Surrender to authorized dealers	No.
Restrictions on use of funds	No.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions	Yes.	The exchange regulations, including the section on capital flows within the CEMAC, do not apply to transactions between CEMAC member countries. There are no restrictions on most capital flows between CEMAC and non-CEMAC countries, provided they comply with the laws and regulations prohibiting drug financing and trafficking. Certain loans, direct investments, and the issuance, advertisement, and sale of foreign securities within the CEMAC are subject to administrative controls and require approval from the appropriate authorities. Controls on these transactions are applied indiscriminately to countries in the CFA franc zone, other than CEMAC member countries, and all non-CFA franc zone countries. Moreover, Article 61 of the General Regulations of the Central African Financial Market Supervisory Commission (COSUMAF), which entered into effect January 15, 2009, specifies that "when a nonresident legal entity plans a public offering on the Central African regional financial market, it must prepare a disclosure document and submit it to COSUMAF for approval prior to dissemination. The prior approval of the exchange control authority in the various countries concerned must also be obtained." The article also states that "the issuer must appoint a correspondent (securities dealer) established in a CEMAC member state, where it elects domicile. This correspondent must be responsible for: (1) receiving correspondence from COSUMAF and (2) forwarding to COSUMAF all documents and information required under the laws and regulations or requested by COSUMAF."
Repatriation requirements	Yes.	In the context of the centralization of foreign exchange reserves, foreign currency collected from capital transactions must be repatriated immediately after collection.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Amounts collected in foreign currencies must be surrendered to the BEAC no later than 3 days after receipt.
Surrender to authorized dealers	No.
Controls on capital and money market instruments	Yes.
On capital market securities	Yes.	The issuance, advertisement, and sale of foreign securities (shares and bonds issued by foreign enterprises) whose value exceeds CFAF 10 million are subject to MOF approval. Under CEMAC exchange

Conventional peg	Yes.	The exchange rate arrangement of the CAMU is a conventional peg. Chad participates in the CAMU and has no separate legal tender. The Monetary Cooperation Agreement (MCA) between CAMU member countries and France is based on three principles: (1) a common CB; (2) fixed parity with the euro; and (3) an unlimited convertibility guarantee. Article 16 empowers the finance ministers of signatory countries (Joint Monetary Committee) to amend the MCA. Article 17 permits signatories to renounce the agreement. Article 18 specifies that the expulsion of a member country from the BEAC automatically results in that country's renunciation of the MCA.

Official exchange rate	Yes.	The CFA franc is officially pegged to the euro, the intervention currency, at a fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 per euro. The exchange rate is fixed by Article 12 of the MCA of November 23, 1972, between the BEAC and France, which states that the par value may be modified following consultation among the signatory countries (BEAC members and France), taking into account the demands of the economic and financial situation of the member countries. Exchange transactions in euros between the BEAC and commercial banks are made at this rate. Buying and selling rates for certain other foreign currencies are also listed officially based on the fixed rate for the euro and the rates for these foreign currencies prevailing in the Paris foreign exchange market. The official rate is used for accounting and valuation.

Exchange tax	Yes.	Transfers of funds with the rest of the world are subject to transfer fees determined freely by the market but not exceeding 1%, excluding any other special tax. Licensed intermediaries may effect transfers with the rest of the world through the BEAC. Within the CEMAC, transfers of funds are subject to transfer fees determined freely by the market and not exceeding 0.25%, excluding the VAT and any other special tax.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Licensing of exchange bureaus is the responsibility of the MOFs of the CEMAC member countries. Their operations are limited to OTC transactions. Licensed intermediaries, who set their own exchange rates with their customers for currencies other than the euro, may freely conduct foreign exchange transactions with their customers. The BEAC's OTC foreign exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries. Commercial banks may also acquire euro notes at 1.5% from the CB. There are eight authorized foreign exchange bureaus in Chad.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.	The BEAC's OTC exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries. Commercial banks may also acquire euro notes at 1.5% from the CB.
Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	Within the limits of available stocks, the BEAC's OTC exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries.
Allocation	No.

Auction	No.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	There are no restrictions on interbank foreign exchange transactions within the CEMAC. Exchange transactions are OTC transactions. The BEAC does not intervene in exchange transactions within the CEMAC. These transactions are freely conducted by operators licensed by the MOF with the approval of the Central African Banking Commission (COBAC). A fee of no more than 3% for CFA franc area notes and 5% for other currencies, not including the VAT and any other specific tax, is collected by licensed intermediaries on transactions in foreign banknotes and traveler's checks. This fee covers all charges on OTC transactions and the intermediation margin. All banks approved by COBAC and authorized by the Monetary Authority to operate in the country are automatically eligible to participate in the interbank market. Only participation in BEAC intervention requires the approval of the governor after COBAC's consent. There are eight authorized banks, all of which participate in the interbank market. In principle, all licensed banks participate in the interbank market, but at different levels.
Over the counter	Yes.	Foreign exchange transactions are conducted on an OTC basis.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	No.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	There is no forward foreign exchange market in the CEMAC. Licensed intermediaries may enter into forward exchange contracts on presentation of supporting documentation (invoices, debt repayment schedules, or other foreign-currency-denominated debt instruments) and must report such activities to the BEAC. They are required to adhere to the limits of foreign holdings allowed by the Banking Commission.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	No.	Within the CEMAC, the CFA franc is used freely for payments and receipts relating to current and capital transactions and payments. Settlements with all countries other than CEMAC members must be made through correspondent banks in one of the currencies of the two parties or in any other currency agreed on by the two parties to the transaction.
For current transactions and payments	No.
For capital transactions	No.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	No.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	No.
Credit operations	No.
Use of foreign exchange among residents	Yes.	The monetary unit is the CFA franc, which is the sole official currency and legal tender in all CEMAC member countries.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

		Consequently, transactions among residents must be settled in domestic currency. However, the Central African Republic adopted a law on April 22, 2022, which governs cryptocurrency transactions in the country and considers Bitcoin as the reference currency.
Payments arrangements	Yes.
Bilateral payments arrangements	No.
Operative	No.
Inoperative	No.
Regional arrangements	Yes.	An operations account links all the countries with the French Treasury. All purchases and sales of foreign currencies and euros in exchange for CFA francs are ultimately settled by a debit or credit to the operations account. Governments may maintain foreign currency deposits related to oil reserves at commercial banks and use them to meet their external debt service obligations. Exchange regulations in the CEMAC member countries are harmonized.
Clearing agreements	No.
Barter agreements and open accounts	No.	There is no formal clearing agreement between any CEMAC country and other countries. Nor are there any regulatory provisions governing this mechanism. In practice, however, some countries may receive production or capital goods from abroad in exchange for financial flows. The BEAC does not have more detailed information on this issue.
Administration of control	Yes.	Administration of the foreign exchange regulations is the responsibility of the MOFs of the CEMAC countries, which may delegate all or a portion of their authority to the BEAC, the COBAC, and licensed intermediaries. For example, authority is delegated to licensed intermediaries to carry out transactions with the rest of the world. They must verify the validity of transactions, collect statistics, and report these activities to the monetary authorities. However, certain types of transactions may not be delegated. The BEAC supervises the exchange regulations; evaluates foreign exchange hedging operations; reviews requests for approval of foreign exchange accounts by some resident legal entities; and monitors the repatriation of export proceeds. The COBAC ensures that licensed intermediaries comply with certain provisions of these regulations, especially to prevent weakening of the CEMAC banking system.
Payments arrears	No.	Licensed intermediaries may freely execute their customers' payment orders. The related transfers may, at their request, be made through the BEAC. When banks execute payment order requests through their liquidity buffer, these requests do not come back to the BEAC but are checked during on-site or off-site inspections. In this context, the MCA with France serves to guarantee the convertibility of the CFA franc. No payment arrears are allowed on the grounds that insufficient foreign exchange is available.
Official	No.
Private	No.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	No.	CEMAC residents are free to hold, purchase, and sell gold in any form within the CEMAC.
On external trade	Yes.	Except in the case of manufactured articles containing small quantities of gold, CEMAC gold imports and exports are subject to approval by the appropriate authorities. The national treasuries and the BEAC are exempt from this requirement.

Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.	Residents and nonresidents traveling from one country to another within the CEMAC may take with them an unlimited amount of CEMAC banknotes and coins.
On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	CFA francs issued by the BEAC may not be exported to countries outside the CEMAC. However, departing resident travelers may have in their possession up to CFAF 5 million. During their trips outside the CEMAC, travelers must use payment instruments other than BEAC banknotes (foreign currency, traveler's checks, bank drafts, transfers, etc.).
Foreign currency	Yes.	Resident and nonresident travelers crossing CEMAC borders must, on exit, declare any foreign currency, securities, or instruments valued at more than CFAF 5 million to the customs authorities. Nonresident travelers leaving the CEMAC may take with them foreign currency valued at up to the amount they declared on entering the CEMAC. If they made no declaration on entry or if they are carrying sums exceeding those they brought into the CEMAC, they must explain the source of the amount in excess of CFAF 1 million. Supporting documents include pay slips and work permits (wage income), student cards (parental assistance for students and trainees), and notarized instruments (donations), among others.
On imports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	CFA francs issued by the BEAC may not be imported from countries outside the CEMAC. However, arriving resident travelers may have in their possession up to CFAF 5 million.
Foreign currency	No.	Resident and nonresident travelers crossing CEMAC borders must, on entry, declare foreign currency, securities, and instruments valued at more than CFAF 5 million to the customs authorities.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Held domestically	Yes.	Residents may not open foreign exchange accounts in local banks. However, the BEAC may allow certain resident legal entities to open foreign exchange accounts. These accounts may not be credited with CFA francs or with debits from CFA franc accounts.
Approval required	Yes.	The BEAC may allow resident legal entities to open foreign exchange accounts. These accounts may not be credited with CFA francs or with debits from CFA franc accounts. The authorization to open bank accounts in foreign currency is granted by the BEAC. Generally, the BEAC's approval is given when the entity in question cannot easily carry out all its operations with accounts in CFA francs only or when a financial arrangement following an external financial contribution requires the opening of foreign currency accounts.
Held abroad	Yes.	Resident legal entities, except credit institutions, are prohibited from opening foreign currency bank accounts outside the CEMAC in accordance with Regulation No. 02/18/CEMAC/UMAC/CM of December 21, 2018. However, the BEAC may allow a resident legal entity to open a foreign currency account outside the CEMAC in accordance with the terms and conditions set out in a BEAC directive on June 10, 2019. Previously, although the principle underlying foreign currency transactions was the systematic repatriation and surrender of foreign exchange to the BEAC and residents were not allowed to maintain foreign exchange accounts abroad, the opening of such accounts was not explicitly regulated by law. In general, when resident entities borrow abroad and the lenders require foreign currency accounts to be established, these are authorized by the BEAC. In addition, companies in the extractive sector benefit from a special provision allowing them to hold foreign currency accounts abroad as part of their ordinary operations.

Approval required	Yes.	The BEAC may allow a resident legal entity to open a foreign currency account outside the CEMAC in accordance with the terms and conditions set out in a BEAC directive in June 2019.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	Yes.	Accounts in domestic currency held abroad are permitted.
Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	No.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	There are no restrictions on the opening of nonresident foreign exchange accounts within the CEMAC. Licensed intermediaries may open such accounts for any nonresident, on request, provided they inform the monetary authorities. Such accounts may not be overdrawn. On account closure (for example, for loss of nonresident status), the account balance must be transferred to a resident account in CFAF.
Approval required	No.
Domestic currency accounts	Yes.	There are no restrictions on the opening of nonresident CFA franc accounts within the CEMAC. Licensed intermediaries may open such accounts for nonresidents, on request, provided they inform the monetary authorities. Such accounts may not be overdrawn.
Convertible into foreign currency	No.	Nonresidents may not convert the balances of their domestic currency accounts to foreign currency or transfer them abroad.
Approval required	No.
Blocked accounts	No.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget	No.	The exchange regulations do not limit access to foreign exchange. Payments for imports must be made regularly through licensed intermediaries.
Financing requirements for imports	No.	Economic agents may freely enter into commercial contracts with their partners abroad. These contracts are executed through the banking system, subject to compliance with the exchange regulations.
Minimum financing requirements	No.	There are no financing requirements.
Advance payment requirements	No.
Advance import deposits	No.
Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports	Yes.	For import payments of less than CFAF 100 million, the licensed intermediary must obtain a pro forma or original invoice, a bill of lading, or the commercial contract, along with the most recent tax receipt or a professional license. Payments of more than CFAF 100 million must be settled through a licensed intermediary, which must check the supporting documents. Legally registered legal entities and declared or certified professionals may be exempt from the requirement to produce supporting documents, provided they submit an annual estimate of imports corroborated by a business forecast.

Domiciliation requirements	Yes.	Imports valued at more than CFAF 5 million must be domiciled with a resident licensed intermediary.
Preshipment inspection	Yes.	There are no specific provisions for inspections at the CEMAC level. The member countries may freely apply their own regulations in this regard. In Chad, imports with an f.o.b. value exceeding the equivalent of CFAF 2 million are subject to preshipment inspection.
Letters of credit	No.	The use of LCs by economic agents for the settlement of transactions is allowed but optional.
Import licenses used as exchange licenses	No.	Import licenses are not used in the CEMAC countries to restrict the availability of foreign exchange for legitimate trade, as defined in the Compilation Guide. When such licenses exist, they are used for trade policy purposes.
Other	Yes.	For import payments of less than CFAF 100 million, the licensed intermediary must obtain a pro forma or original invoice, a bill of lading, or the commercial contract, along with the most recent tax receipt or a professional license (registration number, professional ID card, extract from the commercial registry, or tax clearance). Payments of more than CFAF 100 million must be settled through a licensed intermediary, which must check the supporting documents. Legal entities and certified professionals can no longer use annual estimates of imports and must produce all supporting documents to carry out transactions.
Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.	In general, CEMAC countries no longer use quantitative restrictions as a means of protecting local production. Merchandise originating from all countries may be freely imported, with the exception of gold, to which special regulations apply.
Positive list	No.
Negative list	Yes.	Imports of some products may be prohibited, restricted, or require national authorization for humanitarian, security, or health reasons.
Open general licenses	No.	There is no system of OGLs at the CEMAC level.
Licenses with quotas	No.
Other nontariff measures	No.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	The CEMAC CET applies to imports from non-CEMAC countries, at four rates: 5% for staple goods, 10% for raw materials and capital goods, 20% for intermediate goods, and 30% for consumer goods. The taxes are imposed by the national customs administration in CFA francs at the merchandise point of entry.
Taxes collected through the exchange system	Yes.	Licensed intermediaries are responsible for withholding all taxes and related fees established by law and surrendering them to the monetary authority.
State import monopoly	No.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Export-related transactions must be reported to the appropriate administrative authorities, and all those exceeding CFAF 5 million must be domiciled at a licensed CEMAC bank. Export proceeds originating in non-CEMAC countries must be collected and repatriated immediately, through the domiciling bank, with the BEAC acting as intermediary.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Export proceeds collected in foreign currencies must be surrendered to the BEAC within 3 days of collection.
Surrender to authorized dealers	No.
Financing requirements	No.	Economic agents and their partners abroad may enter freely into commercial contracts, which are executed through the banking system, subject to compliance with the exchange regulations. There are no financing requirements.
Documentation requirements	Yes.	Transactions related to exports to non-CEMAC countries valued at more than CFAF 5 million must be domiciled with a local licensed bank. Each domiciliation file must contain an export contract, a foreign exchange declaration under which the exporter agrees to repatriate all export earnings within a month of the payment due date, and a customs export certificate duly signed by a customs officer.
Letters of credit	No.	The use of LCs by economic agents for the settlement of transactions is allowed but optional.
Guarantees	n.r.
Domiciliation	Yes.	Transactions related to exports to non-CEMAC countries valued at more than CFAF 5 million must be domiciled with a local licensed bank.
Preshipment inspection	Yes.	There are no specific provisions for inspections at the CEMAC level. The member countries may freely apply their own regulations in this regard. In Chad, the Customs office must stamp a certificate of departure of the goods and send a copy to the exporter, paying bank, BEAC, and foreign MOF.
Other	No.
Export licenses	No.
Without quotas	No.
With quotas	No.

Investment-related payments	Yes.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	There are no restrictions on transfers of capital income outside the CEMAC in the form of profits, dividends, interest, royalties, etc., payable to nonresidents, provided the underlying transaction was authorized or is not subject to authorization. Supporting documents on the decision to distribute income (profits and dividends), the repayment schedule, and the debt security involved (loans contracted and granted) must be provided. Transactions in excess of CFAF 5 million must be domiciled with CEMAC credit institutions. Other current transactions, as well as financial and capital operations in excess of CFAF 100 million, must be declared to BEAC and the MOF.
Payments for travel	Yes.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Indicative limits are established for OTC foreign exchange allocations to residents traveling outside the CEMAC. A single indicative threshold of CFAF 5 million is set for all travels. However, all substantiated requests must be granted, regardless of the amount. Licensed intermediaries must serve their customers' foreign currency needs, to the extent that funds are available to them, and check supporting documentation for amounts in excess of CFAF 5 million, including, as applicable, a valid travel document and ticket, a mission order, a health evacuation authorization, or a certificate of registration at a school or university, and report to the appropriate authorities.
Personal payments	Yes.	Transfers are unrestricted, on submission of supporting documentation.

Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Amounts collected in foreign currency must be surrendered to the BEAC within 3 days of receipt.
Surrender to authorized dealers	No.
Restrictions on use of funds	No.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions	Yes.	The exchange regulations, including the section on capital flows within the CEMAC, do not apply to transactions between CEMAC member countries. There are no restrictions on most capital flows between CEMAC and non-CEMAC countries, provided they comply with the laws and regulations prohibiting drug financing and trafficking. Certain loans, direct investments, and the issuance, advertisement, and sale of foreign securities within the CEMAC are subject to administrative controls and require approval from the appropriate authorities. Controls on these transactions are applied to countries in the CFA franc area, other than CEMAC member countries, and all non-CFA franc area countries. Moreover, Article 61 of the General Regulations of the Central African Financial Market Supervisory Commission (COSUMAF), which went into effect January 15, 2009, specifies that "when a nonresident legal entity plans a public offering on the Central African regional financial market, it must prepare a disclosure document and submit it to COSUMAF for approval prior to dissemination. The prior approval of the exchange control authority in the various countries concerned must also be obtained." The article also states that "the issuer must appoint a correspondent (securities dealer) established in a CEMAC member country, where it elects domicile. This correspondent must be responsible for: (1) receiving correspondence from COSUMAF and (2) forwarding to COSUMAF all documents and information required under the laws and regulations or requested by COSUMAF."

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	In the context of the centralization of foreign exchange reserves, foreign currency collected from capital transactions must be repatriated immediately after collection.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Amounts collected in foreign currencies must be surrendered to the BEAC no later than 3 days after receipt.
Surrender to authorized dealers	No.
Controls on capital and money market instruments	Yes.
On capital market securities	Yes.	The issuance, advertisement, and sale of foreign securities (shares and bonds issued by foreign enterprises) whose value exceeds CFAF 10 million are subject to MOF approval. Under CEMAC exchange regulations, transactions in capital market securities are treated in the same way as simple borrowing and lending operations, as opposed to direct investments, when the shares or equity held by the individual or legal entity represent less than 10% of the enterprise's total equity. Borrowing and lending are not regulated by type of instrument or maturity.
Shares or other securities of a participating nature	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Banks may verify and make payment for purchases of securities by nonresidents. Transactions must be reported 30 days before the transaction when the transaction is less than CFAF 20 million. Above this amount, the transaction is subject to prior CB approval. There is no minimum (or maximum) holding period for securities.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance, advertisement, and sale of securities within the CEMAC are subject to CB approval when the amount involved exceeds CFAF 50 million. Transactions must be reported to the BEAC within 30 days. There is no minimum (or maximum) holding period for securities.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	Banks may verify and make payment for purchases of securities abroad by residents. Transactions must be declared 30 days before the transaction when the amount is less than CFAF 20 million. Above this amount, it requires prior CB approval.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	Banks may verify and make payment abroad for the sale or issuance of securities by residents. Transactions must be reported within 30 days. Prior approval by the Banking Commission is required in all occasions.
Bonds or other debt securities	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Banks may verify and make payment for purchases of securities by nonresidents. Transactions must be reported within 30 days. When the total outstanding liabilities of a single borrower exceed CFAF 100 million, transactions are subject to MOF approval.

Floating	Yes.	The de jure exchange rate arrangement is free floating. The Central Bank of Chile (BCCH) reserves the right to intervene in the foreign exchange market, in exceptional circumstances, to keep the currency near its equilibrium value to avoid costly future reversals. These interventions take the form of transparent, well-founded measures, including explicit definitions of the periods and amounts involved and clearly explained reasons for the intervention. The BCCH usually announces the amount of foreign exchange it intends to buy or sell in its monthly bulletin. It publishes its auction results daily and its reserves weekly. Since January 2021, the Board of the BCCH announced a program for replenishment and expansion of international reserves, which was suspended in October of that year. However, to facilitate Chile's economic adjustment, in light of the uncertain, changing domestic and international conditions, the bank decided to implement a program of foreign exchange intervention and precautionary provision of liquidity in US dollars, of up to US$25,000 million between June 18, 2022, and September 30, 2022. This reflects the spot sale of US dollars of up to US$10,000 million, the sale of foreign exchange hedging instruments of up to US$10,000 million, and the precautionary provision of a foreign exchange swap program of up to US$5,000 million, that will be supplemented with a liquidity program in pesos with repurchase operations through the facility, having the same terms. The de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified to floating from free floating, effective June 17, 2022.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

Free floating
Official exchange rate	Yes.	The exchange rate in the Formal Exchange Market (MCF) is the rate freely agreed by the participants. The BCCH publishes daily exchange rates of the foreign currencies generally accepted in international exchange markets in the Official Gazette, based on the previous day's transactions in the MCF and, where appropriate, on reports on transactions in international markets. The Law of the CB specifically states that the exchange rate in the MCF is the one freely agreed by the intervening parties. Nevertheless, the Law of the CB also requires it to authorize "adjustment systems" ("sistemas de reajuste") for credit operations in local currency of banks and cooperatives (Article 35.9), and the US dollar and other foreign currencies have been authorized as one of those "adjustment systems." Only for those specific transactions (credit operations in local currency of banks and cooperatives), the exchange rates published in the Official Gazette are mandatory.

Inflation target	Yes.
Target number	Yes.
Point target
Target with tolerance band	Yes.	Since 2007, the explicit objective of the BCCH has been to maintain annual inflation of the headline CPI at about 3% most of the time, with a tolerance range of ±1%. There are no automatic consequences from missing the inflation target, but rather the authorities use their discretion to return inflation to within the target band.

CPI	Yes.	Since 2007, the explicit objective of the BCCH has been to maintain annual inflation of the headline CPI.
Core inflation
Target horizon	Yes.	The target is always for a two-year period.
Operating target (policy rate)	Yes.
Policy rate	Yes.	The BCCH executes its monetary policy by influencing the overnight interbank interest rate, the rate at which banks lend to each other from one day to the next. The Monetary Policy Meeting (MPM) is the BCCH's Board instance to decide any change in the Monetary Policy Rate. There are 8 scheduled MPMs in a year. The dates for these meetings are published the previous year, although the Board reserves the right to hold special MPMs if deemed necessary.
Target corridor band	Yes.	The target corridor band is set symmetrically in relation to the monetary policy rate ±50 basis points. The permanent liquidity facility (PLF) provides overnight liquidity at the monetary policy rate +25 basis points, while the permanent deposits facility absorbs overnight liquidity at the monetary policy rate of –25 basis points.

Accountability	Yes.
Open letter	No.
Parliamentary hearings	Yes.	The BCCH presents its Monetary Policy Report (IPOM) to the Finance Commission on a quarterly basis and the Financial Stability Report every six months. In total, there are 6 hearings in the year, one of which (the September IPOM) is in front of the entire Senate. It should be noted that Article 4 of the Organic Law of the BCCH states that the BCCH must inform the President of the republic and the Senate of the policies and general rules it sets in the exercise of its functions.

Publication of votes	Yes.	The minutes of the MPM state whether the decision was unanimous or, if not, the number of votes in favor and against the decision. These votes are not anonymous, although the reasons behind the votes are.
Publication of minutes	Yes.	On the day of the MPM, the decision adopted is reported to the public through a communiqué published at 6 p.m. The minutes of MPMs, which present the contents and basis for the voting, are published 11 business days after the meeting is held. The official records of the meetings are published 10 years later.
Publication of inflation forecasts	Yes.	The IPOM, which is signed by the Board and published quarterly (in March, June, September, and December), includes the inflation projections.

Exchange tax	No.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	Commercial banks may freely set their exchange rates in transactions with their clients.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Only institutions licensed by the BCCH may conduct foreign exchange transactions, which must be carried out through the MCF. As of November 1, 2023, 17 banks and 10 nonbank entities (9 stock brokers and 1 securities dealer) are authorized institutions. Under Article 39 of the LOC of the BCCH, anyone may freely engage in foreign exchange operations. Without prejudice to that provision, Article 42 of that law authorizes the BCCH to limit execution of certain operations to the MCF. The MCF comprises all banking institutions; the BCCH may authorize other entities and individuals, provided they meet the requirements in Chapter III of the Compendium of Foreign Exchange Regulations (CNCI). A list of these entities is given in the annex to Chapter III. Chapter I also lists operations that must be conducted exclusively through the MCF and reported to the BCCH. Therefore, exchange bureaus may operate in the exchange market, except for transactions that must be executed exclusively through the MCF. At present, no exchange bureaus participate in the MCF, although they are not legally barred from requesting authorization to do so if they meet the CNCI requirements. In Chile, there are 13 private banks and one State bank, in addition to three branches of foreign banks. Regulatory changes in the texts governing access to and operation of the formal foreign exchange market were published on August 30, 2022. They are designed, inter alia, to allow more expeditious access to this market for financial intermediaries supervised by the Financial Markets Board (CMF). Note: As of December 31, 2022, the CMF audited 21 banks. In November 2023, it audited 17 because of the exit of 3 branches of foreign banks and the merger of 2 banks. With respect to nonbank entities of the MCF, there were 9 of them: 8 stock brokers and 1 securities dealer.

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Held domestically	Yes.	Current accounts, in both domestic and foreign currencies, are governed by the Law on Bank Current Accounts and Checks (Executive Decree (DFL) No. 707 of 1982) and by each bank's general conditions. There are no restrictions on the transfer of balances abroad, but such transfers must comply with the applicable BCCH foreign exchange regulations.
Approval required	No.
Held abroad	Yes.	Nonbank financial institutions, individuals, and nonfinancial sector companies may maintain accounts abroad.
Approval required	No.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	Yes.	Residents may hold accounts in domestic or foreign currencies at home or abroad. The transfer of funds to or from foreign accounts does not require any prior authorization, and their rules of operation are determined by the entities in which the accounts have been opened.
Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	Residents are free to convert their account balances in domestic currency to a foreign currency or vice versa, without any regulatory limits.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	Account balances of nonresidents may be moved abroad freely. There are no applicable regulatory limits, and the rules of operation are determined by the entities in which the accounts have been opened.

Abroad by banks	Yes.	Foreign financial investments by commercial banks are subject to prudential regulations.
In banks by nonresidents	No.	The incorporation of a bank in Chile requires, among other things, that the company be incorporated in the country as a corporation. In addition, the founding or controlling shareholders are required to comply with a set of fit and proper requirements, but none concerning nationality (Articles 27 and 28 of the General Banking Law, LGB). In addition, Article 29 of the General Banking Law regulates how financial institutions incorporated abroad can significantly participate in the creation or acquisition of shares of a Chilean bank: "A financial institution incorporated abroad that requests to take a significant part in the creation or acquisition of shares of a Chilean bank or to establish a branch in accordance with Article 32 may only be authorized if, in the country in which its head office operates, there is supervision that allows adequate monitoring of the risk of its operations and, in addition to complying with the provisions of the previous article, if it has prior authorization from the supervisory authority of the country in which its head office is incorporated. Additionally, to grant authorization, the supervisory bodies of both countries must be able to exchange relevant information on these institutions on a reciprocal basis. In the case of investment holdings or other types of companies incorporated abroad, they must assure the Financial Market Commission, in whatever manner the latter deems necessary, that the provisions of the foregoing paragraph are permanently complied with if they hold or subsequently acquire a significant interest in a bank or financial institution in the country in which they are incorporated or in another country. As for the companies referred to in the previous paragraph, which are incorporated in a country that applies the rules of the Basel Committee, the preceding paragraphs are not applicable, if they are obliged to deliver, in the manner and within a time frame determined by the Board, reliable financial information regarding said companies and their subsidiaries, it being understood that such information emanates from the supervisory bodies. When these companies are not subject to the supervision of a body or are not required to provide such information to the body, the information must be endorsed by internationally recognized external auditors. To grant the corresponding authorization to these companies, they must assure the Board, in the manner it determines, that the provisions of this paragraph will be permanently complied with when they hold or subsequently acquire a significant interest in a bank or financial institution in the country in which they are incorporated or in another country. In the event of non-compliance with the provisions of this article, the provisions of the second and final paragraphs of Article 36 of this law apply. For the purposes of this article, a significant shareholding in a

China officially maintains a de jure managed floating exchange rate arrangement with a view to keeping the RMB exchange rate stable at an adaptive and equilibrium level based on market supply and demand with reference to a basket of currencies to preserve the stability of the Chinese economy and financial markets. The floating band of the RMB's trading prices is 2% against the US dollar in the interbank foreign exchange market—that is, on each business day, the trading prices of the RMB against the US dollar in the market may fluctuate within a band of ±2% around the midrate released that day by China's Foreign Exchange Trading System (CFETS). The People's Bank of China (PBC) announced that the RMB's floating range would be expanded in an orderly manner, based on the developments of the foreign exchange market and economic and financial situation. Based on the market demand and their pricing capacity, banks can determine their quotes of RMB against other currencies. There is no limit on the purchasing and selling prices of spot exchange and cash, which are determined by market supply and demand (PBC No. 2014/188).

The CFETS publishes exchange rate indices based on the Bank for International Settlements currency basket and the SDR currency basket, and an exchange rate index against a basket of the currencies listed on CFETS (the CFETS RMB Index). In 2022, the CFETS RMB Index fell by 3.7%. In 2023, the index has remained stable, with a small rise of 0.9% in the first nine months of the year. To ensure that CFETS basket remains representative, CFETS reviews the currency basket for the RMB Index annually and adjusts the composition and the weightings of the currencies as necessary. In December 2022, the CFETS recalculated and adjusted the weightings for the currencies in the RMB Index basket, applying a trade weighting methodology that considers re-export factors. The de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified from crawl-like to other managed, effective March 3, 2022.

Official exchange rate Yes.

The PBC authorizes the CFETS to publish the daily midrates for the RMB against the Australian dollar, Canadian dollar, Danish krone, euro, Hong Kong dollar, Hungarian forint, Japanese yen, Korean won, Malaysian ringgit, Mexican peso, New Zealand dollar, Norwegian krone, Polish zloty, pound sterling, Russian ruble, Saudi Arabian riyal, South African rand, Singapore dollar, Swedish krona, Swiss franc, Turkish lira, UAE dirham, Thai baht, and the US dollar at 9:15 a.m. each working day to serve as the day's midrates for the interbank spot foreign exchange market (including the OTC method and the bid-offer method). At the same time, the CFETS also publishes the daily reference rate (similar to the midrate) of the RMB against Kazakhstani tenge, Mongolian tögrög, and Cambodian riel. For bank's counter transactions (that is, bank customer transactions), banks can determine their RMB quotes against other currencies. There is no limit on the purchasing and selling prices of spot foreign exchange and cash, which are determined by market supply and demand.

The method for determining the RMB–US dollar midrate is as follows: The CFETS, before the daily interbank foreign exchange market opening quote, asks for quotes from all market makers in the interbank foreign exchange market and uses their quoted prices as the calculation sample for the RMB–US dollar midrate. The quotes for the US dollar must refer to the closing price of the previous day and take into account foreign exchange supply and demand and changes in the exchange rates of the main international currencies. After eliminating the highest and lowest quotes, it takes the weighted average of the remaining market makers' quotes and obtains the daily RMB–US dollar midrate. The weighting is determined by the CFETS based on indicators including the transaction volume of the quoting parties in the interbank foreign exchange market and the circumstances of the quotes. The method for determining the midrate of the RMB against the Australian dollar, Canadian dollar, Danish krone, euro, Hungarian forint, Japanese yen, Korean won, Malaysian ringgit, Mexican peso, New Zealand dollar, Norwegian krone, Polish zloty, pound sterling, Russian ruble, Saudi Arabian riyal, South African rand, Singapore dollar, Swedish krona, Swiss franc, Turkish lira, UAE dirham, and Thai baht is as follows: The CFETS, before the daily interbank foreign exchange market opens, asks for quotes from market makers of the corresponding currencies in the interbank foreign exchange market, eliminates the highest and lowest quotes, takes the average of the remaining market makers' quotes, and obtains the daily RMB midrates against the corresponding currencies. The midrate against the Hong Kong dollar is determined by the CFETS through cross-rates based, respectively, on the day's midrate of the RMB against the US dollar and the exchange rate for the US dollar against the Hong Kong dollar on international foreign exchange markets at 9:00 a.m. The regional trading reference rates for the Kazakhstani tenge, Mongolian tögrög, and Cambodian riel are determined by the CFETS by asking for quotes from quoting banks before the opening quote and then taking a simple average of the quotes. The CFETS publishes its exchange rate index, and other RMB indices based on the Bank for International Settlements currency basket and the SDR currency basket. The number of currencies included in the CFETS RMB currency basket was increased from 13 to 24 in 2017. The new currencies account for about 21% of the new basket and are included as they have become directly traded in the onshore foreign exchange market in 2016.

Monetary aggregate target	Yes.	The Law of the People's Republic of China on the PBC stipulates that "the aim of monetary policies must be to maintain the stability of the value of the currency and thereby promote economic growth." The current reality in China requires that monetary policy take into account multiple objectives such as inflation, growth, employment, balance of payments, and also set aside space for financial stability and financial reforms. Therefore, in developing and implementing monetary policies, the PBC needs to consider multiple factors such as currency stability and economic growth and to properly adjust the weights of each objective according to key tasks of economic management.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

In recent years, the PBC has continued to refine the modern monetary policy framework in pursuit of the ultimate goal of a stable currency. It explicitly maintains the intermediate objective of matching the growth in money supply and total social financing to the nominal growth rate and continues to refine the policy rate system involving a short-term rate (open market operations rate) and a medium-term rate (medium-term lending facility rate). This provides guidance to the market interest rates, which float around the pivotal policy rates. Together with robust mechanisms for the formation and transmission of market interest rates, and refined mechanisms for adjustments in money supply, these PBC systems form an organic whole, providing a positive monetary and financial environment for high-quality economic growth.

In regional trading, the price of the RMB against the Kazakhstani tenge, the Mongolian tögrög, and the Cambodian riel floats within a 10% band around the respective reference rates.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	As of the end of June 2023, 523 banks were qualified to engage in spot foreign exchange settlement and sales operations. Of these, 127 are qualified to initiate forward and swap transactions for their customers. Banks may determine their RMB exchange rates to the US dollar with their clients without any limit on the spread, based on market supply and demand. In August 2008, the State Administration of Foreign Exchange (SAFE) launched a pilot project to license institutions to provide foreign currency conversion services to individuals. As of the end of June 2023, there were 52 institutions across the country licensed to provide such services. These institutions are only permitted to handle banknote conversion transactions for individuals; they are not permitted to handle foreign currency payments and transfers, maintain accounts abroad, or engage in foreign exchange transactions directly with the PBC. The licensed institutions may freely determine the currencies they trade unless otherwise required by the State, and set their exchange rates according to relevant regulations of the PBC and SAFE regarding banks' exchange rates. Foreign CBs (monetary authorities) and other reserve management institutions, international financial organizations, and sovereign wealth funds may enter the Chinese interbank foreign exchange market and initiate various types of foreign exchange transactions, including forward, swap, and option, through one or more of the following three avenues: through the PBC as their agent, through a Chinese interbank foreign exchange market member as their agent, and by directly becoming a foreign member of the Chinese interbank foreign exchange market. Transaction methods include OTC and price-matching, without limits on the amount. Foreign banks can apply for membership of the CFETS, and can then participate directly in the foreign currency interbank market; or they may apply for membership of the CFETS and then participate in the market through an agent. Foreign nonbank financial institutions can apply for membership of the CFETS and can then participate in the foreign currency interbank market through an agent.

Interbank market	Yes.	Within the trading band, banks may independently decide the buying and selling prices for interbank market transactions based on market supply and demand. As of the end of June 2023, 750 institutions have been approved as participants on the interbank spot markets. Direct trading of the following foreign currencies against the renminbi has been launched on the interbank foreign exchange market. The interbank foreign exchange market launched direct trading of the RMB against Malaysian ringgit (August 19, 2010), Russian ruble (November 22, 2010), Thai baht (originally a regional trading currency, direct trading began on February 5, 2018), Japanese yen (June 1, 2012), Australian dollar (April 10, 2013), New Zealand dollar (March 19, 2014), pound sterling (June 19, 2014), euro (September 30, 2014), Singapore dollar (October 28, 2014), Swiss francs (November 10, 2015), South African rand (June 20, 2016), Korean won (June 27, 2016), UAE dirham (September 26, 2016), Saudi Arabian riyal (September 26, 2016), Canadian dollar (November 14, 2016), Hungarian forint, Polish zloty, Danish krone, Swedish krona, Norwegian krone, Turkish lira, and Mexican peso (all on December 12, 2016). The midrate of the trading band does not need to be between bank's bid and ask price. Market makers propose their quotes based on market prices.
Over the counter	Yes.	The interbank market may operate over the counter.
Brokerage	Yes.	The interbank market may operate by means of a bid-offer method.
Market making	Yes.	The SAFE has adjusted the market making system to better exploit the potential of existing market makers. It no longer assigns market makers to specific products, but encourages market makers to expand their capacity for trading and market making across all product categories. It has also adjusted its mechanisms for testing, licensing, and delicensing market making organizations. As of the end of June 2023, 25 banks have been approved as market makers on the interbank markets. Market makers may operate in foreign exchange spot markets, futures markets, swap markets, and forward markets, depending on their capacity and capabilities. As of the same date, there are currently 25 banks providing market-making services in the RMB spot trade foreign exchange market; 20 in the options market; and 7 in the swap market.

Forward exchange market	Yes.	Banks may offer their customers products such as RMB–foreign currency forward transactions, foreign exchange swaps, and currency swaps and options. Foreign CBs (monetary authorities) and other reserve management institutions, international financial organizations, and sovereign wealth funds may enter the Chinese interbank foreign exchange market and initiate various types of foreign exchange transactions, including forward, swap, and option, through one or more of the following three avenues: through the PBC as their agent, through a Chinese interbank foreign exchange market member as their agent, and by directly becoming a foreign member of the Chinese interbank foreign exchange market. Transaction methods include OTC and price-matching, without limits on the amount. Foreign banks can apply for membership of the CFETS, and can then participate directly in the foreign currency interbank market; or they may apply for membership of the CFETS and then participate in the market through an agent. Foreign nonbank financial institutions can apply for membership of the CFETS and can then participate in the foreign currency interbank market through an agent. Financial institutions (including finance companies) that sell foreign exchange forwards to their clients must deposit foreign exchange risk reserves. The risk reserve ratio is currently 20%. The calculation should be based on the amount of contracted forward foreign exchange sales of the previous month and the reserves should be deposited in dollars with the PBC. The holding period of the foreign exchange risk reserve is one year and the interest rate is tentatively set at 0. Domestic institutions approved by the SAFE for derivatives business of RMB against foreign exchange for customers are allowed to handle foreign exchange derivatives business for foreign institutional investors if they meet the conditions for settlement agents in the interbank market set out in the Announcement No. 3 of the PBC [2016].
Official cover of forward operations	No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.	Pursuant to the Regulations of the People's Republic of China on the Administration of Foreign Exchange, for all cross-border trade (including border trade), there are no restrictions on the foreign currencies that can be used. In cross-border transactions, contractual parties may agree to use freely convertible currencies or RMB. When transnational trading companies carry out cross-border trade with foreign trading agencies, they may value and settle accounts in freely convertible currencies, the currency of the neighboring country, or RMB.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	Yes.
For current transactions and payments	No.	Enterprises and individuals in all regions of China may settle cross-border transactions for current account items using RMB because the deregulation of personal cross-border receipts and payments of renminbi under current accounts became complete under Yin Fa

For capital transactions	Yes.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	Yes.	RMB may be used for both outward and inward FDI. Eligible institutions outside mainland China may invest in China subject to conditions. Qualified investors that meet the conditions listed in PBC Announcement [2016] No. 3, including financial institutions legally registered and established outside China, such as commercial banks, insurance companies, securities companies, fund management companies, and other asset management institutions, sell investment products to clients according to law and in compliance with rules and regulations, and other medium- and long-term institutional investors approved by the PBC, such as pension funds, charitable funds, and endowment funds, may engage in bond and spot bond trading approved by the PBC on the interbank bond market. All types of foreign institutional investors can also carry out transactions such as bond lending, bond forwards, forward interest rate agreements, and interest rate swaps based on hedging needs, without investment limits. RMB clearing banks may participate in the domestic interbank lending market. Foreign RMB clearing banks and foreign participating banks may carry out spot securities trading and bond repo business in the interbank bond market. Foreign CBs or monetary authorities, international financial organizations, and sovereign wealth funds may conduct transactions permitted by the PBC on the interbank market, including spot bond trading, bond repos, and bond lending, without restriction on the amounts. The financing ratio of domestic correspondent banks with respect to the renminbi accounts of foreign participating banks must not exceed 3% of the domestic correspondent bank's total renminbi deposits at the end of the previous year. China Securities Regulatory Commission (CSRC), PBC, and SAFE Decree [2006] No. 176 and CSRC Announcement [2020] No. 63 expanded the range of financial instruments in which the PBC permits QFIIs/RQFIIs to invest. QFIIs/RQFIIs may invest in domestic securities and futures markets, including: shares, depositary receipts, bonds, bond repo, and bonds with warrants traded or sold on securities exchanges; shares and other securities on the National Equities Exchange and Quotations (NEEQ); products on the interbank bond markets in which the PBC permits QFIIs/RQFIIs to invest; bond, interest rate, and foreign exchange derivatives; publicly traded investment funds; financial futures traded on Chinese financial futures exchanges; commodity futures contracts traded on futures exchanges approved by the CSRC; options traded on exchanges approved by the State Council or the CSRC; foreign exchange derivatives for hedging purposes that the CSRC permits QFIIs/RQFIIs to trade; and other financial instruments as permitted by the CSRC. Announcement Concerning Matters Related to Further Facilitating Investment in Chinese Bond Markets by Foreign Institutional Investors (PBC, CSRC, SAFE Announcement [2022] No. 4) specifies that foreign institutional investors granted access to the interbank bond market may invest and trade in the bond market either directly or through a market connect. Domestic banks, securities, and insurance institutions may invest in external capital markets as qualified domestic institutional investors (QDIIs) or RMB qualified domestic institutional investors (RQDIIs). QDIIs have an overall total limit on the size of their investments (currently US$180 billion), but RQDIIs have no size limit. However, they need to invest in security products denominated in RMB. As of

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

		September 30, 2023, a total of 186 QDIIs had obtained limits totaling US$165.519 billion. On April 30, 2018, the PBC published Yin Ban Fa [2018] No. 81, perfecting and clarifying that QDIIs can use RMB to invest in offshore financial products valued in RMB. On May 2, 2018, the Shanghai headquarters of the PBC published the supporting Shanghai Headquarters Notice (2018) No. 1, clarifying requirements related to macroprudential management and information disclosures of RQDIIs. Hong Kong institutions and individuals may invest in domestic A shares through Hong Kong brokerage agencies and institutions (northbound Shanghai stock connect and Shenzhen stock connect), and domestic institutions and individuals may invest in Hong Kong shares through domestic securities companies (southbound HK stock connect). The Shanghai–Hong Kong and Shenzhen-Hong Kong stock connects have a daily cap on investments, and investment targets are limited. To support competent domestic institutions in carrying out various types of outbound investments, in additional to the QDII scheme, the SAFE has launched Qualified Domestic Investment Entity (QDIE) pilots in Shenzhen and QDLP in Shanghai, Beijing, Hainan, Chongqing, Jiangsu, Guangdong (exc. Shenzhen), Qingdao, and Ningbo since 2013. These programs enable domestic investors who meet qualifications to raise funds domestically and invest them abroad in securities, private equity, commodities, and real estate. The QDLP/QDIE schemes are currently pilot operations; the SAFE exercises regional quota controls, and the competent local financial administrative authorities have led the formation of joint review teams charged with managing the qualifications of qualified institutions and individual institution quotas within the pilot regions. The total approved QDLP/QDIE quota is currently US$54 billion. In October 2013, a quota of US$1 billion was set for the QDLP pilot in Shanghai. In December 2014, a quota of US$1 billion was set for the QDIE pilot in Shenzhen. In April 2018, the quotas for QDLP in Shanghai and QDIE in Shenzhen were both raised to US$5 billion. In December 2019, a quota of US$5 billion was set for the QDLP scheme in Beijing. In November 2020, the quotas for QDLP/QDIE in Shanghai, Shenzhen, and Beijing were all raised to US$10 billion. In December 2020, quotas of US$5 billion were set for the QDLP schemes in Hainan and Chongqing. In March 2021, new QDLP pilots began in Qingdao (US$3 billion), Jiangsu (US$5 billion), and Guangdong (ex. Shenzhen) (US$5 billion). In June 2021, a quota of US$1 billion was set for a QDLP scheme in Ningbo.

The northbound Swap Connect is subject to a daily transaction limit.
Credit operations	Yes.	RMB cross-border lending by domestic companies requires registration at the local branch of the SAFE. The sum of their offshore RMB and foreign currency lending should not exceed 30% of shareholder's equity as indicated by the audited financial statements of the previous year. Additional requirements on the loan's objectives, funding sources, lending period, usage, withdrawal, etc., are also in place. Domestic correspondent banks may offer RMB financing accounts to banks participating in foreign RMB operations within certain limits and maturities. Domestic enterprises and financial institutions may, subject to macroprudential policies, attract RMB funds from abroad. Domestic parent banks or head offices may provide RMB liquidity support to foreign RMB clearing banks. Within the present institutional framework of foreign debt and foreign lending, resident enterprises may use RMB to manage cross-border credit business. Legal person financial institutions and enterprises in China can freely carry out cross-border financing in RMB or in foreign currencies within the limit determined by their capital and net assets, without being subject to PBC and SAFE advance review and approval requirement. Domestic banks may freely conduct domestic and foreign currency cross-border financing within the limit determined by their Tier 1 capital or working capital, without being subject to PBC and SAFE advance review and approval requirement. Multinational enterprise groups, in accordance with their own operational and management needs, may engage in currency (RMB/foreign) pooling transactions with member enterprises both domestically and abroad. (1) The macroprudential adjustment parameter for overseas loans by domestic enterprises was increased from 0.3 to 0.5 on January 5, 2021. (2) As of February 4, 2021, the regulation of renminbi-denominated overseas loans has been simplified. Loans repaid ahead of schedule are not counted in the loan quota for domestic companies making overseas renminbi loans; the currency conversion factor has been adjusted to 0.5. (3) As of February 4, 2021, refinements have been made under the regulation of renminbi-denominated overseas borrowing by domestic enterprises. Domestic enterprises may open multiple renminbi accounts if required to handle a single renminbi loan borrowed overseas; they may also use a single renminbi account to handle receipts and payments connected to multiple overseas renminbi loans. (4) Effective April 18, 2022, non-financial enterprises may use a single foreign currency account to receive loan payments from multiple separate overseas loans.

Use of foreign exchange among residents	Yes.	The use of foreign exchange for pricing or settlement of transactions among residents is prohibited.
Payments arrangements	Yes.	By the end of 2020, the PBC had signed or renewed bilateral local currency swap agreements with CBs or the monetary authorities of 40 countries or regions, of which 25 are currently in effect.
Bilateral payments arrangements	No.
Operative	No.
Inoperative	No.
Regional arrangements	No.
Clearing agreements	Yes.	The PBC has established RMB clearing arrangements with the CBs or monetary authorities of 29 economies: Argentina, Australia, Canada, Chile, France, Germany Kong SAR, Hungary, Japan, Korea, Luxembourg, Macao SAR, Malaysia, Philippines, Qatar, Russia, Singapore, South Africa, Switzerland, Taiwan Province of China, Thailand, UAE, the United Kingdom, the United States, Zambia, Laos, Kazakhstan, Pakistan, and Brazil.
Barter agreements and open accounts	No.
Administration of control	Yes.	The SAFE is responsible for foreign exchange administration, under the direction of the PBC.
Payments arrears	No.
Official	No.
Private	No.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.	Domestic gold transactions are organized on a market basis. Enterprises and individuals may transact in gold spot and spot-deferred products on the Shanghai Gold Exchange, gold futures products on the Shanghai Futures Exchange, and OTC gold products at commercial banks.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	No.	Enterprises with a business registration may independently produce, process, or engage in the production, processing, sale, or resale of gold products. The government protects individuals' holdings of legitimately obtained gold or silver.
On external trade	Yes.	Imports of gold require PBC approval. Individuals may carry gold in and out of the country for their own use, subject to a reasonable limit.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.
On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Individuals may not take out more than Y 20,000 from China.
Foreign currency	Yes.	Foreign currency cash not exceeding the amount declared on the most recent entry may be taken out without a foreign currency holding certificate (FCHC). Customs clearance is required for larger amounts or in the absence of a record as follows:

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

		(1) Foreign currency cash not exceeding the equivalent of US$5,000 may be taken out without an application for an FCHC and customs clearance. (2) Foreign currency cash exceeding the equivalent of US$5,000 up to and including the equivalent of US$10,000 may be taken out with an FCHC issued by a bank. (3) In general, cash exceeding the equivalent of US$10,000 may not be carried out of the country, but under special circumstances established by law and regulations, application for an FCHC may be made at the local SAFE office.
On imports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Residents and nonresidents may bring into China up to RMB 20,000.
Foreign currency	Yes.	Persons entering China with foreign currency cash equivalent to more than US$5,000 must declare it in writing to customs, except those going and returning several times on the same day or within a short period of time, who should make a written declaration on their second and all subsequent entries for any amount of cash.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Held domestically	Yes.	Resident institutions setting up foreign exchange accounts for current account transactions and resident individuals setting up foreign exchange savings accounts, etc., do not need to register with or be approved by the SAFE. Resident individuals may, with valid identification documents, open foreign exchange savings accounts. Cumulative withdrawals of foreign currency by individuals not exceeding the equivalent of US$10,000 a day can be transacted directly at banks. Under exceptional circumstances defined by law, individuals may file in advance with the bank's local foreign exchange bureau to make withdrawals that exceed a total of US$10,000. Filings must include the individual's valid identification document and an explanation of the purpose of the cash withdrawals.
Approval required	Yes.	Mainland institutions opening foreign exchange accounts for capital account transactions must register with or be approved by the SAFE. Generally, mainland institutions open an account for current account trading directly with the bank. Only a small number of special business current accounts (offshore foreign exchange accounts) require SAFE approval. To borrow and raise external debt, a domestic bank may directly open the necessary accounts in domestic or foreign banks and follow the procedures of drawing and repaying external debt.
Held abroad	Yes.
Approval required	Yes.	Export enterprises may open foreign exchange accounts abroad to deposit proceeds from bona fide and legitimate export transactions with SAFE registration. To deposit the foreign exchange export revenues abroad, enterprises should meet the following requirements: (1) Export revenues must be legally-compliant and accurately reported; they must have a genuine need to make payments overseas in compliance with relevant regulations. (2) They must not have violated the foreign exchange management rules in the past two years. To deposit foreign exchange revenues abroad, services and trade enterprises should meet the following requirements: (1) Foreign Exchange revenues from services or trade must be legally-compliant and accurately reported; they must have a genuine need to make payments overseas in compliance with relevant regulations. (2) They must not have violated the foreign exchange management rules in the past two years. Domestic group companies in compliance with the conditions above may nominate a single corporate entity to manage all overseas receipts and payments for other domestic group members that make overseas deposits.

Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	Yes.	Resident entities may deposit their RMB proceeds received from RMB cross-border transactions in their offshore accounts without SAFE approval/registration.
Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	When making external payments, institutions and individuals must present valid evidence and commercial documents to banks to convert domestic currency to foreign currency. Current account transactions do not require permission, but capital account transactions require permission or registration; cross-border payments for direct investment require registration with SAFE or a bank. The registration serves information collection and statistical purposes. For cases subject to registration, institutions need only to comply with the relevant laws and regulations. Because approval involves market access, the authorities have the discretion to grant approval (for example, QDII quota). Facilitated exchange annual quota controls are in place for the settlement of foreign exchange by individuals and the purchase of foreign exchange by domestic individuals. The annual facilitated quota is the equivalent of US$50,000 per individual a year. Within the annual facilitated quota, these transactions can be completed at the bank based on valid identification; for current accounts, transactions that do not use the facilitated quota can be completed at the bank based on valid identification and documentation of the existence of a trading quota; under capital accounts, such transactions are completed in accordance with the relevant regulations concerning individual foreign exchange controls for capital accounts.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	Overseas individuals with valid identification documents may open foreign exchange savings accounts in banks. Domestic banks that open foreign exchange accounts for foreign institutions should verify the documents provided such as their proof of legal registration abroad. Pursuant to the Notice of the SAFE Concerning Questions Related to the Administration of Foreign Exchange Accounts of Foreign Institutions, without approval, funds in the domestic foreign exchange accounts of foreign institutions (as referred to in this document—institutions legally registered and established outside China (including the Hong Kong, Macau, and Taiwan regions)) must not be directly or covertly used for foreign exchange settlements. Foreign institutions in free trade zones (FTZs) are permitted to settle foreign exchange using their domestic foreign exchange accounts on a trial basis. Where RMB is remitted onshore for use after settlements of foreign exchange, domestic banks must first review the valid commercial documents and vouchers of domestic institutions and domestic individuals concerned before processing the transactions, in accordance with the relevant provisions on cross-border transactions.

Approval required	Yes.	On registration by SAFE or a bank, foreign investors may establish foreign exchange accounts to retain foreign exchange related to direct investment.
Domestic currency accounts	Yes.	Hong Kong and Macao RMB business clearing banks may open RMB clearing accounts with the PBC; other RMB clearing banks may open RMB clearing accounts at their China head office or at branches designated by their China head offices. Domestic correspondent banks may open RMB interbank current accounts for foreign participating banks and act as agents for foreign participating banks to carry out cross-border RMB payments. Account financing is also available on correspondent bank accounts. Foreign participating banks may use RMB funds from RMB cross-border trade and investment business including RMB funds in domestic interbank current accounts to invest in China's interbank bond market subject to conditions. Nonresidents who engage in cross-border RMB business settlements may open RMB bank settlement accounts domestically. Foreign CBs and similar institutional investors investing in the interbank bond and foreign exchange markets may open special RMB deposit accounts at the PBC or at commercial banks.
Convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	Foreign individuals may convert and transfer abroad RMB (1) obtained from their legitimate current transactions in China and (2) originally converted but not yet completely used, in accordance with the relevant SAFE regulations. Nonresident enterprises may convert to foreign exchange RMB funds deposited on settlement accounts in domestic banks and transfer abroad. Domestic correspondent banks and nonresident clearing banks may process trade of goods and services and direct investments for nonresident participating banks and enter China's interbank foreign exchange market to clear their positions.
Approval required	Yes.	Foreign institutions issuing RMB bonds in China may follow rules and open nonresident RMB accounts to deposit proceeds from bond issuance.
Blocked accounts	No.

Import licenses used as exchange licenses	No.
Other	No.
Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.
Positive list	Yes.	The positive list is for goods that can be imported freely.
Negative list	Yes.	The negative list includes goods for which imports are prohibited or restricted. Goods prohibited for import include tiger bones, rhinoceros' horns, opium, asbestos, carbon tetrachloride, old clothing, asphalt macadam, urban garbage, coin-operated electronic game machines, used CRT glass bulbs, and used overheated boilers (for details, see the Index of Prohibited Imports). In addition, the importation of the following items is prohibited: weapons; ammunition and explosives; manuscripts; printed and recorded materials; and films that are deemed detrimental to Chinese political, economic, cultural, or moral interests. Goods for which imports are restricted may be imported if a permit is obtained.
Open general licenses	Yes.	Such licenses are applicable to certain categories of old electrical products.
Licenses with quotas	Yes.	Such licenses apply to substances that deplete the ozone layer.
Other nontariff measures	Yes.	China implements inspections, quarantines, and certifications with regard to import products according to the law. An import quarantine approval system is applied to high-risk plants and animals, and related products.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	Based on the Regulations of the People's Republic of China on Import and Export Tariffs, import tariffs may follow the MFN rates, agreed rates, preferential rates, regular rates, quota rates, or provisional rates. MFN duty rates apply to imported goods originating in WTO member countries that are subject to the MFN clause, import goods originating in countries or regions with which China has bilateral trade agreements for reciprocal MFN treatment, and goods originating in the customs territory of China. Agreed duty rates apply to imported goods originating in countries or regions with which China has regional trade agreements that include preferential duty clauses. Special preferential duty rates apply to imported goods originating in countries or regions with which China has trade agreements that include special preferential duty clauses. General duty rates apply to imported goods originating in countries or regions other than those with MFN rates, agreed rates, and preferential rates and to imported goods of undetermined origin. Import tariff quota controls are in effect for wheat, corn, rice, sugar, cotton, wool, wool top, and chemical fertilizer, and within the tariff quota, the tariff quota duty rate applies to imported goods subject to tariff quotas. (The tariff rate for imports subject to tariff quota depends on quantity imported. A lower tariff rate applies to imports below a certain threshold volume and a higher tariff applies to imports above the threshold volume. There are no quantitative restrictions.) Provisional rates may be applied to imported goods subject to MFN rates, agreed rates, preferential rates, and tariff quota rates for specified time periods.

Taxes collected through the exchange system	No.
State import monopoly	Yes.	In accordance with the relevant laws, regulations, and China's WTO accession protocol, state trading is in effect for importing activities involving the following products: grain (wheat, corn, and rice), crude oil, oil products, sugar, tobacco, chemical fertilizers, and cotton.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Foreign exchange proceeds of resident entities may be repatriated to China or deposited abroad; the conditions and terms for deposit abroad are regulated by the SAFE based on the international balance of payments status and foreign exchange management needs. Domestic entities with bona fide and legitimate export revenues and external payment needs in line with foreign exchange regulations, and which have not violated the foreign exchange regulations in the past two years, may open accounts abroad and deposit the proceeds from bona fide and legitimate transactions after registration with SAFE. The registration needs to be revised in case the total funds deposited abroad annually exceed the amount of funds originally registered with SAFE. Resident entities may freely determine the period for keeping their deposit abroad, except when SAFE requires the repatriation of the funds because the entity violated the regulations. The RMB revenue of resident entities and individuals may be repatriated to China or deposited externally without PBC or SAFE approval.
Surrender requirements	No.	Resident entities may retain foreign exchange revenue from current account transactions in foreign exchange demand deposit accounts.
Surrender to the central bank	No.
Surrender to authorized dealers	No.
Financing requirements	No.
Documentation requirements	Yes.
Letters of credit	No.
Guarantees	No.
Domiciliation	No.
Preshipment inspection	No.
Other	Yes.	The SAFE registers and maintains a list of resident institutions that have trade receipts and payments in foreign currencies and publishes the list through an electronic information platform for financial institutions. Institutions registered at the SAFE on this list may sell their foreign-currency-denominated export proceeds for RMB or deposit them in foreign exchange settlement accounts.
Export licenses	Yes.
Without quotas	Yes.	Foreign trade operators exporting goods including live cattle (to markets other than Hong Kong or Macau), live pigs (to markets other than Hong Kong or Macau), live chickens (to markets other than Hong Kong), beef, pork, or chicken meat, natural sand (including standard sand), bauxite, phosphate rock, magnesia sand, talc lump (powder), fluorite (fluorspar), rare earth, tin and tin products, tungsten and tungsten products, molybdenum and molybdenum products, antimony and antimony products, coke, refined oil (lubricating oil, lubricating grease, base oil for lubricating oil), paraffin, some metals and metallic products, disodium sulfate, silicon carbide, substances that deplete the ozone layer, citric acid, silver, platinum (exported using the processing trade method), indium and indium products, motorcycles (including all-terrain vehicles) and their engines and frames, automobiles (including knocked-down kits) and their chassis must apply for and obtain export permits according to regulations.

With quotas	Yes.	Exporters of the following products may apply for an export license only if they have documentary evidence of a quota allocation: live cattle (to Hong Kong/Macau), live pigs (to Hong Kong/Macau), live chickens (to Hong Kong/Macau), wheat, maize, rice, wheat flour, maize flour, rice flour, cultivated Ephedra sinica for medicinal use, coal, crude oil, refined petroleum products (excluding lubricating oil, lubricating grease, and lubricating base oil), sawn timber, cotton; exporters of the following products may apply for an export license only if they have documentary evidence of a successful bid for a quota allocation: licorice and licorice products, mat rush and mat rush products.
Export taxes	Yes.	Export duty rates have been established for the taxation of exports. Provisional duty rates may be applied to export goods for a specified time period.
Collected through the exchange system	No.
Other export taxes	Yes.	Export rebates are standard international practice, conform to WTO rules and requirements, and do not constitute an export subsidy. If the legally prescribed VAT rate is not exceeded, China implements full tax rebates for the majority of export cargo; at the same time, to promote environmental protection, tax rebates are not offered for certain export products, to reflect the environmental pollution caused by the products in the cost of exporting them. China continues to refine its export rebate policy to deliver higher quality growth in international trade. Export rebates for export of goods were offered at three levels: 13%, 9%, and 0%.

Payments for Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Controls on these transfers	Yes.	Regulations for non-trade payments are the same for foreign-owned and domestically owned enterprises. There are separate rules for individuals. Facilitated exchange annual quota controls are in place for the settlement of foreign exchange by individuals and the purchase of foreign exchange by domestic individuals. The annual facilitated quota is the equivalent of US$50,000 per individual a year. Within the annual facilitated quota, such transactions can be completed at the bank based on valid identification; for current accounts, transactions that do not use the facilitated quota can be completed at the bank based on valid identification and documentation of the existence of a trading quota.
Trade-related payments	Yes.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Payments in foreign exchange can be made directly through authorized banks by presenting valid proof and commercial bills. No transaction evidence is needed for trade-related RMB cross-border

Shares or other securities of a participating nature	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The procedures for repatriation of profits by QFIIs and RQFIIs investing in Chinese securities have been significantly simplified. They are no longer required to submit documentation such as audit reports from a registered Chinese accountant and tax certificates; they must simply sign a commitment to file and pay all relevant taxes. CSRC, PBC, and SAFE Decree [2006] No. 176 and CSRC Announcement [2020] No. 63 expanded the range of financial instruments in which the PBC permits QFIIs/RQFIIs to invest. QFIIs/RQFIIs may invest in domestic securities markets, including: shares, depositary receipts, bonds, bond repo, and bonds with warrants traded or sold on securities exchanges; shares and other securities on the NEEQ; products on the interbank bond markets in which the PBC permits QFIIs/RQFIIs to invest; bond, interest rate, and foreign exchange derivatives; publicly traded investment funds; financial futures traded on Chinese financial futures exchanges; commodity futures contracts traded on futures exchanges approved by the CSRC; options traded on exchanges approved by the State Council or the CSRC; foreign exchange derivatives for hedging purposes that the CSRC permits QFIIs/RQFIIs to trade; and other financial instruments as permitted by the CSRC. Investment in domestic securities by QFIIs/RQFIIs or other overseas investors are subject to the following restrictions on equity shares: (1) No single QFII/RQFII or other overseas investor may hold more than a 10% share of the total shares of listed company and (2) all QFIIs/RQFIIs or other overseas investors may not hold a total that exceeds 30% a company's A shares, or of all of its shares listed on domestic exchanges. Foreign investors may make strategic investments in A shares of domestically listed companies, but are subject to the following restrictions. (1) Investors must (a) be legally incorporated and operating foreign legal entities or other organizations that are financially sound and have good credit and mature management experience; (b) have actual offshore assets totaling no less than US$100 million or actual offshore assets under management totaling no less than US$500 million, parent company actual offshore assets totaling no less than US$100 million, or actual offshore assets under management totaling no less than US$500 million; (c) have a sound governance structure and good internal control systems with standardized operations; and (d) have received no material penalties from domestic or foreign regulatory agencies in the past three years (including parent company). (2) A shares of the listed company must be acquired through acquisition under contract or acquisition through issuance of new shares by the listed company or by other means set forth in national laws and regulations. (3) Investment may take place in installments; the percentage of shares obtained on completion of the first installment may not be less than 10% of the company's shares issued and outstanding, with the exception of special industries with specific requirements or with approval of the relevant authority. (4) A shares of the listed company may not be transferred for three years. (5) Investors' shareholdings may not exceed the limits stipulated by law or regulations, and investment is not allowed in listed companies in areas prohibited by law or regulations. (6) Shareholders of government-owned shares in listed companies must comply with the relevant regulations.

In August 2018, the CSRC amended the Measures for the Administration of Equity Incentives of Listed Companies, permitting listed companies to extend equity incentives to non-Chinese employees working outside China as well as those working in China. The Measures for the Administration of Registration and Settlement of Securities were also amended at the same time, permitting foreign natural persons working outside China to open trading accounts for A shares. In February 2019, the PBC and SAFE issued the Regulation on the Administration of Funds for Equity Incentives for Foreign Employees of Domestic Listed Companies, setting out the principles for the administration of funds used in equity incentive plans for the foreign employees of domestic listed companies.

Since November 2014, investors from the Mainland and Hong Kong SAR can invest in Hong Kong and Shanghai stock markets, respectively (SH–HK stock connect), under certain conditions and within the limit jointly published by the CSRC and the Hong Kong Securities and Futures Commission. Since December 2016, when certain conditions are met, investors from the Hong Kong SAR may invest in the Shenzhen stock market and vice versa (SZ–HK stock connect). The overall quota for the SH–HK stock connect was abolished in August 2016, while SZ–HK stock connect was established without overall limits, but both schemes have daily quotas: for the Shanghai and Shenzhen component RMB 52 billion and for the Hong Kong component RMB 42 billion.

Foreign investors may complete foreign exchange fund exchange and foreign exchange risk hedging operations at Hong Kong renminbi clearing banks or participating banks, incorporated into renminbi purchase and sales operations. Global Depository Receipts (GDR): Based on the objective of hedging risk, overseas securities institutions engaged in cross-border conversion operations may buy and sell underlying stocks and permitted investment products corresponding to depositary receipts in accordance with the requirements of the relevant competent authorities. The CSRC sets an upper bound on the total level of GDR assets that may circulate on the domestic market. The first GDR was issued by Huatai Securities on June 17, 2019, and has been eligible for cross-border conversion since October 17, 2019. The Measures for the Administration of the Cross-Border Funds for Depositary Receipts (Provisional) (PBC and SAFE Announcement [2019] No. 8) were published on May 27, 2019.

		of Chinese Depository Receipts (CDRs) by innovative enterprises, making arrangements for the issuance, public offering, and trading of CDRs, setting forth the basic conditions and procedures for CDR offerings, and producing the general requirements for the use of CDRs to engage in refinancing. Subsequently, the PBC and the SAFE issued regulations concerning the administration of cross-border funding of depositary receipts. In October 2018, the CSRC published the Regulatory Provisions of the CSRC on the Interconnection Depositary Receipt Business of the Shanghai Stock Exchange (SSE) and the London Stock Exchange (LSE) (Provisional) (CSRC Announcement [2018] No. 30), clarifying the institutional arrangements related to CDRs under the terms of Shanghai–London connect, including review and approval of offerings, listing and trading, information disclosures, cross-border exchange, and registration and clearing. Effective February 11, 2022, as part of the project of opening up capital markets, the CSRC expanded and enhanced the Shanghai-London Stock Connect. In China, the mechanism was extended to the Shenzhen Stock Exchange; overseas, it was extended to the Swiss and German markets. Regulatory Provisions of the CSRC on the Interconnection Depositary Receipt Business of the SSE and the LSE (Provisional) was amended; the amended regulation has been renamed Provisions on the Supervision and Administration of Depository Receipts under the Stock Connect Scheme between Domestic and Overseas Stock Exchange, and was published and promulgated on February 11, 2022. Capital raised by foreign issuers of domestic CDRs based on new securities can be remitted abroad in renminbi or foreign currencies and may also be retained for use domestically. In accordance with the dividends and allotments distributed by a foreign issuer, the domestic depository trustee of CDRs may provide corresponding services to the holders of CDRs and process the receipts, payments, and currency conversions of the related funds.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	Overseas-listed companies controlled by foreign shareholders may repurchase their overseas-listed and traded shares, provided the SAFE verifies the source of the funds and approves payment abroad. Insurance companies may invest overseas subject to approval. The aggregate balance of insurance companies' overseas investment may not exceed 15% of the insurance company's total assets at the end of the previous quarter, and the total amount of actual investment must not exceed the investment payment limit approved by the SAFE. A solvency-based differentiated proportional supervision policy has been instituted for the book value of insurance companies' investments in equity-type assets (previously no more than 30% of the company's total assets at the end of the previous quarter), and the book value of major equity investments must not exceed the company's net assets at the end of the previous quarter; the book value does not include investments in insurance enterprise stock made using the insurance company's own funds. The book values of investments in single fixed-income assets, equity-type assets, fixed assets, and other financial assets must not exceed 5% of the company's total assets at the end of the previous quarter. Single-asset investments refer to investments in single, specific investment varieties among the major investment asset categories. For investment varieties issued in installments, the book value of single-asset investments is the total amount invested in each installment period. A single investment in a single legal entity may not exceed 20% of the insurance company's total assets at the end of the previous quarter. Insurance fund offshore investment in equity-type assets includes equity instruments or products such as common stock, preferred stock, global depositary receipts, American depositary receipts, and equity of unlisted enterprises. When insurance institutions invest in foreign shares, the shares should be traded on the main board of the securities exchange in a specified country or region, or on the Hong Kong ChiNext board. Major investments are limited to equity of enterprises in the financial services, pension, health care, energy, resources, automotive services, new services, modern agriculture sectors, and insurance. In 2020, Notice of the China Banking and Insurance Regulatory Commission on Matters Concerning Financial Equity Investment with Insurance Funds removed limits on the scope of equity investment by insurance funds.

On approval, qualified fund management firms and other securities management organizations may, within limits, combine foreign exchange funds and RMB funds of resident entities and individuals and use the funds to engage in portfolio investment, including in stocks. QDIIs, including banks, fund management firms, securities companies, and insurance companies, may use foreign exchange to purchase stock and other investment instruments as permitted by regulations abroad within their respective SAFE-approved investment quotas and regulatory limits. As of September 30, 2023, a total of 186 QDIIs had obtained limits totaling US$165.519.

Under the RQDII system, foreign investments in RMB are not subject to quotas, overall limits, and internal limits on the financial instruments acquired and must be invested in RMB-denominated products in foreign financial markets.

The market value of securities issued by the same institution (except governments and international financial organizations) held by a single fund or collective plan may not exceed 10% of the net value of the fund or collective plan; funds and collective schemes must not buy securities with the intention to control or influence the institution that issues the security or its management. The entire fund or collective plan managed by the same domestic institutional investor may not hold more than 10% of the total volume of the same institution's voting securities. Index funds may not be subject to these restrictions.

On registration with the SAFE, domestic employees of domestic affiliates of foreign listed companies may participate in these companies' equity incentive programs and purchase shares or options under the terms of such programs.

Yin Ban Fa [2018] No. 81 further standardized matters related to the investment products, use of funds, macroprudential management, and information reporting for foreign securities investments of qualified renminbi investors. To support competent domestic institutions in carrying out various types of outbound investments, in additional to the QDII scheme, the SAFE has launched QDIE pilots in Shenzhen and QDLP in Shanghai, Beijing, Hainan, Chongqing, Jiangsu, Guangdong (exc. Shenzhen), and Qingdao since 2013. QDLP/QDIE programs enable domestic investors who meet qualifications to raise funds domestically and invest them abroad in securities, private equity, commodities, and real estate. The total approved QDLP/QDIE quota is currently US$54 billion. In October 2013, a quota of US$1 billion was set for the QDLP pilot in Shanghai. In December 2014, a quota of US$1 billion was set for the QDIE pilot in Shenzhen. In April 2018, the quotas for QDLP in Shanghai and QDIE in Shenzhen were both raised to US$5 billion. In December 2019, a quota of US$5 billion was set for the QDLP scheme in Beijing. In November 2020, the quotas for QDLP/QDIE in Shanghai, Shenzhen, and Beijing were all raised to US$10 billion. In December 2020, quotas of US$5 billion were set for the QDLP schemes in Hainan and Chongqing. In March 2021, new QDLP pilots began in Qingdao (US$3 billion), Jiangsu (US$5 billion), and Guangdong (ex. Shenzhen) (US$5 billion). In June 2021, a quota of US$1 billion was set for a QDLP scheme in Ningbo. CDRs: Based on the objective of hedging risk, domestic securities companies engaged in cross-border conversion operations may buy and sell the underlying stocks for depositary receipts and their permitted investment products; the balance of assets in overseas markets must not exceed the cap set by the CSRC.

Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	Effective March 31, 2023, domestic enterprises that issue stock overseas must file records with the regulator; global depositary receipts and the underlying shares must be registered; and global depositary receipts must be filed. Previously, approval by the CSRC and registration with the SAFE are required for the issuance of shares or depositary receipts abroad by resident enterprises. Funds originating from such issuance are not subject to the restrictions required for repatriation. Renminbi capital raised by domestic enterprises by issuing stocks abroad can be remitted into and used in China.
Bonds or other debt securities	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Foreign RMB clearing banks and foreign participating banks may carry out spot bond trading and bond repo business on the interbank bond market. The PBC and other monetary authorities, international financial organizations, and sovereign wealth funds may conduct other interbank market transactions permitted by the PBC, such as spot bond trading, bond repos, bond loans, bond forward and interest rate swaps, and forward rate agreements without restriction on the amounts. Various types of financial institutions legally registered and established outside China, such as commercial banks, insurance companies, securities companies, fund management companies, and other asset management institutions, the investment products issued by the aforementioned financial institutions to clients in compliance with rules and regulations, and other medium- and long-term institutional investors approved by the PBC, such as pension funds, charitable funds, and endowment funds, may conduct spot bond trading on the interbank bond market, and can also carry out transactions such as bond lending, forward bond, forward rate agreements, and interest rate swaps based on their hedging needs, with no investment limit. CSRC, PBC, and SAFE Decree [2006] No. 176 and CSRC Announcement [2020] No. 63 expanded the range of financial instruments in which the PBC permits QFIIs/RQFIIs to invest. QFIIs/RQFIIs may invest in domestic securities markets, including: shares, depositary receipts, bonds, bond repo, and bonds with warrants traded or sold on securities exchanges; shares and other securities on the NEEQ; products on the interbank bond markets in which the PBC permits QFIIs/RQFIIs to invest; bond, interest rate, and foreign exchange derivatives; publicly traded investment funds; financial futures traded on Chinese financial futures exchanges; commodity futures contracts traded on futures exchanges approved by the CSRC; options traded on exchanges approved by the State Council or the CSRC; foreign exchange derivatives for hedging purposes that the CSRC permits QFIIs/RQFIIs to trade; and other financial instruments as permitted by the CSRC.

These investors may also apply to participate in new stock offerings, convertible bond offerings, additional share offerings, allotments of shares, and other similar type investments. Such investments are subject to the upper limits on individual institutions.

Foreign CBs (monetary authorities) and other reserve management institutions, international financial organizations, and sovereign wealth funds may participate in all listed transactions without limits on the amounts through one or more of the following three avenues: through the PBC as their agent, through a commercial bank with international clearing qualifications and clearing agent qualifications, and through direct investment.

Foreign participating banks of RMB purchasing and selling business, after applying to the CFETS, can become members of the interbank foreign exchange market. They have access to all listed transaction products with no quota limits, but the transaction context is limited to the RMB purchasing and selling business. The arrangement of foreign RMB clearing banks was at the beginning a supportive arrangement for the RMB business in Hong Kong SAR and Macau SAR in 2003. In 2009, with the pilot program of cross-border RMB business, the arrangement was expanded. Direct investment by foreign investors in the interbank bond market has been gradually developed since 2016.

Indirect investment can be made in the domestic bond market by foreign investors through the bond market connect, with subject bonds comprising all bond types that can be traded and circulate on the domestic interbank bond market.

Effective June 30, 2022, foreign institutional investors granted access to the interbank bond market may invest and trade in the bond market either directly or through a market connect. This arrangement allows investors from mainland China and overseas to participate in each other's bond markets. "Northbound trading" has been permitted since July 2017, allowing investors from Hong Kong and other regions to invest in the China interbank bond market; "southbound trading" was launched in September 2021, enabling domestic institutions to invest in Hong Kong and global bond markets.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents — Yes.

Foreign governmental institutions, international development institutions, foreign financial institution corporations, and non-financial enterprise corporations can all issue RMB bonds on China's bond market. Of these, foreign financial institution corporations issuing bonds on the national interbank bond market should be approved by the PBC; foreign governmental institutions and international development institutions issuing relevant bonds on the national interbank bond market, and foreign non-financial enterprise corporations issuing non-financial corporate debt financing instruments on the national interbank bond market should apply to register with the National Association of Financial Market Institutional Investors. The National Association of Financial Market Institutional Investors issued guidelines that apply to issuances of renminbi bonds by foreign non-financial institutions, foreign government institutions, and international development agencies. On December 2015, the CSRC launched the pilot program to issue Panda Bonds on the exchange bond market; foreign institutions can issue Panda Bonds on the exchanges.

Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	QDIIs, which include banks, fund management firms, securities companies, and insurance companies, may purchase bonds abroad, within their respective SAFE-approved foreign exchange quotas and regulatory limits. For QDIIs, the net amount of funds remitted abroad by banks, securities dealers, and insurance companies for investment in securities may not exceed their approved investment limits. Insurance companies may invest overseas subject to approval. The aggregate balance of insurance companies' overseas investment may not exceed 15% of the insurance company's total assets at the end of the previous quarter, and the total amount of actual investment must not exceed the investment payment limit approved by the SAFE. The book values of investments in single fixed-income assets, equity-type assets, fixed assets, and other financial assets must not exceed 5% of the company's total assets at the end of the previous quarter. Single-asset investments refer to investments in single, specific investment varieties among the major investment asset categories. For investment varieties issued in installments, the book value of single-asset investments is the total amount invested in each installment period. A single investment in a single legal entity (domestic or overseas) may not exceed 20% of the insurance company's total assets at the end of the previous quarter. When insurance funds make offshore investments in fixed-income products such as government bonds, government-backed bonds, international financial institution bonds, corporate bonds, or convertible bonds, the currency of denomination need not be a major international currency; bonds should have a BBB- or BBB-equivalent rating from an internationally-recognized ratings agency. In the event that an issue is exempt from credit rating requirements in accordance with regulations, the issuer should have a credit rating not less than this bond credit rating requirement. Bonds issued abroad by the Chinese government are not subject to credit rating restrictions. Convertible bonds should be listed and traded on the required main board market of national or regional securities exchanges. As of September 30, 2023, a total of 186 QDIIs had obtained limits totaling US$165.519. Under the RQDII system, foreign investments in RMB are not subject to quotas, overall limits, and internal limits on the financial instruments acquired. RMB funds cannot be remitted offshore to purchase foreign exchange. To support competent domestic institutions in carrying out various types of outbound investments, in additional to the QDII scheme, the SAFE has launched QDIE pilots in Shenzhen and QDLP in Shanghai, Beijing, Hainan, Chongqing, Jiangsu, Guangdong (exc. In December 2020, quotas of US$5 billion were set for the QDLP schemes in Hainan and Chongqing. In March 2021, new QDLP pilots began in Qingdao (US$3 billion), Jiangsu (US$5 billion), and Guangdong (ex. Shenzhen) (US$5 billion). In June 2021, a quota of US$1 billion was set for a QDLP scheme in Ningbo. The Southbound Connect, launched on September 24, 2021, enables domestic institutions to invest in equity markets in Hong Kong and globally.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	Effective February 10, 2023, enterprises and financial institutions that issue bonds abroad with maturities in excess of one year must apply in advance to the National Development and Reform Commission (NDRC) for review and approval (previously, only for filing and registration purposes). Domestic financial institution legal persons may issue RMB bonds abroad with PBC approval. Domestic financial institution legal persons may issue RMB bonds abroad with PBC approval. Domestic financial institution legal persons may issue RMB bonds abroad with PBC approval. Legal person financial institutions and enterprises in China, as well as domestic branches of foreign banks (including banks in Hong Kong SAR, Macau SAR, and Taiwan Province of China), may freely carry out cross-border financing in RMB or in foreign currencies within the limit determined by their capital and net assets, without being subject to PBC and SAFE advance review and approval requirement. Effective October 25, 2022, the macroprudential adjustment parameter for financial institutions and enterprises was raised from 1 to 1.25. Effective June 20, 2023, it was further raised to 1.5. As defined in Notice of the PBC Concerning Matters Related to the Comprehensive Macroprudential Management of Cross-Border Financing (Yin Fa [2017] No. 9), this applies to companies other than finance companies, and does not include government financing platforms or real estate developers. The financial institutions to which it applies include all financial institution legal persons approved by the PBC, CBRC, CSRC, and CIRC.
On money market instruments	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	QFIIs/RQFIIs may purchase money market funds. QFIIs/RQFIIs may directly participate in investment transactions in interbank bond markets. Foreign RMB clearing banks and foreign participating banks with quotas to invest in the interbank bond market may carry out bond repo business in the interbank bond market to fund offshore RMB business. The limit on financing through repos is tied to the bonds held onshore. 		transactions permitted by the PBC, such as spot bond trading, bond repos, bond loans, bond forward and interest rate swaps, and forward rate agreements without restriction on the amounts. An archival filing requirement is implemented instead of the previous quota approval. Various types of financial institutions legally registered and established outside China, such as commercial banks, insurance companies, securities companies, fund management companies, and other asset management institutions, the investment products issued legally and in compliance with rules and regulations to clients by the aforementioned financial institutions, and other medium- and long-term institutional investors approved by the PBC, such as pension funds, charitable funds, and endowment funds, may conduct spot bond trading and other interbank bond market transactions approved by PBC on the interbank bond market without restriction on the investment amount. GDR: Based on the objective of hedging risk, overseas securities institutions engaged in cross-border conversion operations may buy and sell currency management instruments and hedge-based stock market risk and exchange rate risk financial products or instruments in accordance with the requirements of the relevant competent authorities. The CSRC sets an upper bound on the total level of GDR assets that may circulate on the domestic market.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Foreign issuers that meet the conditions in Yin Zong Bu [2015] No. 72 may issue cross-border interbank certificates of deposit in the Shanghai Pilot FTZ.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	QDIIs may purchase money market instruments permitted by regulation, subject to their respective foreign exchange quotas and regulatory limits. RQDIIs may invest in renminbi-denominated products in foreign financial markets. Insurance companies may invest overseas subject to approval. The aggregate balance of insurance companies' overseas investment may not exceed 15% of the insurance company's total assets at the end of the previous quarter, and the total amount of actual investment must not exceed the investment payment limit approved by the SAFE. Foreign investment of insurance funds in money market products includes money market instruments or products with maturities of not more than one year, such as commercial paper, bankers acceptances, large negotiable certificates of deposit, reverse repo agreements, short-term government bonds, and overnight interbank borrowings. When insurance funds invest in securities investment funds, the funds should be approved or registered by the specified country or region's securities regulator; fund managers must comply with relevant regulations; they must be able to supply verifiable performance records covering a history of no less than three years; the investment mix must be simple and clear, with underlying assets that are clear and compliant with relevant regulations; currency market funds must have an AAA or equivalent rating. To support competent domestic institutions in carrying out various types of outbound investments, in additional to the QDII scheme, the SAFE has launched QDIE pilots in Shenzhen and QDLP in Shanghai, Beijing, Hainan, Chongqing, Jiangsu, Guangdong (exc. Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	Under the framework of the comprehensive macroprudential management of cross-border financing, the PBC and SAFE will no longer enforce advance review and preapproval requirements for the issuance of foreign debt, but each financial institution and enterprise will follow uniform and clear rules to estimate a cap on the financing-risk-weighted balance of cross-border financing linked to their capital or net assets, and the financial institution or enterprise will be permitted to engage in cross-border RMB or foreign currency financing within that limit. At the same time, the PBC will set and adjust the relevant parameters based on macro control requirements to make countercyclical adjustments to the cross-border financing of financial institutions and enterprises. This covers all domestic institutions that take in funds in local or foreign currency from nonresidents and includes on- and off-balance-sheet financing.
On collective investment securities	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	CSRC, PBC, and SAFE Decree [2006] No. 176 and CSRC Announcement [2020] No. 63 expanded the range of financial instruments in which the PBC permits QFIIs/RQFIIs to invest. QFIIs/RQFIIs may invest in domestic publicly traded investment funds, securities and futures institutions, and private investment funds established lawfully by a private investment fund manager registered with the Asset Management Association of China. As of September 10, 2021, Hong Kong and Macau residents can purchase qualified investment products sold by mainland banks in the Guangdong/Hong Kong/Macau Greater Bay Area. Effective July 4, 2022, exchange-traded open-ended funds are officially added to the Stock Connect mechanism between Hong Kong and the mainland.

through one or more of the following three avenues: through the PBC as their agent, through a Chinese interbank foreign exchange market member as their agent, and by directly becoming a foreign member of the Chinese interbank foreign exchange market. Transaction methods include OTC and price-matching, without limits on the amount. Foreign banks can apply for membership of the CFETS, and can then participate directly in the foreign currency interbank market; or they may apply for membership of the CFETS and then participate in the market through an agent. Foreign nonbank financial institutions can apply for membership of the CFETS and can then participate in the foreign currency interbank market through an agent.

Foreign CBs, monetary authorities, international financial organizations, and sovereign wealth funds may initiate bond forwards and interest rate swaps, forward interest rate agreements, and other interbank market transactions approved by the PBC. Qualified institutional investors that meet the requirements of PBC Announcement [2016] No. 3, including all types of financial institutions legally registered outside China, such as commercial banks, insurance companies, securities companies, fund management companies, and other asset management institutions, and the investment products legally issued to clients by said financial institutions, as well as other medium- to long-term institutional investors approved by the PBC, such as pension funds, charitable funds, and endowment funds, may initiate spot trading on the interbank bond market and may engage in bond lending, bond forward, forward interest rate agreement, and interest rate swap transactions. Effective May 15, 2023, the Swap Connect went online. Overseas investors from Hong Kong and other countries and regions were permitted to participate in the mainland Chinese interbank interest rate swap (IRS) market through the northbound leg of the Swap Connect.

Financial institutions (including finance companies) that sell foreign exchange forwards to their clients must deposit foreign exchange risk reserves. The risk reserve ratio for foreign exchange forwards is currently 20%. The calculation should be based on the amount of contracted forward foreign exchange sales of the previous month and the reserves should be deposited in dollars with the PBC. The holding period of the foreign exchange risk reserve is one year and the interest rate is tentatively set at 0.

		requirements may engage in domestic gold futures trading business. QDIIs may, in accordance with regulations, invest in foreign derivative instruments subject to their foreign exchange quotas. With the permission of the State-Owned Assets Supervision and Administration Commission, central-government-owned enterprises may conduct offshore derivatives products business. The CIRC allows insurance companies to use such products as forwards, swaps, options, and futures to hedge risks. On registration with the SAFE, domestic employees of domestic affiliates of foreign listed companies may participate in these companies' equity incentive programs and purchase shares or options under the terms of such programs. Since 2015, financial institutions or enterprises in Shanghai may participate in offshore derivatives trading by establishing free trade accounts. RQDIIs may invest in RMB-denominated foreign derivate products in accordance with the relevant requirements of the CBIRC.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	Without approval, sale or issue abroad is not permitted by nonbank institutions. Banks require prior approval from the CBIRC, to engage in sale or issue abroad of derivative products.
Controls on credit operations	Yes.
Commercial credits	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	The macroprudential adjustment parameter for overseas borrowing by domestic enterprises was increased from 0.3 to 0.5 on January 5, 2021. As of February 4, 2021, the regulation of renminbi-denominated overseas loans has been simplified. Loans repaid ahead of schedule are not counted in the loan quota for domestic companies making overseas renminbi loans; the currency conversion factor has been adjusted to 0.5. Effective March 1, 2022, domestic banks may freely conduct domestic and foreign currency cross-border financing within the limit determined by their Tier 1 capital or working capital, without being subject to PBC and SAFE advance review and approval requirement. Previously, prior approval was required. The outstanding overseas loans of domestic banks may not exceed the upper limit determined by its net Tier 1 capital (calculated as working capital for domestic branches of foreign banks), the leverage ratio of overseas loans, and the macroprudential adjustment parameters. In principle, overseas loans issued by domestic banks may be used for relevant expenses within the scope of operation of overseas enterprises and may not be used for the following purposes: securities investment or repayment of overseas debts under Domestic Guarantees for Foreign Loans; transactions without authentic trade background or other forms of speculative arbitrage transactions; and the repatriation of funds to China through financing provided to domestic entities, equity investment, etc. If the overseas loan is used for overseas investment, it should comply with the regulations of the relevant domestic authorities on overseas investment.
To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	Enterprises in China can freely carry out cross-border financing in RMB or in foreign currencies within the limit determined by their net assets, without being subject to PBC and SAFE advance review requirement.

		Effective February 10, 2023, if a domestic financial institution is to receive a commercial loan with a maturity of than one year, it must apply in advance with the NDRC for approval and registration. As of February 4, 2021, the regulation of renminbi-denominated overseas borrowing by domestic enterprises has been updated. Domestic enterprises which needed to open multiple renminbi accounts to handle separate renminbi loans may now instead use a single renminbi account to handle payment and receipt of funds released from multiple loans. Effective April 18, 2022, non-financial enterprises may use a single foreign currency account to receive loan payments from multiple separate overseas loans.
Financial credits	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	No.	Within their approved scopes of operations, bank financial institutions may provide commercial loans directly abroad. Beginning on March 1, 2022, Domestic banks may freely conduct domestic and foreign currency cross-border financing within the limit determined by their Tier 1 capital or working capital, without being subject to PBC and SAFE advance review and approval requirement. Previously, prior approval was required. The outstanding overseas loans of domestic banks may not exceed the upper limit determined by its net Tier 1 capital (calculated as working capital for domestic branches of foreign banks), the leverage ratio of overseas loans, and the macroprudential adjustment parameters. In principle, overseas loans issued by domestic banks may be used for relevant expenses within the scope of operation of overseas enterprises and may not be used for the following purposes: securities investment or repayment of overseas debts under Domestic Guarantees for Foreign Loans; transactions without authentic trade background or other forms of speculative arbitrage transactions; and the repatriation of funds to China through financing provided to domestic entities, equity investment, etc. If the overseas loan is used for overseas investment, it should comply with the regulations of the relevant domestic authorities on overseas investment. RMB cross-border lending by domestic companies requires registration at the local branch of the SAFE. The sum of their offshore RMB and foreign currency loans should not exceed 30% of shareholder's equity as indicated by the audited financial statements of the previous year. Additional requirements on the loan's objectives, funding sources, lending period, usage, withdrawal, etc., are also in place. Domestic correspondent banks may offer RMB financing accounts to banks participating in foreign RMB operations within certain limits and maturities. Domestic parent banks or head offices may provide RMB liquidity support to foreign RMB clearing banks. Within the present institutional framework of foreign debt and foreign lending, resident enterprises may use RMB to manage cross-border credit business. The macroprudential adjustment parameter for overseas borrowing by domestic enterprises was increased from 0.3 to 0.5 on January 5, 2021. Within the present institutional framework of foreign debt and foreign lending, resident enterprises may use RMB to manage cross-border credit business. The aggregate balance of medium- and long-term foreign debt and outstanding short-term foreign debt of foreign-invested enterprises may not exceed the difference between total investment and registered capital. "Total investment" means the sum of construction funds and working capital required for production as stipulated in joint investment contracts and enterprise articles of association. Within this scope, preapproval is not required to borrow from nonresidents; however, the borrower must complete the SAFE registration procedures. Converting such funds to RMB does not require SAFE approval. Multinational enterprise groups, in accordance with their own operational and management needs, may engage in currency (RMB/foreign) pooling transactions with member enterprises both domestically and abroad. As of February 4, 2021, the regulation of renminbi-denominated overseas borrowing by domestic enterprises has been updated. Outward direct investment	Yes.	In 2014, the Ministry of Commerce amended the Administrative Measures on Overseas Investment, implementing an administrative model that "primarily relies on a filing system and is supported by approvals" for enterprises investing and incorporating overseas. With the exception of overseas investments in sensitive countries and regions and sensitive industries, for which an approval system is in place, all other overseas investments are administered using a filing system. Countries for which approvals are required refer to countries that have no diplomatic relationship with the People's Republic of China and countries that are subject to UN sanctions; when necessary, the Ministry of Commerce may additionally announce a list of other countries for which approval management is required. Industries for which approvals are required are those that involve the export of products and technologies with export restrictions placed by the People's Republic of China, and industries that affect more than one country's (region's) interests. At present, 99% of overseas investment matters are administered using the filing system. In August 2017, the Ministry of Commerce, NDRC, PBC, and Ministry of Foreign Affairs jointly issued Guiding Opinions on Further Directing and Regulating the Direction of Overseas Investments, which defined three classes of overseas investment: encouraged, limited, and forbidden. In December 2017, the NDRC issued Administrative Measures for Outbound Investment by Enterprises, providing a comprehensive regulation for overseas investment. This regulation facilitated overseas investment by specifying that for non-sensitive projects, enterprises are required only to register their investments; for sensitive projects, assessment is still required. Outward direct investment should also be registered at banks. Banks may process such operations as opening accounts and remitting funds for enterprises on the basis of the three principles of "know your customer," "know your business," and "conduct due diligence." Domestic institutions may use a variety of legitimate asset sources for outward direct investment, including their own foreign exchange funds, foreign currency loans obtained domestically in accordance with regulations, foreign exchange purchased using RMB, or tangible or intangible assets, and such profits as are kept abroad. During the preparatory stage of formal startup of a foreign project, resident entities may remit funds overseas in an amount not to exceed the smaller value of US$300 million and 15% of the Chinese investor's total investment. To support competent domestic institutions in carrying out various types of outbound investments, in additional to the QDII scheme, the SAFE has launched QDIE pilots in Shenzhen and QDLP in Shanghai, Beijing, Hainan, Chongqing, Jiangsu, Guangdong (exc. Shenzhen), and Qingdao since 2013. QDLP/QDIE programs enable domestic investors who meet qualifications to raise funds domestically and invest them abroad in securities, private equity, commodities, and real estate. The total approved QDLP/QDIE quota is currently US$54 billion. In October 2013, a quota of US$1 billion was set for the QDLP pilot in Shanghai. In December 2014, a quota of US$1 billion was set for the QDIE pilot in Shenzhen. In April 2018, the quotas for QDLP in Shanghai and QDIE in Shenzhen were both raised to US$5 billion. In December 2019, a quota of US$5 billion was set for the QDLP scheme in Beijing. In November 2020, the quotas for QDLP/QDIE in Shanghai, Shenzhen, and Beijing were all raised to US$10 billion. In December 2020, quotas of US$5 billion were set for the QDLP schemes in Hainan and Chongqing. In March 2021, new QDLP pilots began in Qingdao (US$3 billion), Jiangsu (US$5 billion), and Guangdong (ex. Shenzhen) (US$5 billion). In June 2021, a quota of US$1 billion was set for a QDLP scheme in Ningbo.

Inward direct investment	Yes.	Because the Foreign Investment Law and the corresponding implementation regulations went into effect, China has implemented a pre-establishment national treatment plus negative list administration system for foreign investors. Foreign investors are not permitted to invest in fields listed on the negative list as prohibited. To invest in in fields listed on the negative list as restricted, foreign investors must comply with the relevant restrictive investment requirements, including the holdings requirements on the negative list, and restrictions on senior managers. Foreign investment in fields not contained in the access negative list is administered in accordance with the principle of equal treatment for domestic and foreign capital. Nonresidents may invest in China, provided they are in compliance with the requirements of laws and regulations concerning foreign investment and other laws and regulations. Foreign enterprises and individuals that establish a partnership enterprise in China must apply for registration of the enterprise to the local administrative department for industry and commerce authorized by the State Administration for Industry and Commerce; approval of the Ministry of Commerce is not required in such cases. Partnership enterprises whose main business is investment are subject to additional government provisions. Conversion of the invested funds from foreign exchange to RMB may be carried out as determined by the enterprise. FDI should also be registered at banks. Special Administrative Measures (Negative List) for Foreign Investment Access (2021 Edition) and Special Administrative Measures (Negative List) for Foreign Investment Access in Free Trade Pilot Areas (2021 Edition) have gone into effect. They were issued by the NDRC and Ministry of Commerce on December 27, 2021. The negative list for foreign investment was further reduced. The national negative list was cut from 33 items to 31; the negative list for FTZs was cut from 30 items to 27. The 2021 edition of the negative lists further reduced the number of restricted items, improved the regulations, and targeted the restrictions more precisely. The reduction in the national list down to 31 items represents a 6.1% decrease; the cut in the FTZ list to 27 items a 10% decrease. Effective January 1, 2022, the 2021 edition of the negative lists entered into force. Major changes: (1) Increasing openness in the manufacturing sector. For example, in vehicle manufacturing, the foreign ownership limits on manufacturers of passenger vehicles were canceled, as was the restriction that a single foreign investor may invest in a maximum of two joint ventures in the same category of vehicle. (2) Continued expansion of access to entry in the service sector in FTZ pilot regions. In market surveys, restrictions on foreign investment were canceled with the exception of the requirement that a Chinese partner must hold a controlling stake in companies carrying out TV and radio audience surveys. In social surveys, foreign companies are permitted to invest, but Chinese partners must hold a stake of no less than 67%, and the company's legal representative should be a Chinese citizen.

(3) Increased precision in the negative lists for foreign investment. The following new clause was added to the rubric of the 2021 edition of the negative list: "A Chinese company in an industry which is forbidden to foreign investment must obtain the agreement of the relevant Chinese national regulators before making a public offering of shares overseas. Foreign investors may not participate in the operations or management of the company, and their holdings in the company must comply with the holdings restrictions that apply within China."

(4) Improved management of the negative lists. In compliance with the Implementation Regulations for the Foreign Investment Law, the following was added to the rubric of the negative lists: "When a foreign-owned company in China makes an investment within China, the rules of the negative list for investments shall apply." The connection between the negative lists for investment and the negative lists for market access was improved. The following was added to the rubric of the negative lists: "The terms of the Market Access Negative Lists shall apply to all investors, Chinese as foreign."

The aggregate balance of medium- and long-term foreign debt and outstanding short-term foreign debt of foreign-invested enterprises may not exceed the difference between total investment and registered capital. "Total investment" means the sum of construction funds and working capital required for production as stipulated in joint investment contracts and enterprise articles of association. Within this scope, preapproval is not required to borrow from nonresidents; however, the borrower must complete the SAFE registration procedures. Converting such funds to RMB does not require SAFE approval.

Foreign investors currently are not subject to restrictions in investing in the B shares of domestically listed companies.

Foreign investors may make strategic investments in A shares of domestically listed companies, but are subject to the following restrictions. (1) Investors must (a) be legally incorporated and operating foreign legal entities or other organizations that are financially sound and have good credit and mature management experience; (b) have actual offshore assets totaling no less than US$100 million or actual offshore assets under management totaling no less than US$500 million, parent company actual offshore assets totaling no less than US$100 million, or actual offshore assets under management totaling no less than US$500 million; (c) have a sound governance structure and good internal control systems with standardized operations; and (d) have received no material penalties from domestic or foreign regulatory agencies in the past three years (including parent company). (2) A shares of the listed company must be acquired through acquisition under contract or acquisition through targeted issuance of new shares by the listed company or by other means set forth in national laws and regulations. (3) Investment may take place in installments; the percentage of shares obtained on completion of the first installment may not be less than 10% of the company's shares issued and outstanding, with the exception of industries with specific requirements or approval of the relevant authority. (4) A shares of the listed company may not be transferred for three years. (5) Investors' shareholdings may not exceed the limits stipulated by law or regulation, if such limits are in place for specific industries, and investment is not allowed in listed companies in areas prohibited by law or regulation. (6) Shareholders of government-owned shares in listed companies must comply with the relevant regulations. Foreign investors may engage in direct investment activities in China using RMB legally obtained abroad. Legitimately obtained RMB includes RMB obtained by foreign investors from (1) cross-border trade settlement in RMB; (2) mainland China in the form of profits and earnings from equity swaps, reduction of invested capital, clearing, and advance recovery of investment; and (3) the issuance of bonds and shares denominated in RMB abroad and other ways. Banks may settle inward direct investment transactions in RMB on the basis of the three principles of "know your customer," "know your business," and "conduct due diligence," relying on the income and payment instruction submitted by the enterprises. Profit of less than US$50,000 from direct investments may, following a bona fide test by the bank, be repatriated without documentary proof. For the repatriation of profits above US$50,000, banks must verify documents related to the current profit repatriation, including the board of directors' resolutions on the distribution of profits (or the partners' resolution on the distribution of profits), originals of tax filing forms, and audited financial reports. In October 2022 and effective January 1, 2023, the NDRC issued the current 2022 edition of the Catalogue of Encouraged Foreign Investment Industries, with 1474 items (519 national; 955 for central and western regions). This was a net increase of 239 items over the 2020 list. Major supportive policies include: (1) When a foreign company invests in an encouraged industry, equipment imported as part of the investment is exempted from any customs tariff, unless it is in the no-exemptions catalogue. (2) For eligible investments in companies in western China or Hainan Province in an encouraged industry, corporate income tax is reduced to 15%. (3) Industrial projects that make intensive use of land must receive priority assignment of land. On confirmation of eligibility for low-priced land, the land may be offered at a rate equivalent to 70% of the national minimum price for industrial land.

Controls on liquidation of direct investment	Yes.	"A" shares of listed companies may not be transferred for three years. Premature liquidation before expiration of the term of operations requires approval of the original reviewing and approving authority or a judicial decision. On liquidation, after registering with the relevant bank, a foreign investor may purchase foreign currency and initiate repatriation of funds. RMB funds obtained from liquidation by foreign investors may be remitted abroad by banks, with no need for PBC approval.
Controls on real estate transactions	Yes.	The regulations governing direct investment apply.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	Purchases of real estate abroad by resident entities are conducted similarly to direct investment abroad. Insurance companies may invest overseas subject to approval. The aggregate balance of insurance companies' overseas investment may not exceed 15% of the insurance company's total assets at the end of the previous quarter. A single investment in equity and fixed-income assets may not exceed 5%, and investments in a single legal entity may not exceed 20% of the insurance company's total assets at the end of the previous quarter. The balance of foreign and domestic real estate

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	In accordance with China's WTO accession, foreign financial institutions may establish wholly owned subsidiary banks, Chinese–foreign joint venture banks, or branches of foreign banks in China. Pursuant to the Regulations on the Administration of Foreign-Funded Banks amended and announced in September 2019, foreign banks may simultaneously establish a wholly owned subsidiary bank and a foreign bank branch, or simultaneously establish a Chinese–foreign joint venture bank and a foreign bank branch. The restriction requiring foreign sole or major shareholders planning to establish Chinese–foreign joint venture banks to "present year-end total assets of not less than US$10 billion for the year preceding the application to establish" was eliminated, and the restriction requiring foreign banks planning to establish branches to "present year-end total assets of not less than US$20 billion" was eliminated. Branches of foreign banks may accept time deposits from resident Chinese citizens for individual deposits in amounts not less than RMB 500,000. A subsidiary of a foreign-owned bank or a foreign bank branch can engage in renminbi operations immediately on startup; no separate review and approval are needed. Business entities of a foreign-owned banks engaged in renminbi operations as set forth in Article 29 or Article 31 of the Regulation within their scope of operations should make preparations and complete the following tasks during the preparation period: A subsidiary of a foreign-owned bank or a foreign bank making its first application to engage in RMB operations should meet the following requirements: (1) allocate an appropriate number operating personnel who meet business development needs; (2) produce important business vouchers and forms for use with the public; (3) outfit themselves with security facilities approved by the competent authorities; (4) establish internal control systems and operational procedures for renminbi operations; and (5) if a business entity of a foreign-owned bank needs to increase registered capital or working capital to engage in renminbi operations, it should retain a certified public accounting firm registered in China to verify capital, and submit the capital verification certificate to the local office of the CBIRC.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

		Hong Kong, Macau, and Taiwanese banks that establish wholly owned banks, joint venture banks, and branches on the mainland are subject to the relevant requirements of the Regulations on the Administration of Foreign-Funded Banks.
Borrowing abroad	Yes.	Effective February 10, 2023, commercial banks and other financial institutions borrowing loans abroad with maturities in excess of one year must apply in advance for approval and registration with the NDRC (previously, only for filing and registration purposes). All foreign borrowing must be registered with the SAFE. Chinese-funded commercial banks issuing bonds must obtain the permission of the CBIRC. Domestic financial institutions may issue RMB bonds abroad with PBC approval. Legal person financial institutions and enterprises in China can freely carry out cross-border financing in RMB or in foreign currencies within the limit determined by their capital and net assets, without being subject to PBC and SAFE advance review and approval requirement. Domestic branches of foreign banks (including banks in Hong Kong SAR, Macau SAR, and Taiwan) may freely conduct domestic and foreign currency cross-border financing within the limit determined by their capital or net asset, without being subject to PBC and SAFE advance review and approval requirement. To promote the smooth linkage and transition of policies, in accordance with national treatment principles, the "cross-border financing leverage ratios" for Chinese and foreign-invested enterprises were uniformly increased. The leverage ratio for cross-border financing of bank type corporate financial institutions and branches of foreign banks is 0.8 (for enterprises the leverage ratio is 2 and for nonbank financial institutions it is 1). Effective October 25, 2022, the macroprudential adjustment parameter for financial institutions and enterprises was raised from 1 to 1.25; effective June 20, 2023, it was further raised to 1.5.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	Yes.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	Yes.	Banking financial institutions may, within the approved scope of operations, directly provide commercial loans abroad. There are no quota and no requirement for approval for RMB loans. For domestic institutions other than commercial banks carrying out cross-border lending business, their overseas loan balance, in RMB and in foreign currencies combined, should not exceed 30% of shareholder's equity as indicated by the audited financial statements of the previous year. Effective March 1, 2022, Domestic banks may freely conduct domestic and foreign currency cross-border financing within the limit determined by their Tier 1 capital or working capital, without being subject to PBC and SAFE advance review and approval requirement. Previously, prior approval was required. The outstanding overseas loans of domestic banks may not exceed the upper limit determined by its net Tier 1 capital (calculated as working capital for domestic branches of foreign banks), the leverage ratio of overseas loans, and the macroprudential adjustment parameters. In principle, overseas loans issued by domestic banks may be used for relevant expenses within the scope of operation of overseas enterprises and may not be used for the following purposes: securities investment or repayment of overseas debts under Domestic Guarantees for Foreign Loans; transactions without authentic trade background or other forms of speculative arbitrage transactions; and the repatriation of funds to China through financing provided to

Digital Currencies and Crypto Assets

Circulation of domestic central bank digital currency (CBDC)—retail and/or wholesale	No.
Retail	No.	Definition of the electronic Chinese yuan (CNY): The e-CNY is a form of digital legal tender created by the PBC, along with its associated payment systems. It is used by selected authorized operators, both as a store of value in named accounts, and for the transfer of value between transactors. The e-CNY is based on the concept of personal accounts (broadly understood) and interoperable with existing bank account systems. The e-CNY and the physical units of renminbi currency are payment instruments that together constitute cash in the broad sense. The currency supports controllable anonymity, and it is legal tender. The e-CNY is a general payment instrument for all use cases, including both retail and wholesale payments. Practically, it has already been implemented for all payment use cases. Central management and two layers of operational structure The first layer is the PBC, which is responsible for issuing e-CNY to authorized operators. It manages and controls the currency and operates its core infrastructure. The second layer is the authorized operators, the group of commercial banks and other institutions which have obtained authorization to operate e-CNY. They are jointly responsible for the exchange and circulation of e-CNY and provide these services directly to the public. This two layer structure ensures that the e-CNY can benefit from the resources, personnel, and technologies held by commercial banks and from the power of markets to drive competition and innovation. The two layer structure also helps with the dispersal of risk and avoids the accumulation of risk in any single sector. The two layer structure can also prevent financial disintermediation, reducing the impact on the monetary and financial systems. Development timeline The PBC has carried out a program of pilot trials for the e-CNY since the end of 2019, while ensuring steadiness, security, controllability, innovation, and practicality. These pilots have tested the e-CNY's theoretical reliability, systemic stability, utility, convenience, applicability to use cases, and whether risk is properly controlled. The PBC assessed the industrial and economic features of each region and selected 26 regions in 17 provinces (municipalities) for e-CNY pilot programs. The pilot regions provided coverage of the Yangtze delta, Pearl delta, Beijing-Tianjin-Hebei region, central China, western China, the northeast, and the northwest. Pilot regions The 26 pilot regions for the digital renminbi are: Beijing, Tianjin, Hubei Province, Dalian, Shanghai, Jiangsu Province, Jiangsu (Hangzhou, Ningbo, Wenzhou, Huzhou, Shaoxing, Jinhua), Fujian (Fuzhou, Xiamen), Shandong (Jinan, Qingdao), Changsha, Guangdong Province, Guangxi (Nanning, Fangchenggang), Hainan Province, Chongqing, Sichuan Province, Yunnan (Kunming, Xishuangbanna), and Xi'an.

Use among residents	Yes.	(1) Legal controls An amendment to the Law of the People's Republic of China on the PBC is currently in the public consultation phase. The amendment includes the new clause, "the renminbi shall include both physical and digital forms." Applications of the e-CNY must also comply with laws including the AML Law, the Anti-Terrorism Law, and the Personal Information Protection Law. (2) Departmental regulations The PBC issued Guidance on AML and Anti-Financing of Terrorism for e-CNY to help authorized operators effectively carry out the necessary work on money laundering and CFT. It also made changes to the current regulatory regime to adapt to the needs of e-CNY operations. It assessed the current mechanisms for assigning responsibility and specified rules for KYC checks on customers; suspicious transaction reports; and purchase and sale of e-CNY. It created systems for AML and financing of terrorism with clear priorities and gradations of severity. For any issues not covered in the Guidance on AML and Anti-Financing of Terrorism for e-CNY, departmental regulations will still apply, including Administrative Measures on the Reporting of Large Transactions and Suspicious Transactions by Financial Institutions; Administrative Measures on AML and CFT for Banks; and Administrative Measures on Identification of Customers and Retention of Customer Identity Materials and Transaction Records for Financial Institutions. (3) Operational regulations The PBC Digital Currency Research Institute is building out the financial infrastructure for the e-CNY within the framework of the laws and regulations, as required for the e-CNY development strategy. It has produced an operational framework covering areas such as institutions, operations, products, risk, emergency response, brands, and cross-border issues. It has also published standards for the most urgently-needed operations and products, in line with the approach of "comprehensive planning, fast delivery of immediate priorities, showcase projects to stimulate each sector, gaps to be filled in later." Among the operational regulations, the Digital Currency Research Institute has issued regulations on the management of online commercial customers over the full customer lifecycle; the marking and use of marks in e-CNY; and the design and use of dedicated profile pendants for e-CNY. These have helped bring about orderly growth in markets supporting multiple operations. Among the product regulations, the Digital Currency Research Institute has issued guidance on wallet devices for e-CNY, standards for e-CNY smart contracts, project requirements, and technical standards for transaction verification in multilateral CBDC bridge projects. Among the risk regulations, the Digital Currency Research Institute has issued risk control requirements for institutions and a ban on the use of digital renminbi to provide any services for virtual currencies or NFTs. Among the business continuity regulations, the Digital Currency Research Institute has issued environmental impact management standards; standards for change management in participating institutions; and working requirements for service guarantees during major sporting events or

Between residents and nonresidents	Yes.	(1) Preventing and penalizing fraudulent inflation of prices in virtual currency transactions Virtual currency operations are illegal financial practices. The exchange of virtual currency for legal tender, the exchange of one virtual currency for another, acting as a central counterparty for virtual currency transactions, providing information brokerage or pricing services for virtual currencies, the issuing of tokens, and the trading of virtual currency derivatives are illegal activities which may constitute the illegal sale of tokens or instruments, unlicensed public issuance of securities, illegal operation of futures and forwards contracts, or illegal financing. These activities are strictly prohibited; the law will be rigorously enforced. Where illegal financial activities are found to constitute a crime, participants will be held criminally responsible. There is legal risk for those who participate in investment or transactions using virtual coins. When any legal person, non-legal person organization, or natural person invests in a virtual coin or its associated derivatives in violation of public order and morality, their juridical acts must be void under civil law, and they must accept any losses thereby incurred. Controls on direct investment
Inward direct investment	01/01/2022	The 2021 edition of the negative lists entered into force. Major changes include continued expansion of access to entry in the service sector in free trade zone pilot regions. In market surveys, restrictions on foreign investment were canceled with the exception of the requirement that a Chinese partner must hold a controlling stake in companies carrying out TV and radio audience surveys. In social surveys, foreign companies are permitted to invest, but Chinese partners must hold a stake of no less than 67%, and the company's legal representative should be a Chinese citizen.
	01/01/2022	The 2021 edition of the negative lists entered into force. Major changes include improved management of the negative lists. In compliance with the Implementation Regulations for the Foreign Investment Law, the following was added to the rubric of the negative lists: "When a foreign-owned company in China makes an investment within China, the rules of the negative list for investments shall apply." The connection between the negative lists for investment and the negative lists for market access was improved. The following was added to the rubric of the negative lists: "The terms of the Market Access Negative Lists shall apply to all investors, Chinese as foreign."

	01/01/2022	The 2021 edition of the negative lists entered into force. Major changes include increased precision in the negative lists for foreign investment. The following new clause was added to the rubric of the 2021 edition of the negative list: "A Chinese company in an industry which is forbidden to foreign investment must obtain the agreement of the relevant Chinese national regulators before making a public offering of shares overseas. Foreign investors may not participate in the operations or management of the company, and their holdings in the company must comply with the holdings restrictions that apply within China."
	01/01/2023	The National Development and Reform Commission issued the current 2022 edition of the Catalogue of Encouraged Foreign Investment Industries, with 1474 items (519 national; 955 for central and western regions). This was a net increase of 239 items over the 2020 list. Major supportive policies include: (1) When a foreign company invests in an encouraged industry, equipment imported as part of the investment is exempted from any customs tariff, unless it is in the no-exemptions catalogue. (2) For eligible investments in companies in western China or Hainan Province in an encouraged industry, corporate income tax is reduced to 15%. (3) Industrial projects that make intensive use of land must receive priority assignment of land. On confirmation of eligibility for low-priced land, the land may be offered at a rate equivalent to 70% of the national minimum price for industrial land.

		its peers among developed countries and against some currencies of emerging markets, supported by increased demand for safe-haven assets and with expectations and materialization of a tighter monetary policy by the Federal Reserve in response to inflationary pressures. The Colombian peso weakened, and the peso-dollar exchange rate reached an all-time high, also affected by some events that increased the perception of local risk, such as uncertainty regarding the presidential elections and the economic policies to be implemented by the incoming government, together with the persistence of inflationary pressures. During the first half of 2023, the behavior of the dollar was volatile and it closed with a slight variation, amid changes in expectations of the magnitude of monetary tightening by the Federal Reserve, the publication of mixed economic data in the United States, and some particular events that generated greater risk aversion. On the other hand, the Colombian peso appreciated, favored by a lower risk perception toward Latin America, higher foreign currency supply flows in the spot market (foreign direct investment income), and the impact of a positive perception of the strength of institutions, mentioned by different market operators. The de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as floating. The Banco de la República (Bank of the Republic, or BR) publishes daily data on interventions on the exchange market. The BR publishes the date, amount, and mechanism. When an intervention involves options, the information is published on the day that the option is exercised. Each month (on the fifth business day), the BR publishes a press release indicating the amount purchased or sold in the previous month (aggregate monthly amount).
Free floating
Official exchange rate	Yes.	The representative market rate (RMR) is the economic indicator of the peso–US dollar exchange rate; it is not an official exchange rate. It is used as a reference for the quotation and settlement of foreign exchange transactions, for transactions indexed to the US dollar, and for the conversion of accounts in foreign currency to local currency. The RMR is the weighted average amount of US dollar buy/sell operations in exchange for Colombian legal currency, for settlement in both currencies on the same day, conducted by exchange market intermediaries (EMIs) during the hours of operation established by the BR in its general regulations. To calculate the RMR, derivative operations must be excluded, as well as operations conducted by EMIs with entities other than those supervised by the Office of the Financial Superintendence of Colombia (Superintendencia Financiera de Colombia – SFC) and with the State – Ministry of Finance and Public Credit. Also excluded are operations by EMIs with the following entities supervised by the SFC: foreign financial entities, foreign reinsurers, foreign financial entities with no trade offices, and representative offices of the foreign securities market, cash-settled spot transactions and spot transactions with fulfillment on the same trading day as the one on which the purchase or sale exchange rate is not explicitly negotiated, but the negotiation involves a price differential with other operations. (External Regulatory Circular DOAM-146 of November 4, 2020). The RMR is calculated daily and certified by the SFC (not by the central bank) based on available information, in accordance with the methodology established by the BR in the above-mentioned External Regulatory Circular.

Target with tolerance band	Yes.	In Colombia, the inflation target was set by the BR Board at 3% (with an allowable deviation margin of ±1 percentage point). The BR Board's monetary policy actions are aimed at bringing inflation to 3% over the monetary policy horizon and the allowable range or margin recognizes that inflation may temporarily deviate from the target.

Foreign exchange market	Yes.	Banking institutions, financial corporations, finance companies, financial cooperatives (with SFC authorization), stock brokerage companies, the National Development Financial Corporation (Financiera de Desarrollo Nacional – FDN), the Foreign Trade Bank (BANCOLDEX – Banco de Comercio Exterior), Special Financial Services and Exchange Intermediation Companies (Sociedades de Intermediación Cambiaria y Servicios Financieros Especiales – SICSFEs, formerly exchange bureaus), and Companies Specializing in Electronic Deposits and Payments (Sociedades Especializadas en Depósitos Electrónicos – SEDPE), the Financial Corporation for Territorial Development (FINDETER), the Agricultural Sector Financing Fund (FINAGRO), the Colombian Institute of Educational Credit and Technical Studies Abroad (ICETEX), the National Corporation for Promotion of Territorial Development (ENTerritorio), and the National Savings Fund (FNA) are the EMIs authorized to intermediate in foreign exchange market operations. Authorized entities that are not registered with the BR as EMIs may not perform authorized operations as EMIs, nor are they subject to the regulations and obligations applicable to such intermediaries.

		ICETEX also requires that the Office of the Financial Superintendence issues prudential rules that are applicable to it to perform authorized exchange operations. (R.E. 1 of February, 28, 2020, as amended by R.E. 25 of October 30, 2020). The BR Board of Directors determines the foreign exchange transactions that EMIs are authorized to carry out, based on the type of entity and its capital, with regard to EMIs referred to in Article 8(1), (2), (3), (4), and (5) of R.E. 1/2018. In the case of EMIs referred to in Article 8(6) of R.E. 1/2018, the level of capital is not taken into account. EMIs may freely determine their foreign exchange buying and selling rates and commissions. As of December 31, 2022, there were 44 EMIs registered with the BR (22 banking institutions, 2 financial corporations, 2 finance companies, 10 stock brokers, 1 financial cooperative, BANCOLDEX, FDN, the Central Counterparty Clearinghouse (CCP) of Colombia, FINDETER, and 3 SICSFEs).
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Spot foreign exchange transactions may be conducted through or outside trading systems. All entities supervised by the SFC, including EMIs as well as the State, are authorized to participate in foreign exchange trading systems or to act as clearing members in spot transactions before a CCP. The Central Counterparty Clearinghouse of Colombia (CRCC) is the sole CCP in the country. CCPs may perform clearing and settlement of peso-dollar spot transactions (R.E. 22/2020). EMIs must record all spot foreign exchange transactions in a foreign exchange transaction registration system, with the exceptions of spot transactions with unsupervised entities or the State involving amounts of less than US$250,000. Entities supervised by the SFC, other than EMIs, must record spot foreign exchange transactions performed with foreign agents (R.E. 2/2020). Spot foreign exchange transactions conducted (1) between EMIs and (2) between an EMI and another entity that is supervised by the SFC and participates in a foreign exchange trading system must be cleared through an authorized foreign exchange clearing and settlement system or a CCP. Spot foreign exchange transactions performed by FINDETER, FINAGRO, ICETEX, ENTerritorio, and the FNA are exempt from this requirement if these entities are not participants in foreign exchange trading systems (R.E. 1/2020). Spot foreign exchange transactions in the trading systems are blind when the CCP is involved in the clearing and settlement of these transactions. In addition, residents may engage professionally in the purchase and sale of foreign exchange and traveler’s checks, provided they are registered in advance in the trade register and in the register of professional foreign exchange dealers established by the National Tax and Customs Directorate (DIAN). Residents who engage professionally in buying and selling foreign exchange may not carry out foreign exchange transactions directly with the BR. Residents may make foreign exchange purchases and sales on the unregulated market with other residents, provided they do not do so habitually or in a professional capacity. If they do so habitually, they must comply with the requirements applicable to professionals who buy and sell foreign exchange and traveler's checks.

As of December 31, 2022, there were 44 EMIs registered with the BR (22 banking institutions, 2 financial corporations, 2 finance companies, 10 stock brokers, 1 financial cooperative, BANCOLDEX, FDN, the CCP of Colombia, FINDETER, and 3 SICSFEs).

Operated by the central bank	Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility	No.
Allocation	No.
Auction	Yes.	The BR may intervene in the foreign exchange market to regulate financial market liquidity and the normal functioning of the domestic and external payments of the economy, to prevent undesirable exchange rate fluctuations, and to increase and reduce international reserves, in accordance with the directives of the Board of Directors, through spot or forward foreign exchange purchases or sales, to or from banking institutions, financial corporations, finance companies, financial cooperatives, the FDN, BANCOLDEX, stock brokerage companies, companies that manage pensions and severance benefits, foreign exchange clearing and settlement systems, and CCPs as well as the State – Ministry of Finance and Public Credit, as long as they are registered with the BR as EMIs and have standing instructions with the BR. The authorization to participate depends on the intervention mechanism, as explained below. The BR may conduct intervention operations through various systems and mechanisms. The authorized intervention operations are as follows: (1) Direct uniform price auction sales of put or call options at market rates; (2) Direct uniform price auctions (with three minutes of bids) or discriminatory price auction sales of foreign exchange (with three minutes of bids); (3) Spot sales of foreign exchange and forward purchases of dollars by means of foreign exchange swap contracts with delivery in auctions and OTC transactions. (4) Forward dollar sales at market rates through forward contracts, by means of the auction mechanism (R.E. 4 of March 12, 2020). The auction quotas of the different mechanisms are announced in advance in the invitations to bid. The amount of the direct purchase/sale intervention in the trading systems is not announced in advance, but the exchange intervention carried out over a month is reported on the fifth business day of the following month through a press release. Delays, incompletion of intervention operations, and errors in the price of auctions by authorized agents are subject to sanctions. The sanction regime does not apply to: (1) direct foreign currency purchase or sale operations with the national government – the Ministry of Finance and Public Credit; (2) dollar purchase or sale operations that are cleared and settled through foreign currency clearance and settlement systems; and (3) operations that are cleared and settled through a CCP (R.E. 17 of June 30, 2020).

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

(1) Option auctions:
The auction may be held with banking institutions, financial corporations, finance companies, financial cooperatives (once they have been authorized as EMIs by the SFC), the FDN, and BANCOLDEX, whose capital reaches the minimum amount required for the establishment of a financial corporation, as well as the State – Ministry of Finance and Public Credit. Stock brokerages whose capital equals the minimum amount required for the establishment of a financial corporation may also be counterparties.
The entities must be registered with the BR and must maintain permanent instructions with the BR. The BR may intervene in the foreign exchange market through options to increase or reduce international reserves and control exchange rate volatility. The BR sells put or call options in uniform price auctions. The participants must offer the option premium (bid price expressed in pesos per US$1,000), as well as the amount of the bid in dollars. In the auction, the bids are arranged in strict descending order based on the amount of the premium, and all bids with a premium equal to or exceeding the premium at which the auction limit is met (hereinafter the cut-off premium) are approved. All approved bids must pay the cut-off premium. The BR may partially approve bids it believes could give rise to an unacceptable concentration. The BR reserves the right to approve a put or call options auction below the announced amount or to declare the auction void. The general terms and conditions of auctions are announced in an invitation to bid on the immediately preceding business day. Options may be exercised only when the option exercise conditions established by the BR are satisfied.
(a) Options to increase or reduce international reserves:
The BR may auction put options to increase international reserves. The call option to reduce international reserves has been discontinued since May 27, 2016.

In accordance with the regulations, put options may be exercised only when the RMR is below its recent average (average for the preceding 20 business days). The amount of the auctions is announced in the invitation. The participants must pay a premium established by means of the uniform price auction mechanism. The exercise price for options is the RMR in effect the day the option is exercised. Entities that comply with the provisions of Regulatory Circular DODM 143 (now Market Operations and Analysis Department (DOAM-143)) participate in this program.

(b) Options to control exchange rate volatility: It is established in the regulation that the BR will announce and hold a put or call option auction to control volatility when the RMR is 4% or more below or above its moving average for the preceding 20 business days. This instrument is inactive and was last used in 2009.

(2) Purchase or sale of foreign exchange at market rates:
The BR may buy and sell US dollars directly through auctions or other systems and mechanisms through which interbank foreign currency operations are performed. Banks, financial corporations, finance companies, and financial cooperatives (provided they are authorized as EMIs by the SFC), FDN, and BANCOLDEX may participate. Stock brokerages whose capital equals the minimum amount required for the establishment of a financial corporation and the State – Ministry of Finance and Public Credit may also participate. The entities must be registered with the BR and must maintain permanent instructions with the BR.

The BR buys and sells dollars in uniform price auctions (with 3 minutes of bids) or discriminatory price auctions (depending on what is announced in the invitation to bid. Uniform price auctions have always been used). The BR announces to the agents the quota of dollars to be auctioned. Participants offer the exchange rate (bid price expressed in pesos per dollar) at which they would be prepared to sell or buy dollars to or from the BR, as well as the amount in dollars. Each agent may submit only one offer in an amount that does not exceed 80% of the auction quota, which may be altered in the first three minutes of the auction. The BR reserves the right to approve an auction to buy or sell dollars below the announced amount or to declare the auction void. Foreign exchange trading systems must grant access to the BR on special terms when it intervenes to implement exchange policy. These terms must be defined in the regulations governing the operation of such systems.
(3) Foreign exchange swap contracts at rates set by the BR through auction or over-the-counter mechanisms:
The BR may also intervene through foreign exchange swap contracts, under which a spot sale of dollars by the BR and a forward purchase of dollars in the amount traded are transacted simultaneously. The swap contracts are offered through auctions (uniform price) or over the counter. The auction may be held with banking institutions, financial corporations, finance companies, financial cooperatives (once they have been authorized as EMIs by the SFC), the FDN, and BANCOLDEX, whose capital reaches the minimum amount required for the establishment of a financial corporation, as well as the State – Ministry of Finance and Public Credit. Companies that manage pension funds and severance benefits, on their own account or for third parties or managed funds, may also be counterparties (R.E. 5 of March 18, 2020), whereas only foreign exchange clearing and settlement systems and CCPs that clear peso-dollar spot purchase and sale contracts may participate in over-the-counter transactions (this applies to the latter, pursuant to R.E. 24 of September 25, 2020). In the auction, participants offer the exchange rate (bid price expressed in pesos per US dollar) at which they would be willing to buy dollars from the BR at the start of the operation, as well as the amount in dollars to be exchanged. They may submit as many bids as they wish for a total not to exceed the total amount of the auction. The BR will announce the total amount of the auction. They may be conducted at 30, 60, 90, 180, or 365 calendar days. They are forward delivery transactions. Spot dollar sales are carried out by the BR on the day of the auction, and forward dollar purchases on the maturity date of the foreign exchange swap contract.
OTC participants offer the amount in dollars to be exchanged. Ten minutes prior to the OTC operation, the BR announces the initial and forward exchange rates.
(4) NDF sale contracts at market rates.
The BR may execute forward contracts in which it negotiates the future sale of dollars. These are non-delivery contracts. Forward contracts for the sale of dollars are offered through auctions. The same entities authorized for option auctions may participate, but stock brokers may perform these operations only when the contracts are cleared and settled through a CCP (External Regulatory Circular DOAM-143 of August 14, 2020). Forward contracts for the sale of dollars are offered through a uniform price auction. The participants offer the exchange rate (the offer price expressed in pesos per dollar) at which the dollars are available to the BR for purchase on maturity of the contract, as well as the amount of the bid in dollars. The general terms and conditions of the auction are announced through an invitation on the previous business day. Each authorized agent may present as many bids as it wishes and in a total amount that does not exceed the auction quota. In the process of the auction, the bids are arranged in strict descending order by the offer price and all bids that contain a price that is greater than or equal to the cut-off at which the auction quota is met (the cut-off price) are approved. All of the approved bids pay the cut-off price. The BR may partially approve bids which in its opinion give rise to an unacceptable concentration of the forward contracts. The BR reserves the right to approve an auction below the announced quota or to declare it void. Forward contracts for the sale of dollars may be performed for 30 calendar days. The plan for the performance of bilateral operations or operations through a CCP is announced in an invitation through the means available. The BR intervention operations that are performed through a CCP are subject to the terms and conditions set forth in the operating regulations of the given clearinghouse. The BR's sanctions scheme is not applicable to operations that are cleared and settled through a CCP (R.E. 17 of June 30, 2020). Performance of bilateral operations or operations through a CCP was established by R.E. 18 of June 30, 2020 and an amendment to External Regulatory Circular DOAM-143. There are no restrictions on the use of resources that agents acquire in BR auctions.

Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	Almost all operations on the spot interbank market are carried out through foreign exchange trading systems. There are no limits on the bid-ask spreads or on the commissions of market participants. As of December 31, 2022, there were 44 EMIs registered with the BR (22 banking institutions, 2 financial corporations, 2 finance companies, 10 stock brokers, 1 financial cooperative, BANCOLDEX, FDN, the CCP, FINDETER, and 3 SICSFEs). The BR may buy and sell US dollars directly through auctions or other systems and mechanisms through which interbank foreign currency operations are performed. If the BR intervenes directly, it carries out the operations using the quotations found in the market, and it proposes its own quotes.
Over the counter	Yes.	Foreign exchange transactions may be conducted through trading systems or on the OTC market.
Brokerage	Yes.	Authorized purchases and sales of foreign exchange by stock brokerage companies may be conducted through their proprietary position or under commission contracts.
Market making	No.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Trades of non-standardized foreign exchange derivatives may be carried out through trading systems or other trading platforms used by the market (OTC market). Entities supervised by the SFC, the State, and foreign agents may participate in the trading systems. EMIs must record all non-standardized financial derivatives transactions daily in a foreign exchange transaction register. Entities supervised by the SFC, other than EMIs, that engage in foreign exchange derivatives transactions with foreign agents on the OTC market must record those transactions in an authorized foreign exchange transaction register. This recording is mandatory for application of close-out netting. The EMIs referred to in Article 8(1) of R.E. 1/2018 may carry out transactions in financial derivatives on any type of underlying asset with authorized foreign agents with which they have signed a framework contract. They may also contract financial derivatives on any type of underlying asset denominated in foreign currencies with any other resident EMI. EMIs may carry out transactions in commodity derivatives with authorized foreign agents and contract commodity derivatives denominated in foreign currencies with residents and with other EMIs. The stock brokerage companies referred to in Article 8(3) of R.E. 1/2018 (EMIs) may offer their clients foreign exchange rate derivatives only when they are cleared and settled through a CCP authorized by the SFC. Residents (other than the EMIs specified in Article 8(1) of R.E. 1/2018) may carry out transactions in financial derivatives on any type of underlying asset with authorized foreign agents that have carried out financial derivatives transactions in the immediately preceding calendar year amounting to more than US$1 billion or with the EMIs specified in Article 8(1) of R.E. 1/2018. The BR also authorizes residents (other than EMIs) to carry out commodity-price derivatives transactions in foreign currency, provided they are carried out with authorized foreign agents. Entities supervised by the SFC may enter into credit derivatives with authorized foreign agents exclusively in the form of credit default swaps (CDS). These instruments are no longer restricted to portfolio hedging, do not require the prior authorization of the SF but must be issued by foreign issuers. The BR may intervene in the exchange market through forward contracts in which the future sale of dollars is negotiated. These are non-delivery contracts. Forward contracts for the sale of dollars are offered through uniform price auctions, in which the participants offer the exchange rate (bid price expressed in pesos per dollar) at which they would be prepared to buy dollars from the BR on the maturity of the contract, as well as the amount of the bid in dollars.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	The EMIs indicated in Article 8(1) of R.E. 1/2018 may receive deposits in foreign currency from (1) nonresident individuals and legal entities; (2) accredited diplomatic and consular missions to the government of Colombia and their employees; (3) multilateral organizations and their employees; and (4) foreign agents acting as liquidity providers for foreign currency clearing and settlement systems. These accounts may not be used to pay for transactions that must be channeled through the foreign exchange market, nor do they have to be registered at the BR.
Approval required	No.
Domestic currency accounts	Yes.	The EMIs indicated in Article 8(1) of R.E. 1/2018 may receive demand deposits in current accounts, savings accounts, and electronic deposits in Colombian pesos from nonresident individuals and legal entities or like entities. The accounts are classified as general-use accounts and restricted-use accounts. General-use accounts may be opened by nonresidents for any purpose but may not be used to disburse loans in Colombian legal currency or to carry out exchange transactions that must be channeled through foreign exchange market, with the exception of: (1) payments for imports and exports of goods made by residents which are settled in Colombian legal currency; and (2) settlement in Colombian legal currency of transactions in derivatives. Restricted-use accounts are accounts intended for the following activities: (1) accounts for direct investment operations; (2) deposits of foreign capital portfolio investors (individual investors and omnibus accounts); (3) centralized foreign securities deposit accounts; and (4) accounts for foreign lending operations in Colombian legal currency.

To that end, a foreign exchange declaration must be submitted to report certain minimum data for the operation, which must be provided to EMIs for forwarding to the BR or submitted directly to the BR if the payments are channeled through clearing accounts.
Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.
Positive list	Yes.	In Colombia, products that require prior authorization, permit, or approval for importation and those that, because of their nature and special characteristics, require specific prior control, are subject to the Prior Licensing System and the Free Import System. Prior Licensing System There is a list of imports subject to the prior licensing system, which is administered by the Ministry of Trade, Industry, and Tourism; thus, in accordance with the provisions of Article 14 of Decree No. 0925, prior licensing is required for the following: (1) The importation of products classified by the tariff subheadings listed in Annex 1 to said Decree. (2) The importation of surpluses, understood as such with 2 or more years of production. (3) The importation of products under special market conditions, such as those that are used, defective, repaired, rebuilt, reconditioned, remanufactured, second-hand, of poor quality, or another similar condition. (4) The importation of goods with a request for exemption from customs duty (Category 1.7 of Circular No. 010/2016). (5) The importation of products controlled by the National Narcotics Fund (FNE) of the National Council of Narcotics (CNE) and the military industry (INDUMIL). (6) Imports of goods intended for the armed forces and the national police in the case of goods for national security and defense or war or reserved material, in accordance with the provisions of Article 3.2.8.1 of Decree No. 734/2012. (7) Since June 9, 2013, requests for imports that cover private garments of the Public Forces and therefore require the approval of the XIII Brigade of the National Army must be submitted by the prior licensing system, attaching the operating permit to sell articles and elements for uniforms of the Military Forces, issued by the aforementioned brigade (item 11 of Circular No. 023/2018). (8) Imports that use the annual licensing system. Free Import System On the other hand, registration is required for goods subject to permits or prior authorization, such as fishery products, private surveillance and security equipment, radioisotopes and radioactive material, law enforcement uniforms, and hydrocarbons and gasoline. Registration is also required for products subject to: (1) sanitary controls to protect human, plant, and animal health; (2) technical regulation compliance; (3) emissions certification by dynamic testing; (4) vehicle inspection; (5) quantitative safeguards quotas, without prejudice to those established for imports under the previous licensing system; (6) quotas established pursuant to international treaties, conventions, agreements, and protocols or in the context of trade policy; and (7) controls for environmental protection under international treaties, agreements, or protocols or national policy. Controls are applied for sanitary, security, health, or environmental protection purposes. (9) The importation of seeds for sowing, cannabis plants, cannabis, cannabis derivatives, and products containing them is subject to the prior licensing import system indicated in Decree No. 0925/2013, as provided for in Article 2.8.11.4.1 of Decree No. 613/2017.

Negative list	Yes.	There is a ban on imports of the following goods, in accordance with the following provisions: Chemical, biological, and nuclear weapons. Nuclear and toxic waste. Products that contain ozone-depleting substances. Toy weapons. Pornographic material. Mini gelatin capsules. Certain products originating in and/or coming from the Democratic People's Republic of Korea. Incandescent light bulbs. Tetraethyl leaded gasolines. Products containing lead at levels above those established in the Technical Regulations. Mercury for mining and industrial activities (except those in the health sector) and mercury-added products, effective July 13, 2023, in accordance with the provisions of Law No. 1658/2013 and Decree No. 419/2021, as amended by Decree No. 1433/2022. Importation of any variety of asbestos since January 10, 2021, in accordance with the provisions of Decree No. 402/2021, in accordance with Law No. 1968/2019. Waste oils containing polychlorinated biphenyls (PCBs), polychlorinated terphenyls (PCTs), or polybrominated biphenyls (PBBs). Other waste oils according to the Basel Convention. Insecticides, rat poison and other rodenticides, fungicides, herbicides, germination inhibitors and plant growth regulators, disinfectants and similar products presented in forms or packaging for retail sale, or as preparations or articles such as ribbons, wicks and candles, sulfur, and flypaper. Dichlorodiphenyltrichloroethane DDT (ISO) (clofenotane (CID)), packaged in containers with a net weight of less than or equal to 300 g. Other insecticides, presented in forms or packaging for retail sale or in articles that contain mirex or endrin. By residents to nonresidents	No.	Residents and EMIs (Article 8(1) of R.E. 1/18) may grant credits to nonresidents regardless of the currency of denomination, disbursement, or payment. Prior to the issuance of R.E. 1/18, disbursements in foreign currency were considered foreign credits regardless of their denomination.
To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	Nonresidents may grant credits to EMIs and residents, regardless of the currency of denomination, disbursement, or payment, as agreed by the parties. As a requirement for the disbursement and channeling of foreign credits obtained by residents from nonresidents, a deposit must be made with the BR under the conditions, amount, and term indicated in general by the Board of Directors (currently 0%). Disbursements in Colombian legal currency of credits granted by nonresidents should take place through the Colombian legal currency accounts of nonresidents with EMIs used exclusively for external credits. Transfers of foreign amounts into these accounts of nonresidents are subject to the deposit requirement.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.
Borrowing abroad	Yes.	Borrowing from abroad by EMIs is governed by R.E. 1/2018. The EMIs specified in Article 8(1) and (2) of R.E. 1/2018 may obtain financing denominated in Colombian legal currency from nonresidents or through the placement of securities on international capital markets for the purpose of carrying out lending operations denominated in Colombian legal currency. When this financing is disbursed in a foreign currency, the EMI must make the deposit required pursuant to Article 47 of R.E. 1/2018. As long as the resources are used in authorized operations in Colombian legal currency, they may be held in foreign currency assets.

The EMIs specified in Article 8(1), (2), and (6) of R.E. 1/2018 may obtain financing denominated in foreign currency from nonresidents, from EMIs, or through the placement of securities on international capital markets exclusively for the purpose of carrying out the following activities:

(1) Lending operations, directly or through rediscounting, denominated in foreign currency in the same currency in which the financing was obtained, with a term equal to or less than that of the financing obtained.

(2) Lending operations, directly or through rediscounting, denominated in Colombian legal currency, with a term equal to or less than that of the financing obtained. The financing in foreign currency must be covered by a foreign currency derivative effective from the date the financing is disbursed until it reaches maturity, or it must be designated by the competent body of the EMI as a hedging instrument for the investments controlled abroad, in compliance with the hedge accounting requirements of the IFRS. As long as the resources are used for authorized operations in Colombian legal currency, they may be held in foreign currency assets.

(3) Operations carried out in their capacity as local suppliers of foreign currency liquidity to foreign exchange clearing and settlement systems and CCPs in accordance with operating rules of the system or clearinghouse, as the case may be. These operations must have a shorter term than that of the financing obtained.

The financing obtained by these EMIs must be reported to the BR in accordance with the form and within the deadlines determined by the latter and is subject to the deposit referred to in Article 47 of this resolution. No deposit is required in some cases (R.E. 1 of February 28, 2020, as amended by R.E. 25 of October 30, 2020).

The authorization to perform export leasing operations was removed from R.E. 1/2018 given that they are already considered to be part of authorized lending operations.

The EMIs specified in Article 8(6) of R.E. 1/2018 may also obtain financing denominated in Colombian legal currency from nonresidents other than individuals or through the placement of securities on international capital markets for the purpose of carrying out lending operations, directly or through rediscounting, denominated in Colombian legal currency.
This financing must be reported to the BR in accordance with the form and within the deadlines it has determined.

When the financing is disbursed in foreign currency, the EMI must provide a deposit referred to in Article 47 of this resolution.
As long as the resources are used in authorized operations in Colombian legal currency, they may be held in foreign currency assets.

Financing disbursed in Colombian legal currency by nonresidents in accordance with the provisions of Article 45(2) of this resolution is not subject to the deposit requirement provided for under Article 47 of R.E. 1/2018.

Maintenance of accounts abroad	No.	EMIs are allowed to maintain accounts abroad.

Abroad by banks	Yes.	Entities subject to SFC inspection and supervision may make capital investments abroad in accordance with the Organic Law No. on the Financial System, as well as financial investments abroad. EMIs in general are authorized to make financial investments abroad. Financial institutions supervised by the SFC that wish to directly make or increase their capital investments in financial institutions, the securities market, insurance and reinsurance companies, and branches and agencies domiciled abroad must obtain prior authorization from the SFC. Such authorization is also required if they intend to make such investments indirectly through their affiliates and subsidiaries abroad, provided the investment is made through one or more transactions within a period of one year and in compliance with any of the materiality criteria indicated in the regulation, namely: (1) the amount of the investment: when the initial investment is no less than 10% of the subscribed and paid-up capital of the entity making the investment and the increase in the investment is no less than 5% of the subscribed and paid-up capital of the entity making the investment. For purposes of calculating the initial investment, it will be understood that, in addition to the first operation, the initial investment will include the investment increases made within the 12 months following the first operation; and (2) coordination between the supervisors: when the financial supervisor in the location where the investment is to be made does not have a MoU with the SF. Capital investments or increases that do not meet the above criteria must be reported to the SFC before the operation is carried out.

In banks by nonresidents	Yes.	The acquisition of 10% or more of the subscribed shares of entities subject to SFC inspection or an increase in that percentage requires prior approval by the SFC.
Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.	The limits take into account foreign currency rights and obligations regardless of whether the counterparties to the positions are residents or nonresidents. The proprietary position in foreign currency (the difference between the balance-sheet and off-balance-sheet claims and liabilities denominated in foreign currency) excludes the value of investments controlled abroad and derivatives and other obligations designated by the EMI as hedging instruments for these investments. The three-business-day arithmetic mean of EMI's own foreign currency position may not exceed the equivalent in foreign currency of 20% of the EMI's capital, and the position may be negative, but the absolute value of the negative position may not exceed the equivalent in foreign currency of 5% of capital. Moreover, EMIs are required to meet the limits on the following consolidated indicators: (1) positive exchange risk indicator (IRC+) (sum in dollars of proprietary positions per currency that are greater than 0); the three-business day average of the IRC+ may not be less than 40% of the EMI's capital; (2) negative exchange risk indicator (IRC−) (sum in dollars of proprietary positions per currency that are less than 0); the three-business-day average of the IRC− may not be less than 40% of capital; and (3) short-term exposure indicators. The "Individual Short-Term Exposure Indicator" the sum of (1) the EMI's net surpluses per currency, adjusted by a foreign exchange haircut, and (2) the EMI's net shortfalls per currency; net surpluses or shortfalls per currency (which are the difference between liquid assets per currency and net liquidity requirements per currency) will be calculated for periods of seven (7) and thirty (30) calendar days and must be greater than 0. The "Consolidated Short-Term Exposure Indicator" (the sum of (1) the EMI's "Individual Short-Term Exposure Indicator," considering significant currencies at the consolidated level, and (2) the Individual Short-Term Exposure Indicators calculated by country where their affiliates are established, provided they are less than 0, will be calculated for a period of 30 calendar days and must be greater than 0. (4) The position in investments controlled abroad (PICE) (the difference between the value of investments controlled abroad and the value of derivatives and other obligations designated by the EMI as hedging instruments for these investments). Since July 31, 2019, the PICE may not exceed the equivalent in foreign currency of 150% of capital for controlled investments. (Before the PICE was introduced, these items were part of the global foreign currency position).
On resident assets and liabilities	Yes.	The limits take into account foreign currency rights and obligations regardless of whether the counterparties to the positions are residents or nonresidents.
On nonresident assets and liabilities	Yes.	The limits take into account foreign currency rights and obligations regardless of whether the counterparties to the positions are residents or nonresidents.

Conventional peg	Yes.	The Comoros is part of the Africa-France Monetary Cooperation. The Comorian franc is pegged to the euro at the fixed rate of CF 491.96775 per euro; the value of other currencies is based on the exchange rates of these currencies in the foreign exchange markets. The exchange rate arrangement is established by the following documents: (1) the monetary November 23, 1979, cooperation agreement between the Comorian and French governments; (2) the November 23, 1998, decision by the European Council of Ministers authorizing France to maintain its monetary arrangements with the CFA area countries and the Comoros; and (3) the January 14, 1999, order of the governor of the Central Bank of Comoros (CBC) on euro–Comorian franc parity. Decree No. 87-005/PR, Regulating Financial Relations between the Comoros and Other Countries and its regulations apply. The government of either the Comoros or France may change the exchange rate arrangement after notification to the other party.

Official exchange rate	Yes.	The Comorian franc (CF) is officially pegged to the euro at the fixed rate of CF 491.96775 per euro. The official exchange rate is used for accounting and valuation. The government of either the Comoros or France may change the exchange rate arrangement after notification to the other party to the monetary cooperation agreement.
Monetary policy framework
Exchange rate anchor	Yes.
U.S. dollar
Euro	Yes.	The monetary policy framework is an exchange rate anchor vis-à-vis the euro. The exchange rate of the Comorian franc against the euro is therefore an intermediate objective of the CBC's monetary policy. It is maintained within its target (official EUR/CF parity) by means of exchange rate facilities with local financial institutions. While the external anchoring of the Comorian currency is clearly defined through the rules of fixed parity between the euro and the Comorian franc and the external hedging of the national currency (the ratio of external assets to the CBC's demand deposits must remain at least 20%), the objective of monetary stability stipulated in Article 6 of the CBC's charter is not accompanied by an explicit inflation indicator or target. However, the Comoros is subject to multilateral convergence criteria in the framework of regional cooperation in Africa (COMESA; SADC; Association of African Central Banks). Among these criteria is the inflation rate, which is currently set at a maximum of 7% in the Association of African Central Banks zone and a maximum of 5% in COMESA and SADC. This inflation norm is set at 3% in the other communities of the Africa-France Monetary Cooperation. The ultimate objective of monetary policy in the Comoros is currency stability. This takes the form of external stability through the anchoring of the Comorian franc exchange rate and internal stability through a strategy of keeping inflation low. The operational instruments are the foreign exchange facilities, the reserve requirement ratio, and the main liquidity management operations whose main parameter is the limit rate for liquidity tenders (TSAO) effective July 1, 2022. The TSAO is the CBC's main policy rate. This is the maximum bid rate for negative tenders in a context of structural excess liquidity as at present or the minimum bid rate for liquidity injection tenders in a context of structural liquidity shortfall. Until December 2022, the CBC's interest rates were indexed to the weighted average overnight rate of the eurozone interbank market. Effective January 1, 2023, the CBC abandoned this automatic indexation of its rates to the Euro Short-Term Rate (currently Euro Overnight Index Average) in favor of a corridor regime centered on the TSAO. This is the benchmark against which all other Central Bank of the Comoros (BCC) rates are defined, by fixed increase or decrease.

The TSAO was initially set at 2.5% in July 2022 for negative tenders, and when the corridor system was introduced in January 2023, it was maintained at the same level, along with the deduction step for other interest rates, before being raised together to 3% at the Board of Directors' meeting on July 4, 2023.

Exchange rate anchor

Euro	07/01/2022	The Limit rate for liquidity tenders (TSAO) was introduced.
	01/01/2023	The Central Bank of the Comoros (CBC) abandoned the automatic indexation of its rates to the €STR (currently EONIA) in favor of a corridor regime centered on the TSAO. This is the benchmark against which all other BCC rates are defined, by fixed increase or decrease. Previously, the CBC's interest rates were indexed to the weighted average overnight rate of the eurozone interbank market.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	Yes.	The IMF staff report for the 2022 Article IV Consultation, Second Review Under the Extended Credit Facility Arrangement, Request for Modifications of Performance Criteria, and Financing Assurances Review with the Democratic Republic of the Congo (DRC), states that as of, June 15, 2022, the DRC maintains one exchange rate restriction subject to IMF approval arising from an outstanding net debt position against other contracting members under the inoperative regional payments' agreement with the CEPGL. (Country Report No. 22/210)
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	No.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	No.
Other security restrictions	No.

Currency	Yes.	The currency of the DRC is the Congo franc (CDF).
Other legal tender	No.	In the DRC, the CDF is the only legal tender. No other currency has ever been accepted as legal tender in the DRC. However, the Central Bank of the Democratic Republic of the Congo (BCC) publishes, on a daily basis, exchange rates for certain currencies listed and admitted on the national territory by the foreign exchange regulation.

Among the services of the CB, the statistics of interventions are published on a daily basis and the Directorate of Statistics layers them in its weekly, monthly, semiannual, and annual publications. This information is also published on the BCC's website. The de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as crawl-like.

Exchange tax	Yes.	A charge of 0.02% is levied by the BCC on transfer transactions entering or leaving the country, with certain exceptions, regardless of the nature of the originator or the beneficiary.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	The foreign exchange market is regulated by an agreement signed in 2003 between the BCC and the licensed banks. Participants in the exchange market are the BCC, the licensed banks, and all other licensed financial intermediaries (for example, exchange bureaus) that accede to the agreement. As of December 31, 2022, there were 15 active commercial banks. Market participants are free to determine their bid-ask spread and foreign exchange commission. There is also a parallel market with a fairly large number of participants for which the volume of transactions is difficult to estimate. The daily spread between the official rate and parallel rate averaged 1.94% in 2021. Any Congolese legal entity wishing to engage in activity as an exchange bureau must be licensed by the BCC. There are currently 30 authorized foreign exchange bureaus. The exchange bureaus cannot execute foreign exchange transactions directly with the BCC. Exchange bureaus are authorized to buy and sell foreign currencies for local currency in cash and to buy and sell foreign currencies for other currencies in cash. Exchange bureaus may not (1) maintain accounts abroad. They are required to maintain accounts in domestic currency and/or foreign-currency-denominated accounts opened in the Congolese banking system or (2) conduct foreign exchange transactions in excess of US$10,000 or the equivalent in other foreign currencies a person a day. The exchange bureaus may not execute transfers with the rest of the world, import or export banknotes, or hold deposits for their customers.

Operated by the central bank	Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility	No.
Allocation	No.
Auction	Yes.	The CB has been holding bilateral auctions since May 15, 2015, twice a week, on Mondays and Thursdays; in exceptional cases, depending on the monetary policy requirements, it may organize bilateral auctions on the other days of the week. Only commercial banks and the CB are authorized to participate in bilateral foreign exchange auctions, which are multiple rate auctions. The auctions are subject to rate limits. There is a mechanism to ensure that the accepted bid buying and selling exchange rates remain within plus or minus 2% of the marginal auction rate. Accordingly, buying (selling) bids greater than (less than) 102% (98%) of the marginal auction rate are honored at the maximum (minimum) auction exchange rate. There is no limit to the amount. The auction amount is not announced in advance. The BCC organizes two auctions per week in strict compliance with the schedule. Banks that fail to honor their commitments deriving from auction operations are penalized in accordance with the tariffs and conditions of the BCC of December 2003. The BCC publishes the auction results at its website and in its information system, or through other means of communication (duly signed letter, e-mail, fax, and swift messages) using a standard form. In addition, a confirmation message for the purchase or sale of foreign exchange is sent to each accepted bank.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	Operations in the interbank foreign exchange market take place over the counter or by bilateral auction. No charges or commissions are assessed. Only commercial banks and the BCC participate in this market. There are currently 15 authorized commercial banks in the interbank market. Market participants are free to determine their bid-ask spread and foreign exchange commission. As of December 31, 2022, almost all banks participated in the interbank market. The BCC purchases US dollars sporadically at the banks' initiative. In 2022, the BCC was a net buyer of US dollars.
Over the counter	Yes.	Foreign currency transactions are executed over the counter at prices determined by supply and demand.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	No.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	A forward exchange market exists and is regulated by the same institutional mechanism as the spot market.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	No.
For current transactions and payments	No.	Domestic transactions between residents and nonresidents may be expressed and carried out in domestic currency. Except as otherwise provided in the Exchange Regulations, transactions may also be denominated and settled in one of the foreign currencies quoted by the BCC, by agreement of the parties. For current transactions, there are no restrictions on the use of domestic currency. International transactions are frequently expressed and settled in foreign currencies.
For capital transactions	No.	Domestic transactions between residents, and between residents and nonresidents, are expressed and settled in domestic currency. Except as otherwise provided in the Exchange Regulations, transactions may also be denominated and settled in one of the foreign currencies listed by the BCC, by agreement of the parties. For capital transactions, there are no restrictions on the use of domestic currency. International transactions are frequently expressed and settled in foreign currencies.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	No.	International and domestic capital transactions between residents and between residents and nonresidents are expressed in the currency agreed between the parties. For capital and money market transactions, there are no restrictions on the use of domestic currency. Money market instruments are expressed and settled in national currency. However, the government may issue treasury bills in foreign currency.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	No.	Money market instruments are expressed and settled in national currency. For derivatives transactions, there are no restrictions on the use of domestic currency.
Credit operations	No.	Capital transactions between residents and nonresidents are expressed and settled in national currency or any other currency quoted by the BCC. For credit operations, there are no restrictions on the use of domestic currency.
Use of foreign exchange among residents	Yes.	The domestic currency and foreign currencies are in circulation. However, residential rent, education, and health-related expenditures and the cost of domestic water and electricity consumption are set and paid for only in domestic currency when the transactions are between residents.
Payments arrangements	Yes.	Foreign exchange transactions initiated in the context of international accords are settled in accordance with the provisions of the foreign exchange regulations in force.
Bilateral payments arrangements	Yes.
Operative	No.
Inoperative	Yes.	There is an inoperative bilateral payments agreement with Zimbabwe.
Regional arrangements	Yes.	The DRC is a member of COMESA, the SADC, the CEPGL, and the Economic Community of Central African States.

On external trade	Yes.	Gold from artisanal production may be exported only by authorized marketing agencies and does not require BCC authorization. However, they must comply with the Kimberley Process Certification Scheme and require, in addition to an export declaration made through a licensed bank, an appraisal certificate from the Centre for Evaluation, Expertise and Certification (CEEC) and a certificate of origin. In addition to pre-financing, the repatriation of proceeds from exports of gold must be effected within 20 days of the date of shipment.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.
On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	No.
Foreign currency	Yes.	There are no restrictions on the possession of foreign currency in the DRC. Travelers exiting the country may carry foreign exchange not exceeding US$10,000 or its equivalent in other currency, unless they are in transit internationally or on a service mission. Travelers must declare the amount of foreign exchange carried. Transfers of amounts exceeding US$10,000 must be made through a bank. The transfer abroad of foreign banknotes representing part of the foreign exchange position of a licensed bank requires authorization by the BCC. The bank must apply to the BCC online, specifying in foreign currency the amounts to be exported and the name and address of the recipient correspondent bank abroad.
On imports	Yes.
Domestic currency	No.
Foreign currency	Yes.	There are no restrictions on the possession of foreign currency in the DRC. The amount of foreign cash that may be held on entering or leaving the national territory must be less than US$10,000 or the equivalent in other foreign currencies. Larger amounts must be transferred via bank transfer. For their operations, licensed banks are authorized to physically export and import foreign-currency-denominated banknotes, which are, in their entirety, deemed to be part of the bank's exchange position, based on BCC authorization requested online.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

Held domestically	Yes.	Licensed banks are authorized to open foreign-currency-denominated accounts for residents ("Résident en Monnaies Etrangères" accounts) without prior authorization from the CB. These accounts may (1) be demand or time deposits; (2) bear interest; (3) be credited or debited without restriction; and (4) record domestic transfers between Résident en Monnaies Etrangères accounts, subject to the signature of exchange documents. Balances in foreign exchange accounts held domestically may be transferred abroad freely subject to the provision of a description and supporting documentation.
Approval required	No.
Held abroad	Yes.	In accordance with the foreign exchange regulations, licensed banks are permitted to open bank accounts with foreign correspondents to execute transactions for their customers or themselves. Companies holding mining rights are permitted to hold foreign bank accounts with reputable international banks and report those accounts to the BCC. Accounts designated as "Principal Account" may be used to manage funds the company is permitted to hold outside the national territory, and other accounts to manage funds transferred from the principal account to service foreign debt, and for provisions and statutory, legal, and discretionary reserves.
Approval required	Yes.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	No.
Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	Holdings in domestic currency are converted freely by agreement between the account holder and the commercial bank.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	Licensed banks are authorized to open foreign-currency-denominated accounts for nonresidents ("Non-résident en Monnaies Etrangères" accounts) without prior authorization from the CB. These accounts may (1) be demand or time deposits; (2) bear interest; (3) be credited or debited without restriction; and (4) record domestic transfers between Non-résident en Monnaies Etrangères accounts, subject to the signature of exchange documents. Balances in foreign exchange accounts held domestically may be transferred abroad freely subject to the provision of a description and supporting documentation.
Approval required	No.
Domestic currency accounts	Yes.	Licensed banks may open domestic currency accounts for nonresidents without BCC approval. These accounts may be demand or time deposit accounts.
Convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	Balances in domestic currency accounts originating from legitimate international transactions may be converted and transferred.
Approval required	No.
Blocked accounts	No.	Transactions may be freely conducted on these accounts.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget	No.
Financing requirements for imports	No.	There are no restrictions; the importer simply has to comply with administrative measures. This includes importer payments to nonresident suppliers that must be accompanied by a declaration to which the goods and services contract, the invoice, and/or any other supporting documentation are attached. The importer is required to pay the invoice through an intervening bank.

Minimum financing requirements	No.
Advance payment requirements	No.
Advance import deposits	No.
Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports	Yes.
Domiciliation requirements	Yes.	With the exception of border trade, all transactions relating to the import of goods, irrespective of the form of financing, require the prior filing of a model IB declaration for imports of goods with a resident commercial bank.
Preshipment inspection	Yes.	Imports are subject to preshipment inspection. The amount, invoice price, and quality of imports must be verified and approved by the foreign agent of the Office of Congolese Control. Verification certificates are not required for imports of up to the f.o.b. equivalent of US$2,500 a shipment.
Letters of credit	Yes.	Regulations on import payments follow generally accepted international payment methods.
Import licenses used as exchange licenses	No.	An import declaration validated by a licensed bank constitutes authorization to import and/or make payments to a foreign supplier and does not limit the amount of the transaction.
Other	Yes.	Written authorization from the relevant government department is required for certain goods, such as coins, commemorative coins, banknotes, weapons, and ammunition.
Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.
Positive list	Yes.	All products are authorized, except certain goods that require the consent of the relevant government department.
Negative list	No.
Open general licenses	Yes.	The following may be imported without an exchange document, provided they are not intended for resale: (1) commercial samples without value; (2) newspapers, periodicals, and magazines for personal use and by subscription; (3) baggage and personal articles; (4) goods for the resupply of oil platforms carried from abroad aboard aircraft, ships, and other domestic means of transport; and (5) articles whose total value, including freight and insurance, does not exceed US$2,500 a shipment (cargo splitting is prohibited).
Licenses with quotas	No.
Other nontariff measures	No.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	The tax and customs services determine and collect import taxes and duties.
Taxes collected through the exchange system	Yes.	The BCC charges an exchange control fee of 0.02% on payments made abroad by the banks to cover import expenses and on imports for which no foreign currency is purchased.
State import monopoly	Yes.	Military materials are subject to a state import monopoly.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	With the exception of gold and diamonds produced by artisanal miners, for which the amount must be received at the bank no later than 20 days from the date of exit, export or reexport receipts from all other products of any nature must be repatriated no later than 60

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

calendar days from the date (1) the goods exit the national territory for a final destination or (2) the goods are shipped from an African country to a final destination.

The exporter is required to transmit the transport document for shipped goods to the intervening bank for certification of the shipment date. In the case of exports on consignment, the export proceeds must be repatriated as soon as the merchandise has been sold and not later than the end of the validity period of the EB declaration form. As the sales progress, the exporter is required to receive a consignment accounting statement along with the relevant payment when the exporter must repatriate the proceeds.

For companies holding mineral rights, export receipts from mining products must be received in the primary foreign account within 45 calendar days of the date the goods exited the national territory, for an African country, and from shipment from an African country, unless the sales contract includes special provisions governing the payment period.

Mineral rights holders are authorized to keep 40% of export receipts in the primary account. Only mineral rights holders that have provided the bank references and regularly report activity in the primary account to the BCC may keep a portion of export or pre-financing receipts abroad. The 60% of export receipts required to be repatriated must be deposited to an account opened with the intervening bank within 15 days of the deposit of funds in the primary foreign account. The repatriated portion of export receipts must be used to cover domestic expenses payable to residents and may not be used to finance imports or any other international payment.

Accounts opened with the national banking system must also be credited with pre-financing and miscellaneous resources and obligations related to the firm's operations.

Every mineral rights holder is required to transmit to the CB, no later than the 15th day of each month, a declaration indicating the previous month's activity in its principal foreign account together with the corresponding bank statement.

The BCC reserves the right to verify the propriety of the transaction recorded in the primary foreign accounting of a mineral rights holder, after providing written notice to the account holder in advance.

To that end, the mineral rights holder must be required to acknowledge receipt and provide the BCC with a notarized letter to its banker authorizing verification of the transactions in its primary account within 30 days of receipt of the BCC correspondence.

For petroleum production companies, export receipts from petroleum products must be received in the primary foreign account within 45 calendar days of the date the goods exited the national territory, for an African country, and of shipment from an African country, unless the sales contract includes special provisions governing the payment.

Every petroleum exploration and production company must be required to transmit to the CB, no later than the 15th day of each month, a declaration indicating the previous month's activity in its principal foreign account together with the corresponding bank statement.

The BCC reserves the right to verify the propriety of the transaction recorded in the primary foreign accounting of a petroleum exploration and production company, after providing written notice to the account holder in advance.

To that end, the petroleum exploration and production company must be required to acknowledge receipt and provide the BCC with a notarized letter to its banker authorizing verification of the transactions in its primary account within 30 days of receipt of the CB.

Surrender requirements	No.	Exporters are not required to surrender their export proceeds to banks or to the BCC. If they do surrender them, the terms, conditions, and arrangements must be agreed to by the bank and its customers.
Surrender to the central bank	No.
Surrender to authorized dealers	No.
Financing requirements	No.
Documentation requirements	Yes.	Except for border trade, any export of goods, regardless of the mode of financing, requires the advance signature of a model EB declaration for exports with a licensed bank or any other representative designated by the BCC for that purpose. A model EB declaration may cover the export of goods of different tariff positions, provided the applicable commercial contract is concluded with a single customer and the goods have the same destination. If that condition is not met, a declaration must be signed for each customer and for each destination. A duly validated model EB declaration evidences the signatory's intent to export, and in case of export, the intervening bank is required to receive the full value of the export within the time period defined in the regulations.
Letters of credit	Yes.	Export regulations respect generally accepted international modes of payment.
Guarantees	Yes.	These are required in the case of temporary exports of goods for rental, maintenance, custom work, etc.
Domiciliation	No.
Preshipment inspection	Yes.	Exports of goods require inspection certificates ascertaining quality, quantity, and price. EB declaration forms must be submitted with the following documents: lot ready for export report, quality certificate (coffee), appraisal certificate (precious materials), and certificate of origin (precious materials).
Other	Yes.	Written authorization from the relevant government department is required for certain goods, such as coins, commemorative coins, banknotes, weapons, and ammunition.
Export licenses	No.	Export declarations are required for statistical purposes only.
Without quotas	No.
With quotas	No.
Export taxes	Yes.
Collected through the exchange system	Yes.	The BCC imposes an exchange control fee of 0.02% on export proceeds surrendered to banks and on exports for which no foreign currency proceeds have been repatriated.
Other export taxes	Yes.	The tax and customs services collect export taxes and duties.

Payments for Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Controls on these transfers	Yes.	Payments from abroad for invisible transactions (services) and outward transfers in connection with primary or secondary income are permitted on submission of an exchange document, depending on the case, the IS declaration for services of any amount and the income and capital (RC) declaration for primary and secondary income for any amount equal to or exceeding US$10,000 or its equivalent in other currencies listed by the BCC. Funds sent in connection with primary and secondary income must come from transactions with a lawful economic origin.

Trade-related payments	Yes.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Presentation of regulatory documents is required. The resident commercial bank that validates the declaration must ensure that the AML law is observed.
Investment-related payments	Yes.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	For financial operations, the signing of an RC Declaration Form with a commercial bank for statistical purposes is a prerequisite, regardless of the amount. Profits, dividends, interest, rental income, and other such income earned in the DRC must be transferred through licensed banks according to contractual provisions.
Payments for travel	Yes.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Residents and nonresidents entering or leaving the country may bring foreign banknotes and coins of an amount greater than US$10,000 or the equivalent in other foreign currencies. Amounts in excess of this ceiling at the time of entering or leaving the national territory must be transferred via bank transfer.
Personal payments	Yes.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Any payment of the amount of US$10,000 or more requires the filing of a model RC declaration and must be compliant with the AML law in the DRC.
Foreign workers' wages	Yes.	Foreign workers’ income and wages earned in the DRC may be transferred through licensed banks.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Any sending or receiving of primary or secondary income and capital having a value of US$10,000 or more or equivalent in other foreign currencies requires the prior signing of an RC Declaration Form with a licensed bank.
Credit card use abroad	Yes.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	Yes.	The issuer is responsible for defining the overall transaction limits a mechanism a day. In practice, commercial banks cap the withdrawal between US$500 and US$1,500. As a COVID-19 measure, this ceiling was increased to US$2,500 to promote the use of electronic money.

Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	The daily limit depends on the type of card.
Other payments	Yes.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	For transfers or deposits to an account of a nonresident with a resident bank, any payment greater than or equal to US$10,000 is subject to the signing of an RC Declaration Form.

Proceeds from Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Payments to and from other countries for invisible transactions and current transfers are permitted with an IS or RC exchange document from a licensed bank (for statistical purposes). Payment of a current transfer of less than US$10,000 does not require an RC. Licensed banks must produce a statement of proceeds or expenses in foreign currency. Licensed banks must complete a statement of proceeds in foreign currency for proceeds from exports of services. Exporters must obtain payment from foreign buyers of services based on an export of services declaration and repatriate payments through a licensed bank. A stamped export of services from a licensed bank authorizes exportation of services on payment of the amount invoiced. The proceeds of exports of services must be repatriated no later than 30 calendar days from the date the services were rendered.
Surrender requirements	No.
Surrender to the central bank	No.
Surrender to authorized dealers	No.
Restrictions on use of funds	No.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions	Yes.	Inward and outward capital transactions are permitted on submission of an RC declaration form. The capital involved must represent the proceeds of lawful transactions.
Repatriation requirements	Yes.
Surrender requirements	No.
Surrender to the central bank	No.
Surrender to authorized dealers	No.
Controls on capital and money market instruments	Yes.	Individuals and legal entities must inform the BCC in writing of their intention to raise funds through any of the following activities: (1) exports for sale; (2) offers for sale; (3) offers for subscription; (4) offers for swap or purchase; and (5) swaps and issuance of (a) shares, securities, and founders' shares, directly or indirectly representing partners' rights in companies; (b) savings or capitalization bonds; (c) bonds and other securities, regardless of the identity of the borrower; (d) certificates or shares in joint investment funds; (e) other financial claims and similar financial instruments; and (f) any documentation evidencing such assets.
On capital market securities	Yes.

Conventional peg	Yes.	The exchange rate arrangement of the CEMAC is a conventional peg. The Republic of Congo participates in the CEMAC and has no separate legal tender. The Monetary Cooperation Agreement (MCA) between CEMAC member countries and France is based on three principles: (1) a common CB; (2) fixed parity with the euro; and (3) an unlimited convertibility guarantee. Article 16 empowers the finance ministers of signatory countries (Joint Monetary Committee) to amend the MCA. Article 17 permits signatories to renounce the agreement. Article 18 specifies that the expulsion of a member country from the BEAC automatically results in that country's renunciation of the MCA.

Official exchange rate	Yes.	The CFA franc is officially pegged to the euro, the intervention currency, at a fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 per euro. The exchange rate is fixed by Article 12 of the MCA of November 23, 1972, between the BEAC and France, which states that the par value may be modified following consultation among the signatory countries (BEAC members and France), taking into account the demands of the economic and financial situation of the member countries. Exchange transactions in euros between the BEAC and commercial banks are made at this rate. Buying and selling rates for certain other foreign currencies are also listed officially based on the fixed rate for the euro and the rates for these foreign currencies prevailing in the Paris foreign exchange market. The official rate is used for accounting and valuation.

Exchange tax	Yes.	Transfers of funds with the rest of the world are subject to transfer fees determined freely by the market but not exceeding 1%, excluding any other special tax. Licensed intermediaries may effect transfers with the rest of the world through the BEAC. Within the CEMAC, transfers of funds are subject to transfer fees determined freely by the market but not exceeding 0.25%, excluding the VAT and any other special tax.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Licensing of exchange bureaus is the responsibility of the MOFs of the CEMAC member countries. Their operations are limited to OTC transactions. Licensed intermediaries, who set their own exchange rates with their customers for currencies other than the euro, may freely conduct foreign exchange transactions with their customers. The BEAC's OTC foreign exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.	The BEAC's OTC exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries.
Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	Within the limits of available stocks, the BEAC's OTC exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries.
Allocation	No.

Auction	No.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	There are no restrictions on interbank foreign exchange transactions within the CEMAC. Exchange transactions are OTC transactions. The BEAC does not intervene in exchange transactions within the CEMAC. These transactions are freely conducted by operators licensed by the MOF with the approval of the Central African Banking Commission (COBAC). A fee of no more than 3% for CFA franc area notes and 5% for other currencies, not including the VAT and any other specific tax, is collected by licensed intermediaries on transactions in foreign banknotes and traveler's checks. This fee covers all charges on OTC transactions and the intermediation margin. In principle, all licensed banks participate in the interbank market, but at different levels.
Over the counter	Yes.	Foreign exchange transactions are conducted on an OTC basis.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	No.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	There is no forward foreign exchange market in the CEMAC. Licensed intermediaries may enter into forward exchange contracts up to a limit of CFAF 100 million on presentation of supporting documentation (invoices, debt repayment schedules, or other foreign-currency-denominated debt instruments) and must report such activities to the BEAC. For amounts over CFAF 100 million, requests for forward exchange contracts must be made to the BEAC so that their purpose may be verified.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	No.	Within the CEMAC, the CFA franc is used freely for payments and receipts relating to current and capital transactions and payments. Settlements with all countries other than CEMAC members must be made through correspondent banks in one of the currencies of the two parties or in any other currency agreed on by the two parties to the transaction.
For current transactions and payments	No.
For capital transactions	No.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	No.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	No.
Credit operations	No.
Use of foreign exchange among residents	Yes.	The monetary unit is the CFA franc, which is the sole official currency and legal tender in all CEMAC member countries. Consequently, transactions among residents must be settled in domestic currency. However, the Central African Republic adopted a law on April 22, 2022, which governs cryptocurrency transactions in the country and considers Bitcoin as the reference currency.

Payments arrangements	Yes.
Bilateral payments arrangements	No.
Operative	No.
Inoperative	No.
Regional arrangements	Yes.	An operations account links all the countries with the French Treasury. All purchases and sales of foreign currencies and euros in exchange for CFA francs are ultimately settled by a debit or credit to the operations account. Governments may maintain foreign currency deposits related to oil reserves at commercial banks and use them to meet their external debt service obligations. Exchange regulations in the CEMAC member countries are harmonized.
Clearing agreements	No.
Barter agreements and open accounts	Yes.	In the Republic of Congo, under production-sharing and investment contracts, clearing accounts used to make import payments from export receipts are held abroad under the control of MOF and BEAC departments.
Administration of control	Yes.	Administration of the foreign exchange regulations is the responsibility of the MOFs of the CEMAC countries, which may delegate all or a portion of their authority to the BEAC, the COBAC, and licensed intermediaries. For example, authority is delegated to licensed intermediaries to carry out transactions with the rest of the world. They must verify the validity of transactions, collect statistics, and report these activities to the monetary authorities. However, certain types of transactions may not be delegated. The BEAC supervises the exchange regulations; evaluates foreign exchange hedging operations; reviews requests for approval of opening of foreign exchange accounts by some resident legal entities; and monitors the repatriation of export proceeds. The COBAC ensures that licensed intermediaries comply with certain provisions of these regulations, especially to prevent weakening of the CEMAC banking system.
Payments arrears	No.	Licensed intermediaries may freely execute their customers' payment orders. The related transfers may, at their request, be made through the BEAC. When banks execute payment order requests through their liquidity buffer, these requests do not come back to the BEAC but are checked during on-site or off-site inspections. In this context, the MCA with France serves to guarantee the convertibility of the CFA franc. No payment arrears are allowed on the grounds that insufficient foreign exchange is available.
Official	No.
Private	No.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	Yes.	CEMAC residents are free to hold, purchase, and sell gold in any form within the CEMAC.
On external trade	Yes.	Except in the case of manufactured articles containing small quantities of gold, CEMAC gold imports and exports are subject to approval by the appropriate authorities. The national treasuries and the BEAC are exempt from this requirement.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.	Residents and nonresidents traveling from one country to another within the CEMAC may take with them an unlimited amount of CEMAC banknotes and coins.

On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	CFA francs issued by the BEAC may not be exported to countries outside the CEMAC. However, departing resident travelers may have in their possession up to CFAF 5 million. During their trips outside the CEMAC, travelers must use payment instruments other than BEAC banknotes (foreign currency, traveler's checks, bank drafts, transfers, etc.).
Foreign currency	Yes.	Resident and nonresident travelers crossing CEMAC borders must, on exit, declare any foreign currency, securities, or instruments valued at more than CFAF 5 million to the customs authorities. Nonresident travelers leaving the CEMAC may take with them foreign currency valued at up to the amount they declared on entering the CEMAC. If they made no declaration on entry or if they are carrying sums exceeding those they brought into the CEMAC, they must explain the source of the amount in excess of CFAF 1 million. Supporting documents include pay slips and work permits (wage income), student cards (parental assistance for students and trainees), and notarized instruments (donations), among others.
On imports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	CFA francs issued by the BEAC may not be imported from countries outside the CEMAC. However, arriving resident travelers may have in their possession up to CFAF 5 million.
Foreign currency	No.	Resident and nonresident travelers crossing CEMAC borders must, on entry, declare foreign currency, securities, or instruments valued at more than CFAF 5 million to the customs authorities.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Held domestically	Yes.	Residents may not open foreign exchange accounts in local banks. However, the BEAC may allow certain resident legal entities to open foreign exchange accounts. These accounts may not be credited with CFA francs or with debits from CFA franc accounts.
Approval required	Yes.	The BEAC may allow resident legal entities to open foreign exchange accounts. These accounts may not be credited with CFA francs or with debits from CFA franc accounts. The authorization to open bank accounts in foreign currency is granted by the BEAC. Previously, authorizations were granted by the MOF after consulting the BEAC. Generally, the BEAC's approval is given when the entity in question cannot easily carry out all its operations with accounts in CFA francs only or when a financial arrangement following an external financial contribution requires the opening of foreign currency accounts.
Held abroad	Yes.	Resident legal entities, except credit institutions, are prohibited from opening foreign currency bank accounts outside the CEMAC in accordance with Regulation No. 02/18/CEMAC/UMAC/CM of December 21, 2018. However, the BEAC may allow a resident legal entity to open a foreign currency account outside the CEMAC in accordance with the terms and conditions set out in a BEAC directive on June 10, 2019. Previously, although the principle underlying foreign currency transactions was the systematic repatriation and surrender of foreign exchange to the BEAC and residents were not allowed to maintain foreign exchange accounts abroad, the opening of such accounts was not explicitly regulated by law. In general, when resident entities borrow abroad and the lenders require foreign currency accounts to be established, these are authorized by the BEAC. In addition, companies in the extractive sector benefit from a special provision allowing them to hold foreign currency accounts abroad as part of their ordinary operations.

Approval required	Yes.	The BEAC may allow a resident legal entity to open a foreign currency account outside the CEMAC in accordance with the terms and conditions set out in a BEAC directive in June 2019.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	Yes.	Accounts in domestic currency held abroad are permitted. Previously, these accounts were not permitted except within the CEMAC.
Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	No.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	There are no restrictions on the opening of nonresident foreign exchange accounts within the CEMAC. Licensed intermediaries may open such accounts for any nonresident, on request, provided they inform the monetary authorities. Such accounts may not be overdrawn. On account closure (for example, for loss of nonresident status), the account balance must be transferred to a resident account in CFAF.
Approval required	No.
Domestic currency accounts	Yes.	There are no restrictions on the opening of nonresident CFA franc accounts within the CEMAC. Licensed intermediaries may open such accounts for nonresidents, on request, provided they inform the monetary authorities. Such accounts may not be overdrawn.
Convertible into foreign currency	No.
Approval required	No.
Blocked accounts	No.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget	No.	The exchange regulations do not limit access to foreign exchange. Payments for imports must be made regularly through licensed intermediaries.
Financing requirements for imports	No.	Economic agents may freely enter into commercial contracts with their partners abroad. These contracts are executed through the banking system, subject to compliance with the exchange regulations.
Minimum financing requirements	No.	There are no financing requirements.
Advance payment requirements	No.
Advance import deposits	No.
Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports	Yes.	For import payments of less than CFAF 100 million, the licensed intermediary must obtain a pro forma or original invoice, a bill of lading, or the commercial contract, along with the most recent tax receipt or a professional license. Payments of more than CFAF 100 million must be settled through a licensed intermediary, which must check the supporting documents. Legally registered legal entities and declared or certified professionals may be exempt from the requirement to produce supporting documents, provided they submit an annual estimate of imports corroborated by a business forecast.
Domiciliation requirements	Yes.	Imports valued at more than CFAF 5 million must be domiciled with a resident licensed intermediary.

Preshipment inspection	Yes.	There are no specific provisions for inspections at the CEMAC level. The member countries may freely apply their own regulations in this regard. In the Republic of Congo, imports valued at CFAF 3 million or more are subject to inspection by the trade inspection company COTECNA.
Letters of credit	No.	The use of LCs by economic agents for the settlement of transactions is allowed but optional.
Import licenses used as exchange licenses	No.	Import licenses are not used in the CEMAC countries to restrict the availability of foreign exchange for legitimate trade. When such licenses exist, they are used for trade policy purposes.
Other	Yes.	For import payments of less than CFAF 100 million, the licensed intermediary must obtain a pro forma or original invoice, a bill of lading, or the commercial contract, along with the most recent tax receipt or a professional license (registration number, professional ID card, extract from the commercial registry, or tax clearance). Payments of more than CFAF 100 million must be settled through a licensed intermediary, which must check the supporting documents. Legal entities and certified professionals can no longer use annual estimates of imports and must produce all supporting documents to carry out transactions.
Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.	In general, CEMAC countries no longer use quantitative restrictions as a means of protecting local production. Merchandise originating from all countries may be freely imported, with the exception of gold, to which special regulations apply. In the Republic of Congo, an import program is established each year for five separate zones: (1) CEMAC member countries, (2) France, (3) other operations accounts countries, (4) EU countries other than France, and (5) all other countries. Under this program, imports of nine products require licenses and all others are subject to ex post declaration.
Positive list	No.
Negative list	Yes.	Imports of some products may be prohibited, restricted, or require national authorization for humanitarian, security, or health reasons.
Open general licenses	Yes.	There is no system of OGLs at the CEMAC level. However, in the Republic of Congo, imports of cement, forest products, oil products, and some staples require a license. In addition, imports are subject to declaration.
Licenses with quotas	Yes.	In the Republic of Congo, licenses with quotas apply to imports of cement, wheat flour, and sugar.
Other nontariff measures	Yes.	In the Republic of Congo, imports of commercial goods must be insured through licensed insurance companies.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	The CEMAC CET applies to imports from non-CEMAC countries, at four rates: 5% for staple goods, 10% for raw materials and capital goods, 20% for intermediate goods, and 30% for consumer goods. The taxes are imposed by the national customs administration in CFA francs at the merchandise point of entry. In the Republic of Congo, a surcharge of 30% applies to imports of goods previously subject to quantitative restrictions. This surcharge is to be eliminated in three to six years, with the longer period applying to certain agricultural products and textiles.
Taxes collected through the exchange system	Yes.	Licensed intermediaries are responsible for withholding all taxes and related fees established by law and surrendering them to the monetary authority.
State import monopoly	No.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Export-related transactions must be reported to the appropriate administrative authorities, and all those exceeding CFAF 5 million must be domiciled at a licensed CEMAC bank. Export proceeds originating in non-CEMAC countries must be collected and repatriated immediately, through the domiciling bank, with the BEAC acting as intermediary.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Export proceeds collected in foreign currencies must be surrendered to the BEAC within 3 days of collection.
Surrender to authorized dealers	No.
Financing requirements	No.	Economic agents and their partners abroad may enter freely into commercial contracts, which are executed through the banking system, subject to compliance with the exchange regulations. There are no financing requirements.
Documentation requirements	Yes.	Transactions related to exports to non-CEMAC countries valued at more than CFAF 5 million must be domiciled with a local licensed bank. Each domiciliation file must contain an export contract, a foreign exchange declaration under which the exporter agrees to repatriate all export earnings within a month of the payment due date, and a customs export certificate duly signed by a customs officer.
Letters of credit	No.	The use of LCs by economic agents for the settlement of transactions is allowed but optional.
Guarantees	n.r.
Domiciliation	Yes.	Transactions related to exports to non-CEMAC countries valued at more than CFAF 5 million must be domiciled with a local licensed bank.
Preshipment inspection	Yes.	There are no specific provisions for inspections at the CEMAC level. The member countries may freely apply their own regulations in this regard. In the Republic of Congo, the Société Générale de Surveillance (SGS) and COTECNA handle preshipment inspections.
Other	No.
Export licenses	No.
Without quotas	No.
With quotas	No.
Export taxes	Yes.	Export taxes established by the budget laws are levied by the Customs Directorate or via licensed intermediaries.
Collected through the exchange system	Yes.	Licensed intermediaries are responsible for withholding all taxes and fees established in the law and surrendering them to the monetary authority.
Other export taxes	Yes.	In the Republic of Congo, export taxes of up to 13% apply to certain products.

Payments for Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Controls on these transfers	Yes.
Trade-related payments	Yes.	There are no exchange restrictions on service-related transactions. Payments for such transactions are subject to the same requirements as the underlying commercial transactions.

Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	All service-related expenditures must be declared, and amounts exceeding CFAF 5 million must also be domiciled with a resident licensed intermediary. Supporting documents must be provided, and amounts exceeding CFAF 100 million must be declared to BEAC and the MOF. Licensed intermediaries must obtain a pro forma invoice or other supporting documents for payments for service-related expenditures under CFAF 10 million.
Investment-related payments	Yes.
Prior approval	Yes.	In the Republic of Congo, payments for depreciation of direct investments require authorization from the General Directorate of Money and Credit.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	There are no restrictions on transfers of capital income outside the CEMAC in the form of profits, dividends, interest, royalties, etc., payable to nonresidents, provided the underlying transaction was authorized or is not subject to authorization. Supporting documents on the decision to distribute income (profits and dividends), the repayment schedule, and the debt security involved (loans contracted and granted) must be provided. Transactions in excess of CFAF 5 million must be domiciled with CEMAC credit institutions. Other current transactions, as well as financial and capital operations in excess of CFAF 100 million, must be declared to BEAC and the MOF.
Payments for travel	Yes.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Indicative limits are established for OTC foreign exchange allocations to residents traveling outside the CEMAC. A single indicative threshold of CFAF 5 million is set for all travels. However, all substantiated requests must be granted, regardless of the amount. Licensed intermediaries must serve their customers' foreign currency needs, to the extent that funds are available to them, and check supporting documentation, including, as applicable, a valid travel document and ticket, a mission order, a health evacuation authorization, or a certificate of registration at a school or university, and report to the appropriate authorities.
Personal payments	Yes.	Transfers are unrestricted, on submission of supporting documentation.

Foreign workers' wages	Yes.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	There are no restrictions on transfers by residents and nonresidents of income from wages, subject to a declaration for statistical purposes. On presentation of a pay slip, resident foreign wage earners may transfer a portion of their net remuneration.
Credit card use abroad	Yes.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	The use of credit cards is considered equivalent to a transfer and is not subject to specific regulations in the context of invisible transactions and current transfers. Residents may use credit cards within the CEMAC and abroad.
Other payments	Yes.	These are treated the same as trade-related payments.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	All service-related expenditures must be declared, and amounts exceeding CFAF 5 million must also be domiciled with a resident licensed intermediary. Proceeds from Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Amounts owed by nonresidents for services and all income from foreign assets earned outside the CEMAC must be collected through a licensed bank and repatriated immediately.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Amounts collected in foreign currency must be surrendered to the BEAC within 3 days of receipt.
Surrender to authorized dealers	No.
Restrictions on use of funds	No.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions	Yes.	The exchange regulations, including the section on capital flows within the CEMAC, do not apply to transactions between CEMAC member countries. There are no restrictions on most capital flows between CEMAC and non-CEMAC countries, provided they comply with the laws and regulations prohibiting drug financing and trafficking. Certain loans, direct investments, and the issuance, advertisement, and sale of foreign securities within the CEMAC are subject to administrative controls and require approval from the appropriate authorities. Controls on these transactions are applied indiscriminately to countries in the CFA franc area, other than CEMAC member countries, and all non-CFA franc area countries. Moreover, Article 61 of the General Regulations of the Central African Financial Market Supervisory Commission (COSUMAF), which came into effect January 15, 2009, specifies that "when a nonresident legal entity plans a public offering on the Central African regional financial market, it must prepare a disclosure document and submit it to COSUMAF for approval prior to dissemination. The prior approval of the exchange control authority in the various countries concerned must also be obtained." The article also states that "the issuer must appoint a correspondent (securities dealer) established in a CEMAC member state, where it elects domicile. This correspondent must be responsible for: (1) receiving correspondence from COSUMAF and (2) forwarding to COSUMAF all documents and information required under the laws and regulations or requested by COSUMAF."

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	In the context of the centralization of foreign exchange reserves, foreign currency collected from capital transactions must be repatriated immediately after collection.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Amounts collected in foreign currencies must be surrendered to the BEAC no later than 3 days after receipt.
Surrender to authorized dealers	No.
Controls on capital and money market instruments	Yes.
On capital market securities	Yes.	The issuance, advertisement, and sale of foreign securities (shares and bonds issued by foreign enterprises) whose value exceeds CFAF 10 million are subject to MOF approval. Under CEMAC exchange regulations, transactions in capital market securities are treated in the same way as simple borrowing and lending operations, as opposed to direct investments, when the shares or equity held by the individual or legal entity represent less than 10% of the enterprise's total equity. Borrowing and lending are not regulated by type of instrument or maturity.
Shares or other securities of a participating nature	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Banks may verify and make payment for purchases of securities by nonresidents. Transactions must be reported 30 days before the transaction when the transaction is less than CFAF 20 million. Above this amount, the transaction is subject to prior CB approval. There is no minimum (or maximum) holding period for securities.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance, advertisement, and sale of securities within the CEMAC are subject to CB approval when the amount involved exceeds CFAF 50 million. Transactions must be reported to the BEAC within 30 days. There is no minimum (or maximum) holding period for securities.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	Banks may verify and make payment for purchases of securities abroad by residents. Transactions must be declared 30 days before the transaction when the amount is less than CFAF 20 million. Above this amount, it requires prior CB approval.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	Banks may verify and make payment abroad for the sale or issuance of securities by residents. Transactions must be reported within 30 days. Prior approval by the Banking Commission is required in all occasions.
Bonds or other debt securities	Yes.

Sale or issue abroad by residents	n.r.	There is no derivatives market in the CEMAC.
Controls on credit operations	Yes.	There are no specific regulations on borrowing and lending by instrument type or by maturity.
Commercial credits	Yes.	Borrowing directly related to the financing of commercial transactions and borrowing and lending contracted or granted by resident licensed banks are unrestricted and must be reported to the appropriate MOF and BEAC departments within 30 days of each transaction.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Banks may verify and then execute commercial credits granted to nonresidents, except when the customer’s total outstanding debt exceeds CFAF 100 million, in which case such credits must be reported to the MOF and BEAC for approval 30 days before the transaction. The repayment of borrowing and lending subject to such approval must also be reported within 30 days of the transaction. Supporting documents for such borrowing and lending include the repayment schedule and a copy of the debt security.
To residents from nonresidents	No.	Only banks are authorized to verify and then execute commercial credits received by residents, which they must declare to the appropriate MOF and BEAC departments within 30 days of each transaction.
Financial credits	Yes.	Loans contracted or granted by resident licensed banks are unrestricted and must be reported to the appropriate MOF and BEAC departments within 30 days of each transaction. Banks may verify and execute borrowing and lending transactions for their customers, as well as their repayment, except when the customer’s total outstanding debt exceeds CFAF 100 million, in which case they must be reported to the MOF and BEAC for approval 30 days before the transaction. The repayment of borrowing and lending subject to such approval must also be reported within 30 days of the transaction. 		January 30, 2015. Under this arrangement the CB operates on the foreign exchange market for three reasons: (1) to manage the requirements of the nonbank public sector (NBPS); (2) to address sudden movements in the exchange rate without changing the trend in this macro price (these interventions are known as stabilization operations); and (3) to meet its foreign exchange requirements. The BCCR publishes its intervention data on a daily basis right after the MONEX trading session closes. In 2022, the BCCR participated in the foreign exchange market only for the first two reasons. More specifically, during the year, it sold US$192.4 million (US$35.8 million in 2021), primarily in June. At the time, the domestic economy was facing strong demand pressures for foreign exchange caused, among other reasons, by rising commodity prices and international costs for the transport of goods as well as greater demand for foreign exchange from pension operators. For that reason, the BCCR intervened to stabilize the money market. The BCCR's participation in the foreign exchange market was consistent with the availability of foreign currency it presented, but this intervention was more intensive during the second half of the year, in relative terms. In the first six months of the year, the BCCR met the NBPS requirements with reserves because, given the reduced availability of foreign currency, it sought to avoid abrupt movements in the exchange rate; despite this, the price rose 7.7% over the half year (with a year-on-year change of 11.6%). By contrast, greater availability of foreign currency in the second half of the year led to active intervention by the BCCR, demonstrated through purchases that made it possible to not only meet the present NBPS requirements, but also restore the currencies sold to these entities in advance. In the second half, the BCCR purchased US$2,435.4 million (US$1,262.1 million in the first half), representing on average 67% of what was traded on MONEX, with sessions that even reached 97% of the total traded. For 2022 as a whole, the MONEX exchange rate weighted by the traded amount posted an average annual increase of 3.6% relative to the 2021 average, meaning that it dominated the incremental effect of the first half of the year. A similar calculation for the first quarter of 2023 indicates a year-on-year drop of 13.0%. The de facto exchange rate arrangement is floating.
Free floating
Official exchange rate	Yes.	Costa Rica does not have an official exchange rate; however, for the liquidation of instruments, contracts, and obligations denominated in foreign currency, Article 48 of the Organic Law of the BCCR (LOBCCR) provides that, at the debtor's option, the latter may be paid in colones at an amount equivalent to the actual market value. The actual market value is determined by using the buying and selling benchmark exchange rate, which is calculated daily by the BCCR pursuant to Article 9 of the Regulation on Spot Exchange Operations (ROCC). Benchmark exchange rates will be used, as applicable, for all purposes set forth by the various laws, regulations, rules, and general provisions.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

		The buying and selling benchmark exchange rates for each day will be calculated by the BCCR based on online information submitted to the CB by each entity authorized to participate in the foreign exchange market. The benchmark exchange rates are calculated as follows pursuant to Article 9 of the ROCC: The benchmark exchange rates (buying and selling) for day t are the average (weighted by amount) of the exchange rates of the foreign currency (buying and selling) transactions between foreign exchange dealers and the public on day t1, during the period defined by agreement of the Board of Directors of the BCCR. The exchange rate is a reference for the market; its use is not mandatory.

Monetary aggregate target
Inflation-targeting framework	Yes.	Under Article 5 of the minutes from Session 5813-2018 of January 31, 2018, the Board of Directors of the BCCR adopted an inflation targeting framework. The BCCR upheld the institutional commitment to the domestic stability of the colón embodied in an inflation target of 3%, with a tolerance range of ±1 percentage point (pp). This target has been ratified at every approval of monetary policy reports (IPMs). The last time was in connection with the October 2023 IPM during the Board of Directors of the BCCR under Article 7 of Session 6148-2023 on October 25. On January 5, 2022, the Board of Directors decided to combine the series of the macroeconomic program and the IPM into one report, beginning in January 2022. The report will thereafter be known as the IPM and will be published in January, April, July, and October every year.

Core inflation	Yes.	It is approximated as the simple average of the year-on-year change in the fixed exclusion indicators for volatility (IEV), truncated mean (IMT), reweighting for volatility (IRV), reweighting for persistence (IRP), and fixed exclusion of agricultural products and fuels (IEF).
Target horizon	Yes.	It is biannual, associated with macroeconomic programming with a benchmark value of 3% (long-term inflation of key trading partners).
Operating target (policy rate)	Yes.
Policy rate	Yes.	The policy rate is defined as the BCCR target interest rate used as a benchmark to bring the cost of overnight operations in the integrated liquidity market within a band consisting of interest rates for its standing deposit and credit facilities. This band is determined by the Board of Directors. To try to contain inflationary pressures, the BCCR initiated a process in December 2021 to raise the monetary policy rate (TPM), a measure it supplemented in June 2022 with a 3-pp increase in the minimum reserve requirement rate. Thus, between December 15, 2021, and December 31, 2022, this indicator recorded a cumulative increase of 825 basis point (b.p.), consequently increasing its value at end-2022 to 9.0%. In the first seven months of 2023, the Board of Directors reduced the TPM four times, for a cumulative 250 b.p.: 50 b.p. during the monetary policy meeting on March 15, 10 b.p. during the April 20 meeting, and 50 b.p. during each of the subsequent ones (June 14 and July 26). These reductions were based on an analysis of the behavior of inflation, the anticipated development of this variable and its determinants, and the associated risks. At the September monetary policy meeting, the Board agreed to pause the TPM reduction cycle and maintained the TPM at 6.5% annually. However, at its October monetary policy meeting, the Board determined that there was room to continue with the reduction of the TPM in an attempt to move forward toward a neutral position. It reduced the TPM by 25 b.p. to 6.25%.
Target corridor band	Yes.	This band is determined by the Board of Directors. The upper value of the band is the standing credit facility (FPC) interest rate and the lower value the standing deposit facility (FPD) interest rate.

		As of January 27, 2022, the TPM was 1.75%, the FPC was 2.5%, and the FPD on the integrated liquidity market was 1%. As of March 15, 2022, the TPM was 2.5%, the FPC was 3.25%, and the FPD on the integrated liquidity market was 1.75%. As of April 28, 2022, the TPM was 4%, the FPC was 4.75%, and the FPD on the integrated liquidity market was 3.25%. Foreign exchange market	Yes.	Article 2 of the ROCC authorizes the BCCR, financial institutions supervised by the General Superintendency of Financial Entities (SUGEF), stock brokers, and exchange houses to participate in the exchange market on their own account and at their own risk. Foreign exchange dealers may set the buying and selling exchange rate for their operations with the public, and as a result, the effective foreign exchange margin is determined by the operations they carry out in the market.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	For the purchase and sale of currencies, the foreign exchange market has: platforms for the trading of foreign exchange by dealers with the general public (including both physical and electronic "windows," automated teller machines (ATMs), and Internet banking), the MONEX, and operations between foreign exchange dealers outside MONEX. MONEX is a foreign exchange market organized and operated through an electronic platform of the BCCR. Participants in the market include foreign exchange dealers, the BCCR, and nondealers (individuals and legal entities). Outside MONEX, foreign exchange dealers may engage in foreign exchange transactions among themselves by means of transfers. As of December 31, 2022, foreign exchange dealers authorized to engage in foreign exchange operations with the public (pursuant to Article 2 of the ROCC) consisted of 14 commercial banks, 2 exchange bureaus, 9 credit and savings unions, 4 financial enterprises, 2 mutual savings and loan associations, and 5 brokerage firms. As of October 31, 2023, foreign exchange dealers authorized to engage in foreign exchange operations with the public (pursuant to Article 2 of the ROCC) consisted of 14 commercial banks, 4 exchange bureaus, 9 credit and savings unions, 4 financial enterprises, 2 mutual savings and loan associations, and 5 brokerage firms. For exchange houses, Chapter VI of the ROCC (Article 15) states that: "Exchange houses may make spot foreign exchange purchases and sales in notes, bank drafts, checks, transfers to and from other countries, and other payment instruments, on their own behalf and at their own risk." Currently, their only operations in Costa Rica are foreign exchange swaps.
Operated by the central bank	No.	According to the foreign currency management strategy for the NBPS, the BCCR has the obligation to: (1) directly meet the net daily foreign currency requirements by drawing on the sale of its international reserves and (2) replenish the foreign currency used to meet the net requirements of the NBPS through participation in MONEX on the basis of the prevailing conditions in the foreign exchange market. Currently, the CB does not have a foreign exchange allocation mechanism; there is no foreign exchange auction or any exchange rate fixing mechanism. The BCCR operates in the foreign exchange market as any market participant, in response to three reasons: (1) The purchase or sale of foreign exchange to meet the net requirements of the NBPS. (2) Purchase and sale operations for stabilization with the aim of limiting abrupt movements in the exchange rate. (3) Its own transactions associated with financial hedging.

Foreign exchange standing facility	No.	The BCCR does not buy or sell foreign exchange at the request of commercial banks, nor does it deal directly with the government and other public entities.
Allocation	No.
Auction	No.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	Pursuant to Articles 2 and 3 of the ROCC, the Board of Directors of the BCCR is the body entrusted with authorizing entities to act as intermediaries in the foreign exchange market. Financial intermediaries supervised by the SUGEF are authorized to carry out foreign exchange intermediation operations and, by extension, to participate in MONEX. Foreign exchange dealers may set the buying and selling exchange rate for their operations with the public, and as a result, the effective foreign exchange margin is determined by the market. These exchange rates should take into account any surcharges for commissions or other additional costs, so that the exchange rate reported corresponds to the final amount that the customer will receive or pay for the currency traded. Therefore, BCCR does not establish limits on exchange rates or on the effective margin. As of December 31, 2022, foreign exchange dealers authorized to engage in foreign exchange operations with the public (pursuant to Article 2 of the ROCC) consisted of 14 commercial banks, 2 exchange bureaus, 9 credit and savings unions, 4 financial enterprises, 2 mutual savings and loan associations, and 5 brokerage firms. As of October 31, 2023, foreign exchange dealers authorized to engage in foreign exchange operations with the public (pursuant to Article 2 of the ROCC) consisted of 14 commercial banks, 4 exchange bureaus, 9 credit and savings unions, 4 financial enterprises, 2 mutual savings and loan associations, and 5 brokerage firms. In MONEX, foreign exchange dealers may freely publish the exchange rates at which they buy and sell dollars. Exchange dealers must pay a fee of 0.02% on the amount traded. The BCCR trades in foreign currency in MONEX directly like any other participant, but does not do so in the form of market makers. It does so to prevent undue fluctuations in the exchange rate and to meet its own needs (Article 87 of the LOBCCR) as well as to meet the foreign currency requirements of the NBPS (Article 89 of the LOBCCR).
Over the counter	Yes.	In addition to MONEX, foreign exchange dealers may engage in foreign exchange transactions among themselves (outside of MONEX) by means of transfers.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	No.	Foreign exchange dealers may offer buying and selling rates to other participants in the MONEX. The role of market makers is not taken into consideration in the Costa Rican exchange regulations. Moreover, in 2022, the requirement for foreign exchange dealers to adhere to the Global Code of Conduct for the Foreign Exchange Market was approved.

Forward exchange market	Yes.	In Article 5 from Session 5973-2020 of the Board of Directors of the BCCR of December 16, 2020, the Regulation on Derivatives in Foreign Exchange was approved. The Regulation on the Use of Derivatives in Foreign Currency and the Regulation on Operations with Foreign Exchange Derivatives were repealed at meeting 5973-2020 of the BCCR Board of Directors. Article 5 from this same session approved the Regulation on Derivatives in Foreign Currency. The BCCR does not participate in the foreign exchange derivatives market; however, to ensure compliance with the limit established for the daily change in the foreign currency position of foreign exchange dealers, it receives information from these institutions regarding their foreign exchange derivative transactions. Pursuant to Article 89 of the LOBCCR, Article 5 of the Regulation on Derivatives in Foreign Exchange enables institutions in the NBPS to engage in hedging operations with foreign exchange derivatives effectively executed with government commercial banks, although the BCCR has not participated in these markets.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	No.	Pursuant to Law No. 7558, Article 42, the colón is the national currency and legal tender. Pursuant to Article 48 of the same law, acts, contracts, and obligations in foreign currency are valid, effective, and executable but may be paid, at the debtor's election, in colones, based on the actual exchange value of the currency in question on the date of payment. There are no international treaties or conventions that limit or restrict the use of domestic or foreign currency in making or receiving payments. The National Electronic Payments System (SINPE) was created on the basis of Law No. 7558 of the BCCR to offer a secure and efficient payment system. Services for administering and managing funds and securities were implemented on the platform. Funds are moved to customers by way of collection services, such as direct debits and real-time debits, and through payment services, such as immediate transfers, direct credits, and SINPE Mobile. Services are offered through the SINPE platform via financial entities, which offer them to their customers, in accordance with the rules and standards established by the BCCR. Transactions exceeding US$10,000 (or the equivalent in domestic currency) must be reported pursuant to Law No. 8204 for the purpose of monitoring drug trafficking, related activities, money laundering, terrorism financing, and organized crime.

This treaty aims to promote legal certainty, the development and strengthening of payments and securities settlement systems of systemic importance in Central America and the Dominican Republic, and stronger CB control over payment systems.
Clearing agreements	Yes.	Outward payments (PEX): The SINPE service was used to establish an interconnection with the payments system for Central America and the Dominican Republic (SIP) to offer customers the possibility of sending and receiving funds within the region. In addition, the inclusion of regional partners is allowed, which enables them to access funds mobilization services for third parties using the same SINPE platform. Currently, Banco Internacional de Costa Rica (BICSA), located in Panama, already operates in SINPE as a regional partner and carries out immediate payment transactions with Panama. New regional banks have been authorized and are in the process of getting connected: Banco Atlántida (El Salvador, Honduras, and Nicaragua) and Banco Industrial (Guatemala and Panama).

On domestic ownership and/or trade	Yes.	The country has controls regarding the ownership of the so-called archeological assets made of gold. The National Archaeological Heritage Law No. 6703, Article 1, establishes that furniture or real estate produced by indigenous cultures previous or contemporary to the establishment of the Hispanic culture in national territory, among which figures, coins, and gold tokens may be considered as national archaeological heritage. The only possessor of archaeological objects is the State. However, individuals who already had this type of objects were given the possibility to become custodians, by registering in the Heritage Registry Archaeological of the National Museum. Regarding the commercialization of gold within the country, Article 15 bis, of Law No. 7786, states that individuals or legal entities whose activity consists of being merchants of metals and precious stones must (1) register with the SUGEF, (2) be subject to supervision by the SUGEF regarding prevention of money laundering, terrorism financing, and the financing of the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction, and (3) be subject to the prudential regulations established by the National Financial System Supervision Council, as well as to the sanctioning regime established in Article 81 of the aforementioned law.
On external trade	Yes.	The extraction and export of metals require authorization from the Directorate of Geology and Mines, which issues the technical export note required for its commercialization abroad. The Ministry of Foreign Trade and the Foreign Trade Promoter, dictates policies and establishes and coordinates plans, strategies, and official programs related to procedures for exports.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Held domestically	Yes.	There are no quantitative limits on transfers abroad from foreign currency accounts owned by residents. However, each financial institution is responsible for compliance with the Law on Narcotics, Psychotropic Substances, Unauthorized Drugs, Related Activities, Money Laundering, and the Financing of Terrorism (Law No. 8204), of the General Regulations Governing the Law on Drug Trafficking, Related Activities, Money Laundering, Terrorism Financing, and Organized Crime, and with SUGEF Agreement 1210, Implementing Regulations for Law No. 8204. SINPE has controls on the movement of funds; both the origin and destination of the funds must be identified for each transaction in the system. Likewise, a service was designed to strengthen the work of the Compliance Officers in accessing transactions processed in SINPE by the same customer, according to identification number. In addition, there is a service called the Single Account Registry (Padrón Único de Cuentas – PUC), which centralizes the information from all customer fund accounts opened with all financial institutions in the country. Compliance Officers, the General Superintendence of Financial Institutions, and the Costa Rican Drug Institute (ICD) have access to this registry for the prevention of money laundering and terrorism financing.

Approval required	No.
Held abroad	Yes.	The management and transfer of funds from such accounts are subject to the law of the land and to the regulations of the entity in which they are opened. A service was designed in SINPE for requesting and moving funds to and from abroad through an automatic interface between SINPE and SWIFT.
Approval required	No.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	Yes.	Resident agents may freely hold accounts in colones in nonresident financial institutions.
Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	Domestically, financial institutions may convert collections or payments received. However, this is not a regulation imposed by the BCCR, and it is an added benefit. When payment is received from a source in a particular currency, it may be converted into an open currency of the recipient, provided the institution is an authorized foreign exchange intermediary. If the institution does not offer this service, the transaction will be returned to the originator. Originating customers must authorize their currency conversions to ensure that they agree with the operation.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Approval required	Yes.	A valid identity document is required. Foreign nonresident individuals located in the national territory may only use a valid passport and up-to-date authorization to be in the country. Foreign persons are not authorized to open any financial services or products unless they meet all the required immigration requirements authorizing their regular stay in the country. Financial institutions may limit the type or quantity of services they provide taking into account customer risk classifications.

The Information Technology Customs Control system (TICA system) of the Directorate General of Customs specifies, for each import product, the requirements (technical notes) established by the Ministries of Health, Agriculture and Livestock, Public Security, and Environment, Energy, and Technology, and the National Seeds Office, among others. These permits are required for both the importation and transit of goods.
Negative list	Yes.	There is a list of prohibited imports (including, among other things, ozone-depleting substances, used tires, and weapons of war).
Open general licenses	No.
Licenses with quotas	Yes.	There are import quotas for: dairy and poultry products (WTO); pork, refined sugar (Canada); dairy products, potatoes, onions, hulled or unhulled rice (United States); pork, palm oil, tomato sauce (Panama); pork, black beans (China); beef (Peru); bacon and ham, cheese, powdered milk, prepared pork (EU); fish food (Colombia); bacon and ham, cheese, powdered milk, and prepared pork (UK).The COMEX web page contains published annual calls for quotas detailing volumes. These are previously defined in trade agreement, as is the term over which they apply. Effective January 1, 2022, chicken thighs imported from the United States are subject to a tariff of 0%, without any quota.
Other nontariff measures	Yes.	The Ministry of Agriculture and Livestock may impose nontariff measures of a phytosanitary nature, and the Ministry of Economy, Industry, and Trade establishes technical regulations.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	There is no uniform rate; customs tariffs on most goods vary: up to 15% in the manufacturing sector and up to 151% for certain agricultural products. The following taxes are also levied on imports: (1) a VAT of between 1% and 13% was applied to a list of goods and services, from which certain essential items are exempt, and (2) selective consumption taxes at rates ranging from 0% to 95%.

		Trade defense measures: a 3.67% antidumping duty is applied to imports of refined sugar from Brazil. This measure will take effect until February 2022. Effective March 1, 2022, the antidumping duty of 3.67% applied to imports of refined sugar from Brazil expired. An additional tariff was implemented for a safeguard measure on imports of refined sugar (tariff paragraph 170199.00.00) of 27.68%. This measure will be in effect for 3 years since August 19, 2020. Effective October 11, 2023, the importation of 8,224 metric tons of black beans and/or red beans with a 0% tariff is authorized because of a shortage. This authorization is valid until January 31, 2024. (Executive Decree No. 44222-MAG-MEIC-COMEX, published in La Gaceta of October 11, 2023). On August 27, 2021, the volume that could be imported was increased by 18,594 tons (Decree No. 43160 MAG-MEIC-COMEX). On November 5, 2021, the importation of 83,554 metric tons of rice in bulk with a 0% tariff is authorized from January 1, 2022, to December 31, 2022 (Decree No. 43266 MAG-MEIC-COMEX). Effective February 10, 2022, the amount of bulk rice that could be imported was revised to 114,483 metric tons with a 0% tariff is authorized from January 1, 2022, to December 31, 2022 (Decree No. 43410 MAG-MEIC-COMEX). Effective August 12, 2022, as per Executive Decree No. 43642-MAG-MEIC-COMEX, the customs duty was reduced on imports of milled rice to 3.5% and on paddy rice to 4%. On August 19, 2023, the additional tariff implemented as a safeguard measure on imports of refined sugar expired. (Resolution DM-R-060 -2023-MEIC of August 28, 2023, published on September 5 in La Gaceta).

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements	No.
Surrender requirements	No.	There is no surrender requirement. However, in Section V Temporary Instruments of the LOBCCR, Article 83 states that "when, in the opinion of the Board of Directors of the BCCR, there is a balance of payments disequilibrium which cannot be dealt with using the instruments specified in this Law, the Board of Directors may establish that any individual or legal entity that has obtained foreign exchange proceeds from exports of goods and services, must sell all or part of such foreign exchange to institutions authorized to operate on that market, within such periods of time as the Board may specify. This measure may not be established for a period of longer than 1 year."
Surrender to the central bank	No.
Surrender to authorized dealers	No.	Section V of the Organic Law of the Central Bank (Articles 77 through 84) addresses the use of temporary policy instruments and the conditions governing their use. In particular, Article 83 indicates that, in the event that the Board of Directors of the BCCR determines that there is an imbalance in the balance of payments that cannot be redressed using the instruments designated by law, it may, as a temporary measure, oblige any

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	Paragraphs (h), (i), and (j) of Article 49 of the Organic Law of the Central Bank state that debt instruments or securities, foreign currency deposits, and loans disbursed in foreign currency may be agreed to and must be paid in foreign currency, all corresponding to entities subject to oversight by SUGEF. The Organic Law of the Central Bank, Article 86, states that only the CB, institutions supervised by SUGEF, and other institutions authorized by the CB may deal in foreign exchange. The latter two categories must meet a series of requirements established in the article. The Organic Law of the Central Bank, Article 88, authorizes the CB to regulate the limits on own-account operations by supervised institutions, with respect to their transactions in foreign currencies. The Organic Law of the Central Bank, Article 90, authorizes the CB to regulate forward or futures transactions and other similar transactions in foreign currencies. The ROCC regulates foreign exchange dealing by authorized institutions as provided under the Organic Law of the Central Bank. The regulations governing operations in foreign exchange derivatives regulate operations in foreign exchange derivatives by institutions supervised by SUGEF, General Superintendency of Securities, and SUPEN. The National Banking System Organic Law (LOSBN), in Article 3(1), establishes collaboration in the execution of monetary, exchange, credit, and bank policy as a core banking function. Article 75 of the LOSBN stipulates that "All operations carried out in foreign currency by commercial banks, as well assets and liabilities held abroad in foreign currency, are subject to the provisions of the LOBCCR and to the attendant resolutions and recommendations approved by the Board of Directors of the Central Bank." There is a limit on the direct and indirect lending operations that financial intermediaries may engage in with a given individual or legal entity, amounting to 20% of the subscribed and paid-in capital plus non-redeemable reserves, as provided for in Article 135 of the Organic Law of the Central Bank. This limit applies regardless of the currency of the operations.

Borrowing abroad	Yes.	Commercial banks and financial institutions supervised by the SUGEF must inform the BCCR in advance when contracting credit abroad. The credit and saving unions can borrow abroad without BCCR approval.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	No.	Article 75 of the LOSBN stipulates that "All operations carried out in foreign currency by commercial banks, as well assets and liabilities held abroad in foreign currency, are subject to the provisions of the LOBCCR and to the attendant resolutions and recommendations approved by the Board of Directors of the Central Bank." This Article allows the CB to establish controls on the maintenance of accounts abroad; however, in practice, this authority has never been exercised and commercial banks may maintain accounts abroad without any type of controls.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	Yes.	Article 74 of the LOSBN stipulates that "Commercial banks may carry out all operations in foreign currency that, in accordance with relevant bank practices and technical principles." Law No. 8204 on Narcotics, Psychotropic Substances, Unauthorized Drugs, Related Activities, Money Laundering, and the Financing of Terrorism and SUGEF Agreement 12-10 "Implementing Regulations for Law No. 8204" state that financial entities must maintain detailed information on their customers (know-your-customer policy), including those to whom they have extended credit. In practice, there are no specific requirements for lending to nonresidents.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	Articles 74 and 75 of the LOSBN state that financial intermediaries may issue loans in foreign currency. Law No. 8204 on Narcotics, Psychotropic Substances, Unauthorized Drugs, Related Activities, Money Laundering, and the Financing of Terrorism and SUGEF Agreement 1210 "Implementing Regulations for Law No. 8204" state that financial entities must maintain detailed information on their customers (know-your-customer policy), including those to whom they have extended credit. However, the Borrower Rating Regulation (SUGEF Agreement 105) requires financial entities that extend credit in foreign currency to borrowers who do not generate foreign exchange to perform an additional generic estimate. There are no specific requirements for entities' credit operations with nonresidents. Chapter III of the Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	No.	In 1992, the Board of Directors of the CB stipulated the following during its Sessions 4554 and 4555 in Gazette 48 of March 9, 1992: "State-owned banks may, on their own account and risk, receive current account, savings, and term deposits...denominated in foreign currency. All banks in the National Banking System, except those classified in category C and followed by the BCCR, and other financial entities regulated by the Office of the Auditor General of Financial Entities, which must be authorized in advance by the BCCR, may, also on their own account and risk, issue investment certificates denominated and payable in foreign currencies and may freely sell them in the national territory or abroad." The Office of the Auditor General of Financial Entities subsequently became the SUGEF. Paragraph (i) of Article 49 of the LOBCCR establishes, from November 3, 1995, that "...the following may be agreed to in foreign currency and, in such cases, shall be paid in the said currency: (i) foreign currency deposits with entities subject to oversight by the General Superintendency of Financial Entities." Article 75 of the LOSBN states that: "Commercial banks may carry out all operations involving foreign exchange, which, in accordance with the applicable banking practices and technical principles, are usually carried out by such institutions, provided they were authorized in accordance with the Organic Law of the Central Bank to act as agents and for the account of the Central Bank in the corresponding operations and business activities."

Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	No.
Reserve requirements	No.	As of July 2022, the reserve requirement rate is 15%, regardless of the currency. Previously, Paragraph (C) of Title III of the Monetary Policy Regulations established a minimum reserve requirement differentiated for deposits and liabilities according to currency. In Article 8 of the Minutes from Session 6066-2022, the Board of Directors of the BCCR increased the EML gradually for deposits and liabilities in domestic currency from 12.0% to 13.5% effective July 1, 2022, during the first half of July 2022, and to 15.0% effective July 16, 2022. This change in the regulation on the EML eliminated the differentiation of the reserve requirement by type of currency in which the deposits are made and now both rates are at 15%.
Liquid asset requirements	No.
Interest rate controls	No.
Credit controls	No.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts held by nonresidents	No.	According to the laws on money laundering, terrorism financing, and organized crime, financial institutions may limit the type or amount of services they offer to nonresident foreign individuals, taking into account customer risk classifications. Pursuant to Article 16 of Law No. 8204, financial institutions must require the following: Maintenance of registered accounts – they may not maintain anonymous accounts, encrypted accounts, or accounts under fictitious or imprecise names.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

		In the case of legal entities classified as risky according to the parameters established by the National Council of Supervision of the Financial System, financial institutions must require that the legal and nonlegal representatives of a company be notarized. This must be verified especially when commercial relationships are established, in particular the opening of new accounts, the issuance of deposit passbooks, the creation of trust transactions, the rental of safe deposit boxes, or the execution of transactions, including inward or outward transfers in domestic or foreign currency, in amounts equal to or greater than US$10,000 or its equivalent in other currencies. The purpose of these regulations is to prevent money laundering and the financing of terrorism, which is why they do not relate to exchange rate controls.
Reserve requirements	No.

Investment regulations	Yes.
Abroad by banks	Yes.	There is a limit to the active, direct and indirect operations that financial intermediaries can carry out with individuals or legal entities, of 20% of the subscribed and paid capital plus non-redeemable equity reserves. This is established by provision of the Organic Law of the Central Bank, Article 135; but this limit applies regardless of the currency of the operations, so it is not a differentiated treatment for banks abroad or with nonresidents.
In banks by nonresidents	Yes.	There is a limit to the active, direct and indirect operations that financial intermediaries can carry out with individuals or legal entities, of 20% of the subscribed and paid capital plus non-redeemable equity reserves. This is established by provision of the Organic Law of the Central Bank, Article 135, but this limit applies regardless of the currency of the operations, so it is not a differentiated treatment for banks abroad or with nonresidents.
Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.	The foreign exchange position (FXP) as a proportion of core capital must be within the range of ±100%. The average monthly ratio of the FXP to core capital expressed in dollars must be equal to the value defined by the institution as desirable, with no objection by the BCCR management. The tolerance range for compliance with the monthly average of this indicator is between −3 pp and +1 pp of the ratio. The daily change in the FXP ratio to core capital for foreign exchange operations may not exceed ±3% of the value of core capital expressed in US dollars. The National Financial System Supervision Council, pursuant to Article 10 of the legal act adopted during Session 1340-2017 of June 13, 2017, approved specific rules for financial intermediaries to improve their management of market, interest rate, and exchange rate risk in a manner that is consistent with their risk profile, systemic importance, and macroeconomic conditions. The agreement is based on the fact that a neutral FXP protects the financial intermediary's income statement from fluctuations in the exchange rate, but not necessarily its capital adequacy ratio; therefore, it was requested that quantitative restrictions be determined for the FXP for "trading" and "nontrading" transactions. The formula for calculating the capital adequacy indicator was changed, in particular the capital requirement component associated with exchange risk, such that greater exposure to exchange risk results in higher capital requirements.

On resident assets and liabilities	Yes.	There are no absolute limits on open positions in foreign exchange. However, changes in these positions are subject to the conditions indicated in Article 4 of the Regulations for Exchange Operations. There are limits on changes in the foreign currency positions of foreign exchange dealers; however, no distinction is made between resident and nonresident positions.
On nonresident assets and liabilities	Yes.	There are no absolute limits on open positions in foreign exchange. However, there are limits on the FXP with respect to capital, average monthly capital levels, and daily changes in capital, subject to the provisions of Article 4 of the ROCC.
Provisions specific to institutional investors	Yes.	On February 7, 2014, amendments were made to Agreement SGV-A-61 requiring entities to communicate relevant information to the markets and to Agreement SGV-A-75 relating to periodic reporting of information.
Insurance companies	No.	Article 25 of the Regulations on the Solvency of Insurers and Reinsurers only sets forth general principles regarding investment policies. Specific provisions for the investments backing the technical reserves of insurance companies are set out in Article 23 of the Regulations on the Solvency of Insurers and Reinsurers. Although at least 40% of these securities must be instruments meeting the requirements of Article 27 of this chapter, for example, having at least one investment grade rating, investment in other types of instruments is not restricted. For derivative instruments (Articles 28 and 32 of the Regulations), entities can carry out only interest rate, price, and foreign exchange risk hedging operations.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	No.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	No.
